3 New Employees Hired For Elk Grove Library

Three new employees have been hired for the Elk Grove Village Public Library, replacing several employees who quit recently.

Virginia James, business manager for the library, said the three new employees include one with a masters degree in library science, Ruth Griffith.

Mrs. Griffith will fill one of several positions now open in the library, Mrs. James said.

The other newcomers, Karen Kelly and Rhonda Dolby, this week replaced two long-time employees who recently resigned from the processing department, she said.

The two, Dorothy Homeyer and Jean Joy have submitted resignations to the library board. Mrs. James said the resignations will probably be accepted at the next regular board meeting.

Mrs. Homeyer had worked at the library for six years and Mrs. Joy for eight years, Mrs. James said. She said Mrs. Homeyer resigned for personal reasons and Mrs. Joy, who worked part-time, gave no reason.

In addition, Mrs. James said, Mrs. Ruth Bussard, who has worked at the library for six months indicated last week she wanted to resign, but her resignation has not yet been handed in.

Board Pres. Robert Fleming said members of the board were aware of the changes.

In addition, Evelyn Schmidt, head librarian, returned to work Monday after an eight month illness. Mrs. Schmidt has not been working since she broke her hip in a fall last winter.

Hoffman Estates Man Killed In Car Crash

A Hoffman Estates man died Friday evening in a head-on auto crash near Elk Grove Village.

Donald E. Butler, 35, of 1811 W. Sessions, Hoffman Estates, was killed when his car collided with a car driven by Peter Wagner, 20, of 1408 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect on Ete. 53 just north of the WGN transmitting tower, Elk Grove firemen said.

Butler was pinned in the car under the dash board and firemen took about one half hour to free him, Fire Chief Allen Hullet said.

Wagner was treated and released Friday from Alexian Brothers Medical Center and his wife, Sandra, 22, was released from the hospital yesterday.

Thorndale Avenue Will Be Closed

Thorndale Avenue from Arlington Heights Road to Rte. 53, south of Elk Grove Village, is scheduled to be closed today when construction begins there in conjunction with Interstate - 90. Thorndale will remain closed until December.

The Devon Avenue bridge over I-90 is scheduled to open today following completion of the bridge. The road has been closed since last summer.

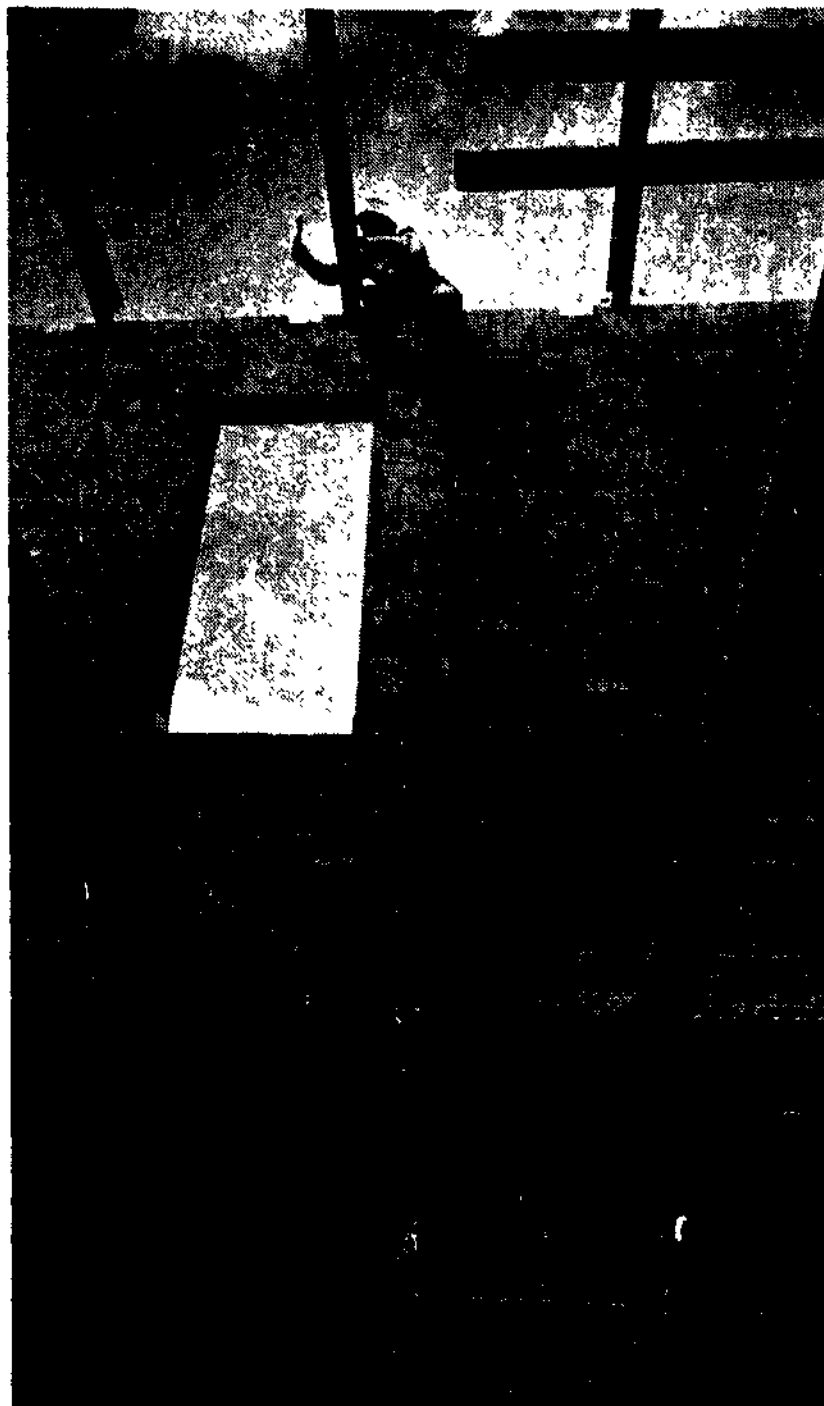

Concert Cancelled

The Park District band concert scheduled for tomorrow night has been cancelled, park district officials said yesterday.

The concert, to feature the O'Hare Air Force Band, was cancelled because the band was not available. The next concert, featuring the Elk Grove Poppets will be Wednesday, Aug. 11, at Grant Wood School.

HIGH BEAMS are now in place at the theater as construction proceeds.

THE NEW THEATER in Grove Shopping Center is coming along, with workmen busy on the structure. The theater is scheduled to open in the fall.

Report Lost Pets

Police Can Be A Dog's Friend

by LINDA PUNCH

Picking up lost or stray dogs may not be a major activity of the Elk Grove Village Police Department but a course in dog psychology would be helpful to the men.

Approximately 30 lost and stray dog calls are handled by the department each week, police said recently.

"We have a very humane system for handling stray dogs," Lt. Harry Walsh said. "We impound dogs we pick up at the Elk Grove Veterinary Clinic at Devon and Turner. If the vet is closed when we pick the dog up we keep him in our old kennel on Landmeier till the clinic opens."

According to a police representative the dogs are held at the clinic for four days. If they are not claimed in this time, the dogs are turned over to the Anti-Cruelty Society.

The number of dogs kept at the veterinary clinic varies from week to week, a representative of the clinic said.

"Some weeks we have none, other weeks we have as many as five dogs," she said. "We find homes for most of them. If they're here, they have a home. Most people seem concerned enough to find them."

IF THE DOG is claimed at the vet's, the impounding fee is paid by the owner, Walsh said. In cases of unclaimed dogs, the village picks up the tab.

"A lot of people are careless about letting their dogs run loose, but most of them claim their dogs," he said.

In 1971, 600 dog licenses were issued in Elk Grove according to the village clerk's office. This number is estimated to be one third of the dog population of Elk Grove Village.

The majority of dogs picked up are licensed, police say.

"If a dog is licensed we attempt to contact the owner. Often we can drop the dog off right at his house," he said.

Owners of unlicensed dogs risk not only losing a dog but also a fine from the village. There are ordinances against unlicensed dogs and dogs running loose.

"My advice to a dog owner whose pet has strayed is to report it to the police, along with a description of the dog," Lt. Walsh said. "I would also make sure the dog is licensed since it makes it easier to trace the dogs' owners."

The police department also handles calls on stray cats.

"Recently we had a call on a cat that had bitten a child. We impounded him to make sure he didn't have rabies," Walsh said.

Rounding up and transporting stray dogs can be just as hazardous as preventing crime, according to Walsh.

Weekend Accidents Kill Man And Tot

Wheeling Police Monday were seeking clues to the identity of a man killed in a traffic accident late Sunday night on Milwaukee Avenue.

The unidentified man was the second person killed by a car over the weekend in Wheeling.

The first fatality occurred Saturday afternoon when four-year-old James H. Fess Jr. of 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling was struck by a car on East Norman Lane approximately 130 feet north of Maureen Drive.

The two separate incidents resulted in the first fatal auto accidents of the year in Wheeling.

Wheeling Police Patrolman Bill Ralston said yesterday that the dead man was approximately 30 years old, and apparently of Mexican ancestry.

Ralston said the man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, and had a mustache and black hair which was rather long although not shoulder length.

The man was of thin, medium build and had two tattoos on his left arm.

ONE TATTOO in the muscle area was a cross about three inches high and two inches wide with the initial "R" in the center, Ralston said. A second tattoo on the top of the victim's left hand had the initials R. A.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Ronald Nelson asked yesterday that anyone who could provide information as to the dead man's identity contact Wheeling police.

The body was taken to the Cook County morgue after he was declared dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the car that struck the man was James R. Curley Jr., 26, of 27 S. Crestview Ter., Buffalo Grove.

He was not charged in connection with the accident. Curley told police that he first saw the man running across the road at the centerline of Milwaukee Avenue. The accident occurred south of Lake-Cook Road on Milwaukee Avenue at 10:30 p.m.

Two passengers in Curley's car, Barbara L. Meldrum, 32, of Morton Grove and Diane C. Shambau, 30, of Glenview also told police that the man was difficult to see as he ran across the road.

When police arrived the man was lying face down with his body on the east edge of Milwaukee Avenue approximately 70 feet from 607 N. Milwaukee Avenue.

POLICE USED a cardiac compressor to try to revive the man and Wheeling firemen used a resuscitator as the man was taken to Holy Family Hospital.

In connection with the death of the four-year-old Wheeling boy earlier last weekend, a Cook County coroner's jury ruled yesterday that the death of James H. Fess Jr. was "accidental."

The inquest was held at the Wheeling Funeral Home, 183 S. Milwaukee Ave. yesterday morning.

The accident Saturday occurred at 3:19 p.m. near the boy's home.

The driver of the car, Keith K. Knoll, 17, of 1255 Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights was charged by police with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision in connection with the accident. He is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court on Sept. 14.

KNOLL AND A passenger in his car, Brian H. Knoll, 15, told police that they were northbound on East Norman Lane at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. The child ran from between parked cars on the east side of the street and in front of the car, they told police. There were no other witnesses, police said.

The boy's body was two feet west of the curb in front of 255 E. Norman Ln., when police arrived.

The child and his mother were taken to Holy Family Hospital by police. Wheeling patrolman Dexter Gorski attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation of the child on the way to the hospital and hospital staff tried for 25 minutes to revive him before he was pronounced dead.

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fess, 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today at the Wheeling Funeral Home.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 100,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic out of Sudan Monday, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

State Raises Aid To Save Programs

by JUDY NAJOLIA

A $390,000 increase in state aid may save High School Dist. 214 from having to cut educational programs this fall.

"We might just make it," board member Richard Bachhuber, budget committee chairman, said.

A month ago Bachhuber reported to the board the tentative budget for the Education Fund was $300,000 higher than the income from expected revenues next year.

Two changes in the complicated state aid formula gave the district, the largest in Illinois with the exception of Chicago, the $390,000 jump to $3,190,000, according to Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services.

"About a quarter of a million of the increase came from the reduction in the qualifying rate from 90 cents to 87 cents per $100 assessed valuation," Weber said.

THE QUALIFYING RATE is multiplied by a district's assessed valuation and then subtracted from the amount of money allocated by average daily attendance.

This is the first year the state legislature has reduced the qualifying rate for dual districts. Unit districts have a qualifying rate which is lower than the combined rate for elementary and high schools, making the amount subtracted from state aid allocation smaller and the final state aid amount larger for unit districts.

The rest of the increase came from the across-the-board four per cent increase given all school districts this year and a one per cent increase in the density factor.

High school attendance is increased 25 per cent above elementary student enrollment to equalize the cost of education. This "weighted" attendance is used in the density factor: school districts with a weighted attendance greater than 20,000 have eight per cent of their state aid allocation added again to the final allocation. Dist. 214 will have a weighted attendance of 20,700.

"We still do not have teacher negotiations settled, which may be different from our projections and though we have not included the personal property in our projections, we may get some of it," Weber said.

According to Bachhuber, the board budget committee has been whittling away at small items: "We have been pecking at some of the $10,000 items and I think this year we will make out all right."

The board of education has directed the budget committee to present a balanced budget for the 1971-72 school year. The budget must be passed before the 1971-72 fiscal year, which began July 1, is one-fourth over.

Duffy Kilrain Leaves Hospital

Duffy Kilrain goes home from the hospital today, the day before the two-month anniversary of an accident that nearly cost him his life.

Duffy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hoffman Estates, has been a patient at Alexian Brothers Medical Center since June 4, more than eight weeks ago, when he was struck by an auto near his home.

Duffy is to be released at 10 a.m., and will go home, at least for the present. His mother said yesterday she still is not sure whether or not he will need further treatment at some other institution, although he will be receiving mental therapy at home. He also will return to Alexian Brothers in a month for X-rays.

Last night Duffy was presented with his diploma from Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg, from which he would have graduated June 9 were it not for the accident. Curtis Casey, principal, also presented Duffy with four awards, recognizing his achievements in physical fitness, and his participation in wrestling, track and band activities at school. Duffy was a member of the band two years, and track and wrestling teams last year.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS award is in honor of Duffy's scores among the top 15 per cent of youth in the country on a series of skill tests given at school.

Casey described Duffy as a "very popular boy" at school, and said he has been well-liked by teachers as well as by classmates.

Duffy went home for a brief visit Sunday, said Mrs. H. H. and he "enjoyed himself very much." His visit brought the first smile to his face his mother has seen since the accident, she said. He felt at ease at home, and seemed happy in the familiar surroundings after his long absence from them, she said.

Duffy's hospital stay has been marked into time spans by his progress in recovery. Some of his victories have been major, and some have seemed almost insignificant, except to his family and their friends. For about two weeks, he was unconscious, and listed in critical condition in intensive care. When he regained consciousness, his condition was classed serious, but he was kept in intensive care for several days more. His progress improved steadily most of the time, indicated by such triumphs as recognition of family, speaking coherently and feeding himself.

TWO WEEKS AGO, Duffy's doctors announced they would begin teaching him to walk again. He had been kept in bed, except for brief spells in a wheel chair, until that time. Last week Duffy was able to walk, first with assistance and then on his own.

While Duffy has made good physical progress, he still has not regained all his mental powers, said his mother. His memory is not complete or always accurate.

Hospital officials have encouraged interested persons to write to Duffy, and even to send him gifts in recent weeks, to help stimulate mental improvement. They have recommended creative play things to persons wishing to send gifts, specifying the articles should involve some kind of assembly, but should not have small parts. They do not suggest items like jigsaw puzzles or model kits, which could be frustrating if they were too intricate. Gifts or cards may be sent to Duffy at his home, Rural Rte. 2, Box 28, Palatine, 60067.

Horses Graze On 'Heliport'

by PATRICK JOYCE

At the right time of day, you can see horses grazing in the field along Dundee Road, just a few yards away from a sign that mysteriously identifies the field as a "Private Heliport."

Hard as you try, you just can't imagine a helicopter setting down in the high grass and weeds, horses scurrying in fright, tenants in the fashionable Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominiums leaning out their windows mystified and irritated.

So you check to find out just what that heliport sign really means and you discover that it means just what it says.

"Sure, it's a state-certified heliport," says William Simpson, the man who owns the field. It is next to his home on Dundee Road just east of Buffalo Grove Road.

SIMPSON IS THE head of Mykroy, Inc., a manufacturing firm in Wheeling, and the field is not a horse pasture but the "Mykroy Heliport."

"It was certified by the state of Illinois in August, 1962," Simpson said, "and they still come out to check it."

Simpson admits that no helicopter has landed on the field in several years, but that doesn't keep him from hoping to reactivate the heliport.

"Butler Aviation would send a helicopter out to take me to O'Hare, but they dropped that service," Simpson says. "Now another company has a helicopter service and I'm going to work something out with them."

In the old days — the 60s — helicopters would whisk customers to the heliport from O'Hare Airport, and Simpson would drive them to his nearby plant on Wheeling Road.

Then the good old days ended as helicopters became more common and regulations stricter.

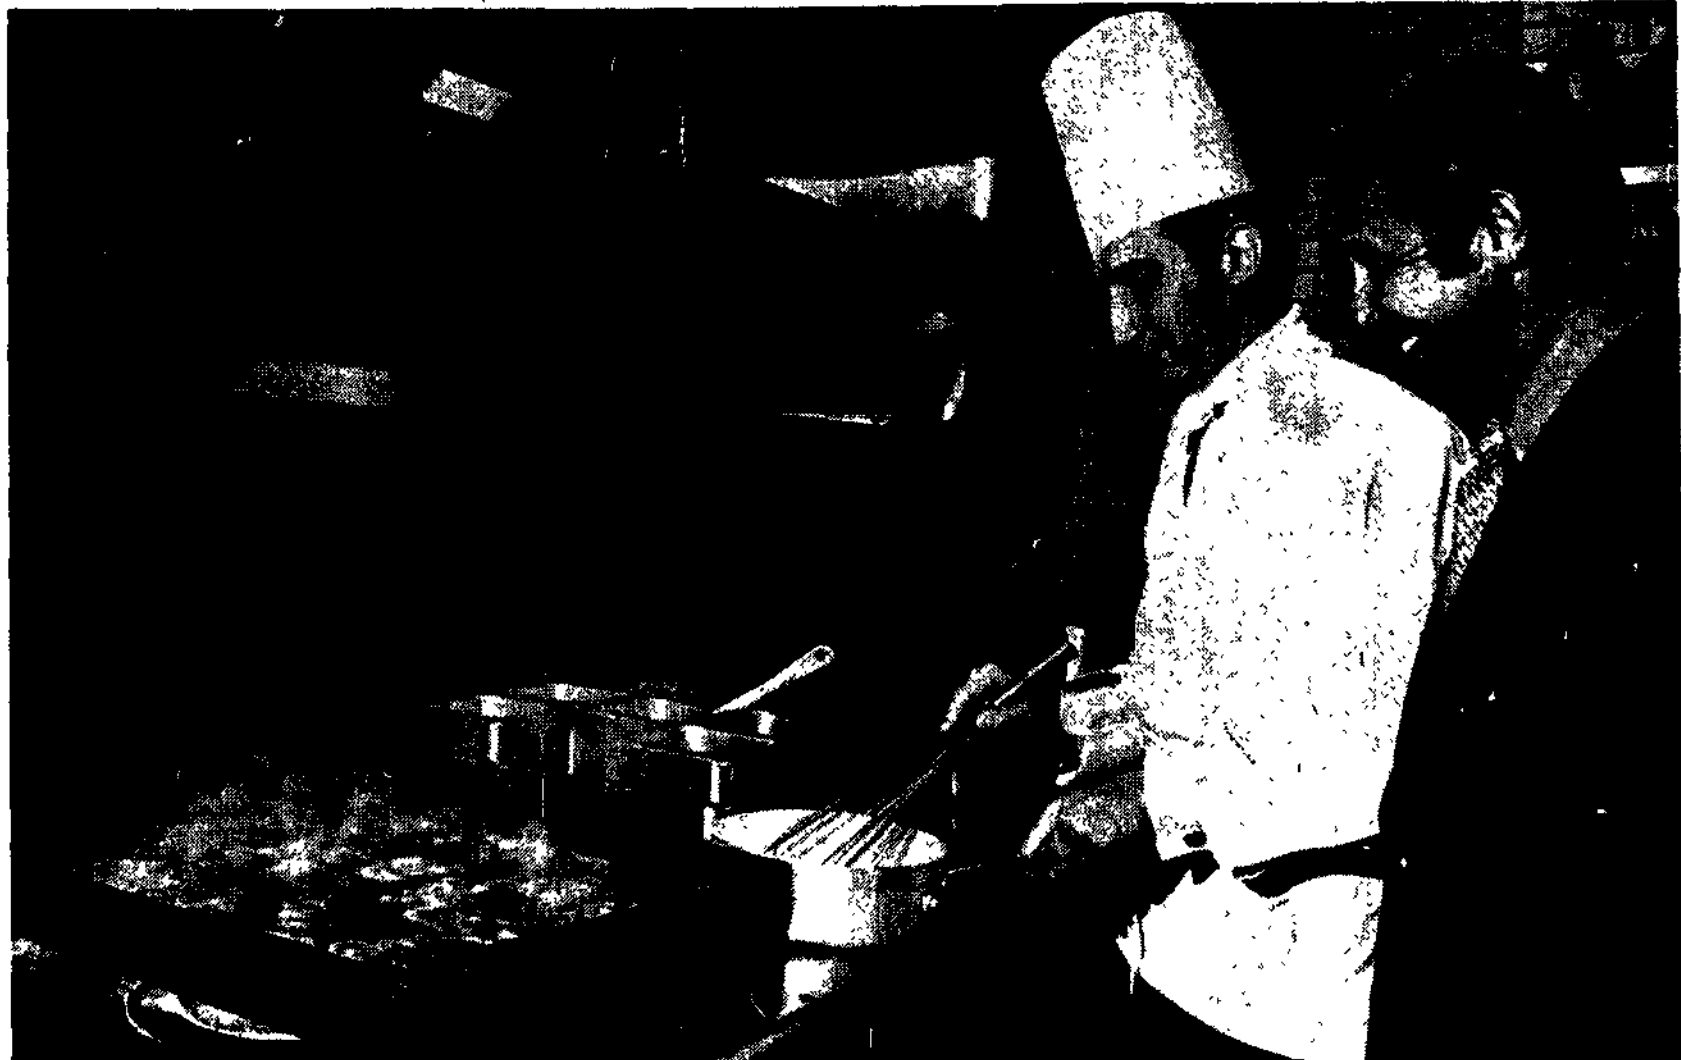

Police Recover

'Lids' Of 'Pot'

Elk Grove Village police recovered two "lids" of marijuana reportedly worth $20 each Friday morning after a juvenile girl was brought to Alexian Brothers Medical Center after becoming ill at a party "where the marijuana was being smoked."

Police said Charles E. Roberts, 26, of 1928 Linden Ave., Hanover Park, accompanied by two other juveniles and another man, brought the girl to the hospital and then gave police permission to search for the marijuana in his home.

Police said Roberts told them he had purchased the drug in Elgin. He was turned over to the Hanover Park police but was not formally charged.

CULINARY PARTNERS Pierre Douso, chef, and Robert Disch, airline pilot, look over a simmering sauce at their Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant.

The pair began redesigning the kitchen and menu at the restaurant last May. They plan to offer food with an international touch to residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Airline Pilot Lands In The Kitchen

by TOM VON MALDER

Take an airline pilot of 15 years and a man, who as a boy wanted to wear a chef's hat, and you get the unlikely combination that is bringing an international approach in dining to the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

The partnership began nine years ago when the two met in the British West Indies.

Robert Disch, a pilot for North Central Airlines, was vacationing with his wife in Jamaica when they received an invitation to go to the island of St. Lucia. Some friends recently had set up the first American hotel there. This was in 1962.

"COOKING WAS a hobby with me at that time," Disch said. "Each Thanksgiving and Christmas, my roommates and I prepared dinner for airline crew members away from home."

But baking was his real interest and when Disch saw the puff pastry at the St. Lucia Beach Hotel he couldn't believe their height. (Puff pastry is the kind used for apple turnovers.)

Disch went into the kitchen and met chef Pierre Douso, his future partner at the Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant. "I spent the rest of the vacation in the kitchen with Pierre."

It was through the strong friendship begun at that time that Disch's interest in other aspects of cooking flourished. But for Douso, cooking had been his whole life.

Born in Roanne, near Lyons, France, Douso was just out of school when, with a friend, he went to visit a big hotel. The friend knew the hotel's cook and Douso was introduced and hooked.

"The big, white hat impressed me," Douso said. "I decided then that I wanted to be a chef."

He did his cooking apprenticeship in his home town and then moved to Vichy and Paris for four years. He finally made his way to St. Lucia.

The two kept in touch after Disch left St. Lucia. However, it was not until 1964 that Douso was able to come to the United States. He was brought over by the Drake Hotel's cook internship program.

THE TWO often discussed the possibility of going into business and in May of this year, got their chance.

Disch had been golfing at the Old Orchard Country Club for a number of years and had been hired by the owner to redesign its golf course. (Disch, who wears many hats in addition to that of the chef, is a kind of amateur architect. He also designed the control tower at the Milwaukee airport.)

This allowed Disch to become familiar with the restaurant facilities at Old Orchard.

chard. When the chance came to take over the facilities, Disch contacted Douso.

The first step, and one which is continuing, is to redesign the dining facilities, including the kitchen. Some $5,000 is being spent. Disch is doing the design.

The second step toward their international kitchen was to hire some experienced people. "We have assembled under this roof the six finest people you can find under any roof," Disch said.

Douso, in addition to the Drake Hotel, has worked at Maxim's and the Champs Elysees in Paris, and the Complete Angler in England. "This is the best restaurant in England, outside of London," Douso said. "We would only see Rolls Royces and Bentleys."

PIERRE VIMONT is the catering manager and like Douso, he has served the Queen of England. Paco Sanchez is the maitre d'. He has worked at La Pavillion in New York and the Dorchester of London.

The three chefs have worked around the globe. Pierre Barth also has worked at La Pavillion. A native of Belgium, he has cooked for Cafe du Theatre and L'Auberge des Grottes in Liege. Stephen Furst, who speaks 10 languages, has worked at Galii, Geneva, Switzerland; Grand Hotel, Ancora, Turkey; Montmartre, England; and Imperial Hotel, Vienna, Austria.

The third chef, Rodolphe Vallee, was chef at the Hotel Transatlantic, Morocco, and the Cafe des Sport and Grand Veneur, Paris.

The pair, Douso and Disch, feel the changes they are making at the country club restaurant are in line with a general tendency of "good restaurants to move into the suburbs." They said the suburban resident is now less likely to go to downtown Chicago to eat.

"We'd like to think we are part of this movement in bringing good food to the suburbs," Disch said.

Blame Firemen For Fouling Air

A representative of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency complained last week when the Elk Grove Village Fire Department conducted a training session by burning five buildings on Devon Avenue.

Allen Hulett, fire chief, said he was not aware that he was supposed to have a pollution variance before burning the abandoned buildings last week.

Hulett was called by the agency and told he was in violation of a state code.

"This was the first time I was aware of them," he said, adding that he does not notify the Cook County authorities when firemen plan to burn buildings as part of a training exercise.

Hulett, who has received three air pollution tickets from Cook County in the past, said he recently got the procedure with the county straightened out so it does not ticket him any longer and that now another agency is complaining.

"I'll comply with whatever it is they want me to do," he said. "But it seems like a duplication of services to me."

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papiak, 2388 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papiak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 879 Shoreline Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's towhouse parking lot.

Duffy Kilrain Leaves Hospital After 8 Weeks

Duffy Kilrain goes home from the hospital today, the day before the two-month anniversary of an accident that nearly cost him his life.

Duffy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hogg, Hoffman Estates, has been a patient at Alexian Brothers Medical Center since June 4, more than eight weeks ago, when he was struck by an auto near his home.

Duffy is to be released at 10 a.m., and will go home, at least for the present. His mother said yesterday she still is not sure whether or not he will need further treatment at some other institution, although he will be receiving mental therapy at home. He also will return to Alexian Brothers in a month for X-rays.

Last night Duffy was presented with his diploma from Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg, from which he would have graduated June 9 were it not for the accident. Curtis Casey, principal, also presented Duffy with four awards, recognizing his achievements in physical fitness, and his participation in wrestling, track and band activities at school. Duffy was a member of the band two years, and track and wrestling teams last year.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS award is in honor of Duffy's scores among the top 15 per cent of youth in the country on a series of skill tests given at school.

Casey described Duffy as a "very popular boy" at school, and said he has been well-liked by teachers as well as by classmates.

Duffy went home for a brief visit Sunday, said Mrs. Hogg, and he "enjoyed himself very much." His visit brought the first smile to his face his mother has seen since the accident, she said. He felt at ease at home, and seemed happy in the familiar surroundings after his long absence from them, she said.

Duffy's hospital stay has been marked into time spans by his progress in recovery. Some of his victories have been major, and some have seemed almost insignificant, except to his family and their friends. For about two weeks, he was unconscious, and listed in critical condition in intensive care. When he regained consciousness, his condition was classed serious, but he was kept in intensive care for several days more. His progress improved steadily most of the time, indicated by such triumphs as recognition of family, speaking coherently and feeding himself.

TWO WEEKS AGO, Duffy's doctors announced they would begin teaching him to walk again. He had been kept in bed, except for brief spells in a wheel chair, until that time. Last week Duffy was able to walk, first with assistance and then on his own.

While Duffy has made good physical progress, he still has not regained all his mental powers, said his mother. His memory is not complete or always accurate.

Hospital officials have encouraged interested persons to write to Duffy, and even to send him gifts in recent weeks, to help stimulate mental improvement. They have recommended creative play things to persons wishing to send gifts, specifying the articles should involve some kind of assembly, but should not have small parts. They do not suggest items like jigsaw puzzles or model kits, which could be frustrating if they were too intricate. Gifts or cards may be sent to Duffy at his home, Rural Rte. 2, Box 28, Palatine, 60067.

THE ROAST SUCKLING pig, carried to the table by James B. Conant High Summer Sculpture class students is part of a "phony feast" prepared by the District 211 art students who made plaster foods for a mock wedding ceremony and reception. The event was a showcase for the 20 students plaster work.

Mock 'Hitch' Sounds Crazy — Draws 100

by JERRY THOMAS

As the strains of "Here Comes the Bride," rendered in rock rhythm bounced off the high school classroom walls it was evident to all the wedding guests that this marriage would last.

After all, plaster is considered a permanent arrangement.

The project did not start out as a "wedding," but as James B. Conant High School summer sculpture teacher Miss Shirley Slade explained, "The best foil for our work was an 'event.' Since the sculpture project was foods, a wedding reception table seemed the perfect solution.

"When you have a wedding you need to marry somebody; in this case we decided to marry reality to allusion, something that happens in art every day," said Miss Slade.

STUDENT RAY BRONS of Schaumburg High School was really "gross reality, freaky looking hair and all decked out as the groom," she said. "Chi Shin, of Schaumburg High was our bride," she added.

"Allusion with its soft subtle hints of potentiality was right for Chi whose role reflected the beauty of all brides," Miss Slade continued.

"Sounds crazy I guess, the mock wedding ceremony and then the long reception table; we drew a crowd of at least 100 other students who came to see what was going on," she said.

"But what were we really doing?" she asked. "This event was bizarre as it may be at first thought, is what art is all about, isn't it? Art extends to other arts like acting and other abilities. The ceremony preparations challenged a lot of abilities," she noted.

A magician performed the ceremony, and all the food-stuffs were ceremoniously set on the table by each student who made his plaster pot-luck offering for the reception.

It may not have been an edible array but the bride didn't have to worry about anyone sticking a finger in the plaster frosting of the tall wedding cake. A stuffed baked fish, salads, meats, bowls of chicken soup, and asparagus were some of the menu items, best described as part of a very "heavy meal."

Traffic Tie-up Caused By Boat

River traffic is said to be almost as bad as road traffic these days, but Monday the two combined in Schaumburg to cause a complete traffic stop.

Police received a call Monday morning that a boat was blocking traffic on Springinguth Road near Revere Circle. When patrolmen arrived at the scene, they found two men had pushed the boat, and the trailer on which it was placed, into a driveway and out of the lanes of traffic.

Wayne Shaw, who lives at 109 Springinguth, told police he believed the boat is owned by a neighboring resident, who is away from home on vacation. The boat apparently had rolled from the driveway into the street, he said. He agreed to keep an eye on the boat until his neighbors return.

Junior Miss Contest Set

Poise and personality, not beauty or talent, are the prime requirements for the 1971 Hanover Park Junior Miss Contest. Mrs. Elaine Prowicz, chairman of the home and life committee of the Hanover Park Womens Club said the contest to select a Junior Miss opens Wednesday.

The Womens Club members are holding the contest in conjunction with the village wide Labor Day Festival in September. Applications from Hanover Park girls between 10 and 12 years old are being accepted by mail beginning Wednesday until Aug. 15.

Mrs. Prowicz said the judges will be looking for a girl who handles herself well and is natural and easy in her relationships with others. "We stress that beauty alone will not win the young lady the crown," said Mrs. Prowicz.

The chairman asked that girls who wish to enter the contest write her at 7797 Asbury Circle South, Hanover Park, 60108.

Registration blanks will be made available by the club but girls who are interested may apply by sending the following information: Name, address, phone number, birth date, and school attended. The applications must be signed by a parent, and must be accompanied by a wallet sized photo of the young lady and a short essay.

The essay should tell the judges about the applicant, her place in the community, her family and her hobbies, activities within her neighborhood school or church.

It should be no longer than 250 words and may be less.

Five finalists will be selected from those who enter the contest and the five finalists will be introduced to the judges Aug. 27 at 8 p.m. in the Longmeadows activities center for judging.

Although the winner will be selected then, the judges will hold the announcement until Sept. 5 when she will be crowned during the festival.

In conjunction with the contest the club members conducted a childrens poster contest to advertise the festival.

Winners were Michael Prowicz, 6, for his poster depicting a carnival theme, Elizabeth Jacobs, 6, for her clown collage, and Geri Eberle, 7, for his poster work, a multi-hued elephant carrying a sign telling about the festival.

Mrs. Prowicz said all Junior Miss entries must be postmarked no later than Aug. 15.

Hanover Park OKs $1,937,390 Appropriation Law

The annual appropriation ordinance totaling $1,937,390 was approved in Hanover Park Thursday. The appropriation is approximately $400,000 higher than last years appropriation.

The appropriation reflects the estimated costs of all necessary expenses and liabilities of the village as well as any unexpected expense that could come up. Unless funds are appropriated for the fiscal year that began May 1, 1971 and will end April 30, 1972, they cannot be spent.

According to Trustee Frank Dalla Valle, the creation of four new departments, a fund for land acquisition, a bridge and street fund and estimated salaries for the new village manager, his secretary and a full-time engineer create part of the increase.

TRIMMING OF other department fund total kept the appropriation low, said Dalla Valle.

The four new departments are, sanitation, ordinance and judicial, civil service and beautification. The sanitation department appropriation of $86,300 anticipates laborers and clerks salaries estimated at $45,000, $10,000 for a land fill, and $16,000 for a vehicle and other minor expenses for maintenance. The village now contracts for scavenger service but is contemplating a village sanitation department.

The ordinance and judicial fund totals $17,820; the civil service fund, $5,355, and the beautification committee fund, $9,225.

The village, in the process of interviewing for a village manager, approved a $20,000 appropriation for his salary, $7,000 for a secretary, and $8,500 for office equipment and a vehicle for the manager.

AN INDICATION that a full-time village engineer is being considered was the setting aside of an $18,000 salary estimate for an engineer.

New bridge construction for the proposed Walnut Street extension is estimated at $50,000. The total public works streets and roads department figure is $200,900.

Within the water department appropriation an estimate of $50,000 stands for land acquisition and building construction.

A recapitulation of the full appropriation shows, $1,220,760 in the general purpose fund; $15,635.99 in the civil defense fund; $584,900 in the waterworks and sewerage fund; $25,000 in the police pension fund, $20,000 for streets and bridges; $15,000 for insurance, $14,300 for the Illinois Retirement fund, and a $32,570 appropriation for the vehicle tax fund.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-49 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 10-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Russian Embassy's No. 2 man and the Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

Temperatures from around the nation:

	High	Low
Atlanta	81	69
Boston	86	71
Houston	85	74
Los Angeles	92	74
Miami Beach	85	77
Phoenix	106	82
San Francisco	72	56

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Summer Is Time To Slate Medical Exams For Kids

"Summer is an excellent time for parents to schedule medical examinations for their children," says William Campbell, School District U46 director of health education and nursing services.

Medical examinations are required at certain grade levels under Illinois House Bill 30.

Those required to have physical and dental forms completed by the first day of school are all kindergarten, first, fifth and ninth graders and all children transferring into School District U46 from a school district outside the State of Illinois.

Campbell suggests that medical appointments be made now, if not already scheduled, so that the forms can be completed by Aug. 31, orientation day for new students.

Children entering the fifth and ninth grades will return medical forms on the first full day of class on Sept. 1.

Kindergarten classes start one week later on Sept. 7 to allow teachers to hold individual conferences with parent and child. At that time registration, medical and dental forms are returned along with birth certificates not available during the Spring kindergarten enrollment days.

Campbell added that summer is also a good time for boys engaged in junior high school sports to have medical examinations completed.

Injured In Fall

A Forest Park man was injured Friday when he fell from the roof of a building under construction on Hammond Drive into a 20-foot deep trench.

Rick O'Kane, 23, of 906 Thomas, Forest Park, was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital with back contusions, according to police information, and was released sometime over the weekend.

Schaumburg Police, who investigated the accident, said he slipped while working on the roof.

Search For Lead In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today.

Police Recover 'Lids' Of 'Pot'

Elk Grove Village police recovered two "lids" of marijuana reportedly worth $20 each Friday morning after a juvenile girl was brought to Alexian Brothers Medical Center after becoming ill at a party where the marijuana was being smoked.

Police said Charles E. Roberts, 26, of 1929 Linden Ave., Hanover Park, accompanied by two other juveniles and another man, brought the girl to the hospital and then gave police permission to search for the marijuana in his home.

Police said Roberts told them he had purchased the drug in Elgin. He was turned over to the Hanover Park police but was not formally charged.

Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papciak, 2388 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papciak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 679 Shoreline Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1968 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

$11,000 Building Equipment Stolen

The thefts of $10,000 worth of construction forms and $1,000 worth of machinery are under investigation by Schaumburg police.

The construction forms were reported stolen Friday by Julius Pazdro of Pepper Construction Co., working at the Walden construction site on Rte. 62. A total of 300 forms, in stacks of 25 forms each, were taken, and police believe the culprits used a fork lift truck and another truck at least 24 feet long to carry out the theft. It is believed the forms were stolen between 4:30 p.m. Thursday and 2 p.m. Friday, and likely in Friday's early morning hours, according to a police report.

The forms measure two by 2 six feet, and were stacked on four-by-six foot lumber stands for easy transport by fork lift truck around the site. Tracks from a fork lift smaller than is being used at the site were found in the area where the forms had been stored, and other stacks of forms of other sizes were moved or knocked over to get to the two-by-six ones.

Police said a truck at least 24 feet long would have been required to handle the forms, and another truck, or one larger than 24 feet, would have been required to also remove the fork lift.

Police are checking other construction sites in the suburban area, and have contacted salesmen from the firm which originally sold the forms hoping to learn if they are being used somewhere else.

The machinery was reported stolen Friday morning by White City Electric Co. of Chicago, which said a power hand saw valued at $500 and a power threader valued at $500 were taken from a truck parked on the northwest corner of Routes 72 and 53.

Hoffman Estates Man Killed In Car Crash

A Hoffman Estates man died Friday evening in a head-on auto crash near Elk Grove Village.

Donald E. Butler, 35, of 1811 W. Sessions, Hoffman Estates, was killed when his car collided with a car driven by Peter Wagner, 20, of 1400 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect on Rte. 53 just north of the WGN transmitting tower, Elk Grove firemen said.

Butler was pinned in the car under the dash board and firemen took about one half hour to free him, Fire Chief Allen Hullett said.

5-Year-Old Girl Hit By Automobile

A 5-year-old Hoffman Estates girl was treated at Alexian Brothers Medical Center Thursday after she ran around an ice cream vending truck into the path of a car, according to police.

Gayle Gunnsaules, 292 Hassell Rd., sustained abrasions and contusions to the back when she was struck by a car driven by Jacquelyn O'Hara, 30, of 322 Mayfield Ln., Hoffman Estates. Police said Gayle's mother, Mrs. Sherry Gunnsaules, saw the incident, and called at Gayle to stop her. The child stopped in the auto's path, said police.

Pacil Resigns As Village Treasurer

Leo Pacil, of Schaumburg, resigned his post as village treasurer last week in order to move from the community to DeKalb.

According to Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher, the post will be assumed by Conrad Gill, who now serves as comptroller.

Atcher explained that he looks at this move as an economy since Gill is already totally familiar with village finance. The treasurer's job is a part-time post in the village.

Park Dist. Will Hide Dinosaur Eggs

Boys and girls participating in Schaumburg Park District's archery instruction program will hunt for dinosaur eggs behind Jane Addams Junior High School Thursday.

The event will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until approximately 4 p.m., according to Jeff Fox, recreation superintendent for the park district.

The dinosaur egg hunt is an annual event in the archery division of the park district recreation program.

Baseball Theme Of Park Production

Members of Schaumburg Park District's summer drama group will present a play Tuesday, Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at Jane Addams Junior High School, Springlough Road.

According to Jeff Fox, recreation superintendent for the park district, the theme of the production is baseball.

Residents of the park district and their guests are invited to view the play. There is no admission charge.

St. Bernard 'Locked Up' 7 Days

A St. Bernard was found in a Schaumburg garage Friday suffering from malnutrition. Police said apparently he had been abandoned, without food or water seven days before he was found.

The dog, about 3 years old, is "okay," and apparently suffered no permanent ill effects, according to a spokesman for the Anti-Cruelty Society in Chicago, where he was taken. A spokesman said the St. Bernard was suffering from malnutrition, but in good health in other respects. The spokesman said the dog will be held until Friday, and will then be available for adoption. The society is located at 157 W. Grand, Chicago.

Police received a phone call from a resident near where the dog was found. Mrs. Robert Gerster, 1221 Hartman Dr., told police the dog apparently was abandoned in the garage.

At the home, police found the animal emaciated from its ordeal. He behaved viciously, and had to be forcibly taken from the garage at 1215 Hartmann Dr.

POLICE CHECKED the home to see if any of the occupants could be located, all furnishings and many personal effects remained in place. On the front door was an eviction notice dated July 18, ordering the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Jones, to vacate the premises by July 23, the day the couple was seen leaving by neighbors.

Police found the dog Friday, and called the Anti-Cruelty Society. They left food and water for him. The dog was picked up by the society Saturday.

The society spokesman said yesterday the dog no longer seems vicious, but is not friendly. He suggested anyone interested in adopting the dog should first go to their facilities and meet him. He did not recommend adoption by a family with children. Until the dog receives care for a few more days, they will not be sure if his viciousness results from his ordeal, or if he is uncongenial by nature, the spokesman said.

Del Lago Villas Construction Plans Are Eyed

Revised plans for Del Lago Villas, a proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD) being considered for construction on Higgins Road just west of Meacham Road, were presented to members of Schaumburg's zoning board of appeals last week.

Additional substantial changes in what was originally presented as a sextrominium project are expected Wednesday, Sept. 1 when officials of Consumers Development and Construction, Ltd., developers of the land, return for continuance of the hearing.

Originally submitted as a 450 sextrominium complex, the number of condominium units has now been reduced and three "medium rise" buildings inserted.

The developer described "medium rise" as being eight stories but also indicated that units in these buildings would be maintained on a strictly rental basis.

THESE REVISIONS bring the total number of purchase plus rental units up to 550.

The developer also agreed to increase street widths in the PUD to 27 feet which is the minimum required under Schaumburg's ordinance governing this type of development.

Principals in the proposed project have, at the request of the zoning board, met with Dist. 54 but have reached no agreement concerning cash donation to the elementary district.

Robert O. Atcher Pool did not open for public swimming yesterday as park officials had hoped but is scheduled to begin operating within a few days.

Formal opening had been scheduled for July 4 but a number of last minute construction delays prevented public operation of Schaumburg's second community pool.

The pool proper has been completed for several days but application of a coat of primer paint, required for state inspection has caused further delay, according to Paul Derda, director of parks and recreation.

Deckwork at the new pool, constructed next to Jane Addams Junior High School on Springlough Road, has been completed and swim classes scheduled for the new pool began last Monday.

Prior to that time, those who registered for swim instruction at Atcher Pool attended early morning classes at the existing Civic Pool.

The new pool and its surrounding park were built on a site available to Schaumburg Park District through terms of a park-school lease agreement with Dist. 54.

A major part of the park district's master plan for park development prepared several years ago by McFadden & Everly, Ltd., a consulting firm retained by the district, the pool is being financed through a bond issue approved by voters in March 1970.

Phase one of the total capital improvement program also calls for construction of a number of parks and playfields scattered through the growing park district.

Park officials expect to soon begin planning phase two of the plan with officials of the consulting firm which will result in additional capital improvements throughout the district.

Carnival Helps Fight Muscular Dystrophy

Carnivals benefitting the Muscular Dystrophy Association have been sponsored by many area children throughout the summer months.

Angel Mariani, 12, of 1012 Harvard Lane, Schaumburg, planned one for Monday and today in the driveway of her home. The booths will be open from 1 to 3 p.m. today.

Rain did not discourage carnival goers, and Angel reports that the proceeds from Monday's carnival should make a handsome envelope full when she sends the funds to the association.

Neighbors donated baked goods and hand-made items for the gaming booths Angel constructed. Mrs. Mariani said Angel heard about Muscular dystrophy watching a B. J. Thomas Cartoon Festival program on channel 32 and wanted to help.

The television personality makes the donation envelopes and plans for conducting a neighborhood carnival available to youngsters.

After that the youngsters are on their own. In Angel's case she made a bean bag game, ring toss, and set up a sweet circle game that rewarded winners with lollipops.

Beauty Pageant Set

Names of those competing in the Miss Hoffman Estates contest will be announced Wednesday evening during a "Pepsi Party" at the home of Jaycee Dean Jelden, entry chairman.

Deadline for entering the contest is Thursday. The pageant will be held Aug. 28 at 8 p.m. in James B. Conant High School.

MRS. THERESA DITTRICH can be found from morning until dark working in her garden. Customers marvel that this tiny, wisp of a woman can maintain such an extensive garden by hand at her age. Mrs. Dittrich is 86 years old.

Theresa Dittrich Makes The Most Of Her Garden Plot

by MARY B. GOOD

The raspberry lady is going to the Old Country.

Mrs. John Dittrich of Arlington Heights leaves for her Austrian vacation in just a few weeks.

The last time she went for a visit, the customs men gave her a hard time about the flower and radish seeds she was taking her nephew in Vienna. "They thought I had powder and needles. They took away my pocketbook, and I grabbed it right back," she said.

Almost everybody in the Scarsdale area of Arlington Heights knows about 86-year-old Mrs. Dittrich.

She is to gardening what Grandma Moses was to painting. All alone, Mrs. Dittrich grows and sells tomatoes, beans, carrots, currants, gooseberries, parsnips, pickles, kohlrabi and more — but especially raspberries — to all who call at her half acre plot.

MRS. DITTRICH'S berry patch is a sweet adventure in four different types of June and everbearing raspberries. "Raspberries build blood," she said, "and they're good for my diabetes."

Theresa Dittrich — (she likes to be called Tea (ti-a)) — has lived in Arlington Heights 50 years. She and her husband, John, a packer for Ekco Products who died in 1967, lived on Central Road when they first came to this country. They lost everything in the Depression, but soon recovered and bought their Rockwell Street acreage.

"I stayed up nights canning pickles for sale to help make money," Mrs. Dittrich said proudly.

No spot in the Dittrich plot is left unplanted. Mrs. Dittrich gardens Chinese-style. If she gets a little die-out on the raspberries, she interplants with potatoes. The carrots weren't doing so well, so she planted lettuce among them.

"I SAVE THREE ROWS of potatoes for myself," she said. The Austrians love their potatoes. "A little salt, a few caraway seeds — that's good," she smiled.

Customers marvel that this tiny, wisp of a woman can maintain such an extensive garden by hand at her age.

"If I didn't have my crops to keep me busy, I'd go crazy," she said.

It's hard for Mrs. Dittrich to get around — she gave up driving years ago.

So she relies on good neighbors who take her to church, give her insulin, and while she's gone will be watching out for "bad boys" who come and vandalize her salable crops.

Like many older persons, Theresa Dittrich doesn't want to be a burden. She gets around if she can, walking the mile or so to downtown Arlington Heights, and tending her garden which produces among the leafy foliage, a bountiful crop of dignity and self-sufficiency.

THE HARD-WORKING HANDS of the raspberry lady are always poised in a gesture of sharing. If you happen to stop by her house, she'll probably offer you some juicy "samplers."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We recently had new linoleum installed and immediately there appeared what seem to be permanent scuffs or scratches. We tried steel wool but with no luck. Is there anything we can do?—E. Lagunas.

Once these scratches appear, there isn't much you can do. Of course, it depends on the color of the covering — whether the scratches will be prominent. If you had some kind of dressing or wax which is recommended for your kind of floor, it would help prevent this kind of damage. You can still put some on, if you haven't as yet. This will cover up some of the damage and help prevent more.

When I got back a dress from the cleaners which had a curled collar cut on a bias, they had a curved piece of cardboard with adhesive on one side holding the collar in place. I peeled it off and put it under the collar, completely invisible, so the collar is in place while the dress is being worn — and also packed in a suitcase, it will hold its shape.

Dear Dorothy: I have access to many small wood samples which are used for plaques. I am enclosing one so you will know exactly what I have in mind. Do you know how to remove the sticker without harming the wood?—Sister Rosalie Thomann.

Red, White, Blue Bride's Colors

A patriotic color theme of red, white and blue was chosen by Lynn Ann Kirchhoff of Arlington Heights for her July 3 marriage to Douglas William Hughes, also of Arlington Heights.

Red, white and blue flowers decorated the altar and the bride carried a nosegay of red roses, white carnations and roses and blue baby's breath.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer

L. Kirchhoff, 440 S. Arlington Heights Road, Lynn Ann was given in marriage by her father as the Rev. C. David Stuckmeyer and the Rev. Edwin Stevens conducted the 1 p.m. wedding ceremony at Faith Lutheran Church.

She wore a gown of white organza over taffeta with long bishop sleeves and a dem i-bell skirt. Peau d'ange lace trimmed the hemline, the bodice and sleeves. The flowing sheer organza train had rose appliques scattered over it, and her two-tiered veil and blusher were held by a portrait band headpiece of peau d'ange.

CARRYING OUT the red, white and blue theme, the bridal attendants wore gowns of navy blue voile with embroidered white bodice, long sleeves and stand-up collar. They carried nosegays of red roses and white carnations and baby's breath tied with red and white streamers.

Sandra Reguly of Gary, Ind., the bride's cousin, was maid of honor, and Kim Hodges of Arlington Heights, a friend since childhood, and Vickie Mindock of Kaneakee, Ill., the bride's college roommate, were bridesmaids.

As Lynn approached the altar, she stopped to give her mother a white rose, and when the couple came back down the aisle, she gave a rose to her new mother-in-law. For something old she carried a handkerchief which her grandmother had made for her mother's wedding.

DOUGLAS, SON OF Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hughes, 848 S. Belmont, was attended by Charles Hughes, a friend from Chicago. Ushers were Robert Hughes of Arlington Heights, the groom's brother, and Russ Kirchhoff of Arlington Heights, the bride's brother.

Immediately following the wedding the 220 guests were entertained with a buffet and dancing at Elmhurst Country Club.

Both mothers chose the bride's patriotic theme for their wedding attire. Mrs. Kirchhoff wore a blue and white cotton lace dress with a glabella corsage that had a red rose in the center. Mrs. Hughes was in a red, white and blue silk print, and she carried a gardenia on her purse.

THE COUPLE honeymooned for a week in Sayner, Wis., and now are living in Elmhurst where the bride will enroll for her junior year at Elmhurst College. Graduated in 1969 from Arlington High, she attended Augustana College at Rock Island for two years. This summer she has been working for Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Arlington Heights.

Douglas was graduated in 1968 from Roosevelt Military Academy at Alledo, Ill. He is employed at Littlefuse, Inc., Des Plaines. He and Lynn met at the White Hen Pantry where both were working.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

The publication, "Monday," produced weekly by the Republican National Committee for contributors of $25 or more, devotes a great deal of its effort to hand-lapping the Democratic jockeying for the 1972 presidential nomination.

In a nutshell, "Monday" has insisted over recent weeks that whomever happens to be leading the race currently, it is just a matter of time until Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, steps forward to allow himself to be drafted.

In "Monday's" view, the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota has never amounted to more than a holding action for Kennedy. The publication points to a number of "Kennedy people" who have taken various campaign posts for McGovern and says they are simply awaiting the time when McGovern gets the word to pull out. Then, says "Monday," they will crank up their core organization to a full-blown Kennedy steamroller.

Until about a month ago, the newsletter saw Sen. Hubert Humphrey as the "odds-on favorite" for the nomination. But it declared publication of the Pentagon papers "his political obituary." While Humphrey had long maintained he had been a trusted confidant of Lyndon B. Johnson as vice president, "Monday" surmised his denial of any knowledge of the decisions described by the papers shattered that image, along with his candidacy.

IN A RECENT issue, "Monday" declares that Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine has taken over the front position and that he has gained the collusion of the Democratic National Committee in "putting in the fix" at the Miami Beach convention next August.

The national committee, says the publication, has violated its supposed neutrality by:

—Chairman Larry O'Brien's plan to limit primary campaign spending, which would make it hard for McGovern or others to overcome the Muskie lead.

—National committee treasurer Robert Strauss personally escorting Muskie on a political trip to Texas, where Strauss is a Democratic power.

—Ignoring convention reforms largely put forth by McGovern which would facilitate an open convention. (Monday

Sen. Edmund Muskie

Sen. Birch Bayh

notes there could be "nothing more horrifying" to an old pro like O'Brien than an "uncontrolled convention.")

"Monday" also notes that in order to enliven his campaign, McGovern must widen the gap between himself and Muskie and establish clear-cut issues with the Maine senator. But, it says, each time he attempts this, O'Brien brings the pressure to bear for party "unity."

AT THIS JUNCTURE, the GOP sees Muskie on the road to decisive victories in the Democratic primaries, with some possible stumbling blocks, such as:

—A defeat by either Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana or Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington in the Florida primary, a possibility "Monday" says is being hedged by O'Brien's spending controls.

—Muskie's own "ineptitude."

—An overt move by Kennedy.

—A long-shot — that New York Mayor John V. Lindsay might make the move to the Democratic party and take it all away from Muskie in the California primary.

Houser May Head Nixon's Stump

Speculation that Thomas J. Houser, former Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, will manage President Nixon's 1972 campaign in Illinois was strengthened this weekend by comments from Sen. Charles H. Percy.

Percy, visiting with friends at the home of former Hanover Township committeeman Eugene Devitt near Elgin, agreed that the appointment of Houser was "a strong possibility."

Percy obviously felt that Houser would be the man for the job. Houser managed for governor and his successful 1966 Senate campaign.

A former corporation counsel for the Burlington Railroad, the Arlington Heights resident was named assistant director of the Peace Corps by President Nixon in 1969 and last year was appointed to the Federal Communications Commission. He has resigned that position and will be succeeded Oct. 1 by U.S. Rep. Charlotte Reid of Aurora.

Suburban GOP committeemen confirmed that Houser was under strong

Devitt, who hosted about 115 persons at a reception for Percy Saturday, said he understood that both Houser and presidential adviser Donald Rumsfeld, former 13th District representative, were under consideration to handle the President's Illinois campaign. But he speculated that Percy's comment "zeros the job in on Houser."

Don Totten, Schaumburg township committeeman, agreed that Percy's statements indicated Houser "has the inside track."

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township committeeman, described Houser as "eminently qualified" for the election assignment. "His appointment would be an advantage because he knows both the Washington scene and the Illinois scene, so well," Hansen said.

Houser served as a campaign adviser to Nixon in 1968. He was part of a five-man team which toured 15 states from Massachusetts to California, briefing other campaign workers on election strategy.

consideration for the presidential campaign position and reacted strongly in favor of the possibility.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP Committeeman Richard Cowen told the Herald yesterday, "I know that there has been consideration of his appointment both on his part and on the part of the administration. If he is selected, I think he would be an excellent choice."

Schools Chief Tells Goals

Richard Martwick, new Cook County schools superintendent, yesterday placed individualized and vocational education as two of the top goals for his four-year term of office.

Martwick listed five goals after a brief swearing-in ceremony before County Clerk Edward J. Barrett. Martwick succeeds Republican Robert Hanrahan, who took office yesterday as U. S. regional commissioner of education.

About 250 persons including relatives, friends, and Democratic political leaders, packed into the Cook County Board assembly room to witness the swearing-in.

In his address, Martwick listed the needs for:

—Special education programs emphasizing the correction of perceptual problems.

—Reading laboratories with multilevel reading materials geared to the needs of students at all levels and with all interests.

—Improved design in construction of new schools as well as school facilities.

"TO PUT TOGETHER a system which works for all, obviously, is complex. It involves a hard look at the old systems and an open mind with regard to innovation. It demands a keen understanding of the people to be served — their needs, their desires, their aspirations," he said.

Later, he remarked, "Additional emphasis must be placed on vocational education. Of what benefit is it to technologically educate a person in a specialization where he cannot find employment and consequently find no measure of pride and fulfillment?"

He asserted his goal was to work toward producing a self-sufficient, progressive and even happier person. "I'm not being a Pollyanna in making the pursuit of happiness a goal," he said.

"Granted this is a dream, but we intend to begin. The pace we set in striving to achieve this goal will be closely observed by many. The direction we take will be widely observed. This is no time for hesitation," he said.

He concluded, "Our history of achievement and progress must not be slowed down — we must continue to progress and achieve."

After the speech, Martwick introduced John Leigh, his deputy superintendent, who presented Martwick with a plaque of appreciation.

IQ Tests Have 'Little Meaning' To Minorities

"There are more than 60 million minority Americans living in this country for whom the standardized IQ and achievement tests given in the public schools have little or no meaning," George W. Jones, director of the National Education Association's Center for Human Relations, says.

"To discuss the academic success or failure of a child without a thorough knowledge of his environment, culture, language, mental, physical and psychological state is as futile as examining a moon rock while under the impression that it was picked up on the streets of Dearborn, Mich.," Jones continues.

Recent controversy over genetic inferiority began in 1969 with the publication of a report by Arthur R. Jensen, professor of educational psychology and a research psychologist at the Institute of Human Learning, University of California. In essence his 123-page essay stated Negro scores averaged about 15 points below the white average IQ scores. Freely translated this would mean black kids are born with less intelligence than white kids. In April, 1971, Jensen again broke into the news with the opinion that public schools were not cheating black children.

"One of the tragedies resulting from this debate," Jones observes, "is the emphasis on the black mentality. This emphasis obfuscates a larger and more critical national problem — the 40 million other citizens who are not in touch with the realities of the white middle-class culture and have enormous psychological, mental, and physical obstacles to overcome in order to relate to the standardized American dream."

There are, for example, 18 million poor whites, 12 million Spanish-speaking, 800,000 American Indians, 700,000 Orientals, 11 million first-generation foreign born not included in previous categories, in addition to 25 million blacks.

"WHEN YOU begin thinking of 'minorities' in terms of a third or more of our population, you are forced into examining what kinds of tests, expectations and standards are being applied in our public schools. How can a child who speaks Urdu or Lithuanian understand the questions, much less the answers, to an IQ test? How can an undernourished child concentrate on academic excellence? Why should a migrant child attempt to keep up with a nine-month school year when he knows that nearly 2,700,000 of his own kind rarely stay in one place for more than six months?" Jones asks.

Jensen and many other erudite and well-meaning scientists can debate the genetic issue for the next hundred years, but in the meantime something must be done to help a third or more of the 50 million children in our public school system to cope with these overwhelming odds.

"In another time we spoke with pride of America's diversity. Today we know that some of that diversity translates into the sick of mind and body, the poor, the undernourished, the foreign speaking, the non-white, the not-quite-establishment oriented. What does America have to offer these 60 million or more tax-paying human beings? What does education say to them in terms of future promise?" Jones observes.

Local, state, and federal money will fill the empty stomachs, and perhaps, in a generation or two, erase the genetic defects. Money can put shoes on the Indian child, and money will hire and train language teachers or linguistic experts who recognize ghettoese as a means of communication.

"One thing money can't do is turn people around in the way they feel — it cannot change their attitudes about the ecology of humanitarianism."

Circus Will Appear For Randhurst Anniversary

A drum roll, the cymbals' clash, and out by the clowns before each performance.

Circus performances are scheduled at 9:30 a.m., 3 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays; at 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays; and at 3 p.m. on Sundays.

Another highlight of the ninth birthday celebration, a fireworks show, will be presented on the evening of Friday, Aug. 13.

This year, however, the all-new show will be playing in the midst of circus decor. The Mall has been hung with circus posters, clown faces, pennants and other bright decorations.

"Our patrons really enjoy the circus," commented Margaret Irwin, promotion coordinator of the Randhurst Merchants Association.

"That's why we're trying to heighten the atmosphere even more than usual. For instance, the red-and-white coats of the circus band are new and sparkling, just like the performers' costumes."

THIS YEAR, the starring acts include unicyclists on a tight wire, teeterboard gymnasts, perch-pole balancers, and clowns.

All of the headliners, according to Ringmaster Earl Tegge, have appeared on variety shows such as the Hollywood Palace, the Ed Sullivan Show, or the Las Vegas "Circus Circus."

"The Dam Brothers are unicyclists who perform on tight wires; the Orlandos are a family of balancers who are held aloft on a perch-pole by the father; the team of Orlando and Celma are teeterboard flyer-gymnasts; and Clowns Bill Sweeney and his teen-aged partner, Twinkles, are masters of all trades," Tegge commented.

On opening day, helium-filled balloons will be distributed to young spectators at every performance, according to Mrs. Irwin. "On all other days, through Aug. 15, regular souvenir balloons will be handed

Wardens Change Image

Time was when all a game warden did was hide in the weeds to make a pinch, or trudge through the swamps and fields of Illinois in pursuit of game and fish violators.

But like everything else, his image has changed over the years and so have his responsibilities. Today his duties have increased and so have the services he performs.

He receives much more training, for one thing, in everything from law enforcement to human behavior. And when asked, he can teach a class on the various aspects of conservation, from good forestry to the importance of wildlife management.

It wasn't always like this. In fact, in the old days the only training he received was a pat on the back and the keys to his car.

STUDENTS AT THE University of Illinois recently watched the graduation of 20 new conservation law enforcement officers from the University's police academy. The 6-week course is mandatory for all new game wardens.

In the past 10 years four major programs have changed the conservation department's law enforcement division: the Boat Registration and Safety Act, the Civil Disaster Act; Hunter Safety Instruction and the nationally reorganized citizen safety program for state park users.

Head of the law enforcement division is "Big Bill" Miller, a rugged 20-year veteran of the department who started as a game warden.

Miller is a firm believer that the primary job of a law enforcement officer is to serve the public.

"OUR SAFETY programs provide us with the chance to teach the proper use of our natural resources. Because our men service the forestry, wildlife, fish and parks divisions of the department, a working knowledge of these fields is imperative for our men to do a public service job," said Miller.

Miller is a strong advocate of proper training.

"We often get kidded by other department personnel as to the days our men spend in training, but I don't know how else we can meet our responsibilities," said Leonard Devers, deputy chief.

However, all the training and increased emphasis on social problems have paid rich dividends. Two years ago the state parks were facing increasing problems in civil disorder. Major state parks were almost closed.

A variety of security plans were offered: Miller presented his division's plan, which called for the permanent stationing of law enforcement officers in the most heavily-used parks. Moreover, advanced reservations were required for groups over 25 and adult chaperones at a ratio of one adult per 15 youths were required prior to admittance to parks.

IN ADDITION, the citizen safety program established maximum limits of attendance at each major park. Once a park reaches its limits, the gates are closed and visitors are routed to other facilities.

Miller further added to the program by establishing a special 10-man task force that can be moved to a park within hours if problems begin.

"We stressed that our job in the parks was to be friendly and have the people enjoy the park. If trouble starts, we are ready to move only after everything else fails," he said.

The park security program has been successful. During the summer of 1970, not one major incident was reported in any state recreational facility. The National Park and Recreation Association has recommended the Illinois Program as a model for other state park systems to use.

LET'S SEE 'EM BOYS — Although the duties and services performed by game wardens today have increased, they must still act as law enforcement officers.

And checking the hunting licenses of goose hunters is still routine as it was 50 years ago.

Vet Fights Against War After Slaughter In Vietnam

by TOM TIEDE

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Twenty-five-year-old Scott Camil is attending the University of Florida with hope of becoming an attorney. Thus he is totally aware of all the implications of any confession of manslaughter.

But he confesses anyway, here and now.

Sort of. He says he has "stabbed and shot" or otherwise liquidated many people, perhaps 300 or more. He adds he has done away with them individually, acting only on impulse, and in large groups.

He has seen the victims burn up, blow apart, or fall from a hundred snail wounds. He has heard them beg, scream, or just moan in bewilderment as they die.

Babies, old men, everyone.

"I stopped counting after I killed about 290," he observes, shrugging his shoulders. "At least that's what I think the count was. It was impossible to make an accurate count. Sometimes there were too many." He pauses to scratch his arm. "Like, I remember there was a farmer once. I had just gotten a new rifle and I wanted to see how well it worked. So I took off down a little road and the farmer was the first person I met. Well, anyway, the rifle worked fine."

THE SOLDIER COMES HOME

IT SHOULD be quickly pointed out here that Scott Camil's extraordinary confession covers a period of time he spent fighting the war in the Republic of Vietnam. He was there for 20 months with the 1st Division Marines.

But the confessor is no longer a Marine. In fact he's the very antithesis of such. He won a half-dozen medals in Vietnam, he was a commendable soldier in every way — but now he hates the memory of ever having worn the service uniform.

He's a veteran, but what a veteran. He's a full-bearded, stringy-haired barefoot member of the very-civilian civilian population. He wishes a pox on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He wishes the Marine Corps would have drowned on the shores of Tripoli. He wishes all the U.S. military rifles would jam forever.

To make his feelings known, and to act on them to the maximum, Camil has joined 15-20,000 other ex-servicemen in a group known as Vietnam Veterans Against the War. (The same people who marched on Washington this spring to turn in their combat ribbons.) Camil is Southeast regional coordinator for the organization. He operates his headquarters out of a sweaty, roach-infested apartment on the edge of the U. of Florida's "student ghetto." He says his branch of the VVAW is small (30 members) but spunky. Its purpose: "To get everybody out of the war, goddam it, before we kill every human thing over there."

SO IT IS that Camil wants his confession of manslaughter to be printed "without an excuse." He says the fact he killed while a soldier is no justification for it. He believes the nation must face up to the truth that Vietnam has given U.S. personnel license to kill at will. And his reason for confessing, he says, is to show how U.S. soldiers are "duped to commit such crimes."

"Some of the people I killed were nothing but helpless civilians. They didn't have weapons or anything. They weren't any threat. They'd be living in, say, a village that happened to be in the way of the U.S. Marines. And that was too bad for them. Unbelievable? Sure. But that's how it is in Vietnam. That's why I'll do anything, even confess myself, to end the slaughter over there."

THERE IS little in Scott Camil's past to suggest the antiwar rebel he has become. For most of his life — until this year, in fact — he was rather a straight arrow. Bred and educated in the conservative South — Miami, he was not so attracted to the pot-and-protest style of his generation in other parts of the nation. Camil was reared by a cop and a teacher, he remembers the American flag waving over his home every Fourth of July. And so: "I didn't really think much about politics and that kind of thing. I played sports, I loved to bowl. And the only thing I knew about war was the John Wayne movies."

When he was old enough, in 1965, he volunteered for military service. The Marine Corps, no less. Because "I'd been taught it was my patriotic duty." And because, "Frankly, at 10 years old, I was quite gung-ho. I was full of God and country. I had taken a required course in high school on communism, and it left me very suspicious of the little red bastards. So I wanted to get a crack at them. I wanted to be a real man, kill the commies, that kind of thing."

To be sure, Camil recalls, the Marine Corps was the right place for "that kind of thing." Leatherneck. Semper Paratus. The Halls of Montezuma. Parris Island. Camil says the 10 weeks he spent in basic training were the worst days of his life — "much worse than combat" — and taught him little but hate.

"WE COULDN'T talk to each other in training. We had one hour each day to do personal things, like write letters, or go to the potty. We worked 16 hours a day. We were treated like dirt. The drill instructors called us maggots or lice. If you screwed up, somebody would cuff you around. I.K., I know that people think the Marine Corps doesn't abuse the recruits any more. Bull! The drill instructors think SOP (Standard Operating Procedure) stands for Sock-em or Punch-em. And pity the guy who ever complained."

So, Camil says, he suffered in silence. And each night for 10 weeks he says he was ordered, with the others, to lay attention in bed for the "Marines Prayer."

"Another day in camp, Sir. Every day is a holiday and every meal is a feast. Pray for war, pray for war, pray for war. God bless the Marine Corps. God bless the drill instructor. Pray for war."

As it happened, such training was not lost on the young recruit. It was meant to turn him into a killer, and he says it did. I didn't like the Corps. I hated the loss of my freedoms. But I learned to be hungry for war. And when I was sent to Vietnam (in 1966), I remember I was just itching to kill the enemy."

KILL HE DID, he asserts. Often illegally, usually in combat zones near Da Nang, and always with Bravo and Charlie companies of the 1st Bn. 1st Marines.

"We did everything," he says now. "Like, once I saw some buddies take dead prisoners, cut their heads off and put them on stakes. Another time we chased the whole population out of a village and set fire to it; I counted 50 bodies of women and children we killed there. Another time, I saw a U.S. helicopter take two prisoners up in the air, and I saw the prisoners later drop out of the 'copter to their death. I remember we used to booby trap the dead bodies of people we shot. I remember we used white phosphorus grenades to burn people out of bunkers. I remember sometimes when we found enemy soldiers who wanted to surrender to us, we'd ignore their begging and just shoot them dead."

And much, much more:

"I saw women raped. I saw a man staked to the ground and his intestines cut out. I saw our medics inject some kind of killing fluid into the veins of POWs. It was terrible. But nobody cared. We thought of people there as less than animals. Well, if a little puppy was shot, we'd all feel very bad about it. But dead 'gooks' were another matter. That's the way the damn war there is."

THE DAMN WAR that Scott Camil claims to have seen and fought in Vietnam did not sink into his conscience until well after he had seen it or fought it. During the activity, and for a long time after he had come home, he continued to be an anti-Communist hawk, and believed everything he had done was reasonable.

Then, he says, he read the Geneva Conventions. And for the first time he began to question, to wonder, to suspect. "The change in me was gradual at first. I just grew a little mustache. The hardest part was admitting to myself that I was wrong. I had always believed in my nation, in my government. Now all of a sudden there was all this contrary evidence. I let the mustache go to a Fu Manchu. Pretty soon, I had a big beard. I was ashamed of what I had been. So I suppose, in a way, I decided to become somebody else."

The somebody he became is, as he sees it, a soldier for peace.

And so Camil is back in battle. As a VVAW officer he says he has spent some time skirmishing in Congress for anti-Vietnam legislation; "You might guess Florida lawmakers have been less than warm to the idea. Rep. Robert Sikes told a group of us once that we ought to have anchors tied on our feet and be thrown overboard at sea." He says his group shows antiwar movies, holds various peace demonstrations, and tries to solicit new membership; "We had one guy in Brunswick, Ga., who was disowned by his father when he joined. He was a former Marine. His father is a Brunswick city councilman."

BUT THE heaviest artillery in Scott Camil's new war is his confession of manslaughter. He claims it is documented with dates, unit nomenclatures, even map coordinates identification. Recently, with a member of Naval intelligence witnessing, Camil formally gave the information to authorities. In his own hand, he wrote: "I Scott Camil, 265-74-3503, hereby make the following voluntary statement..."

"During my time in Vietnam I witnessed flagrant abuses of the Geneva convention..." And there followed several pages of the atrocities mentioned above.

Despite the veteran's admissions, it is unlikely he will ever be charged or prosecuted for the alleged incidents. For one thing, he is a civilian property now, immune to military law. For another thing, as he says, "if they start trying some men for such things, they'll have to deal with thousands of others."

But Camil will not go totally free. He cannot escape his own thoughts and he makes it clear he feels guilty for having served in the war. Perhaps this is why he believes so much in a poster which hangs on his wall. "Vietnam is not a war to be won or lost," the poster says, "it is a mistake to be corrected." Perhaps, Scott Camil, Vietnam veteran, hopes that by helping correct the war mistake, he can help correct his own as well. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

NEA Turns To Politics

The National Education Association (NEA), with its state and local affiliates organizing independent political action arms, is calling on two million individual teachers if any of its affiliates represent to become increasingly active in the political arena.

Donald Morrison, new NEA president, has emphasized that our nation has the financial resources to provide top-flight education for all children. But, the former San Diego teacher adds, "only political action — political muscle by the general public supported by the education profession — can bring this about."

That support by the profession, in the form of state and local political action units — groups completely independent of the NEA — represents one of the most dramatic trends in education today.

Twenty-eight states already have political action arms, six having been organized since January, 1970. Five other states are now organizing political units, and two more are committed. Thirty-five states will have state-level political action arms before long.

Teachers in the remaining 15 states are also using their political leverage for the improvement of education. In six states, local political action arms are in operation, and the other nine have some kind of political action, although not formally organized through the NEA.

Teachers not only speak out for candidates and issues that will bolster and foster improved education. Teachers in four states — California, Oregon, Washington, and Utah — make contributions through voluntary payroll deduction for political action, with contributions ranging from $2 to $10 a year.

Last year Utah raised $80,000. New York State, without the payroll deductions, had contributions and pledges in 1971 of $1 million and in 1972 hopes to raise $5 million. Nationwide, the 1970 contributions by the teaching profession through the political action arms were estimated at more than $300,000, while this year they may exceed $2 million.

The potential that might be channeled into supporting friends of education in their political campaigns is even more impressive. If each member of NEA and its affiliates contributed only $10 a year, this would provide $18 million of political backing.

What will teachers be doing in the 1972 state and local political campaigns? All the things that skilled and dedicated political workers do to advance the candidates and causes they believe in.

They will be answering phones at campaign headquarters, making calls, stuffing envelopes, handling clerical and secretarial functions, doing door-to-door canvassing in the precincts, passing out literature, making face-to-face contacts at shopping centers and on the streets.

Research for candidates on education and other issues will be another contribution by some teachers working in the political action units. And they'll help candidates in the public relations area, too. Last year in a Western state a local candidate who appeared to be helplessly behind won the election after the teachers' organization waged a highly effective media campaign.

Teachers have already demonstrated their power at the polls. After the November, 1970, general election.

Michael McCormack of the State of Washington said following his successful campaign for a U.S. House of Representatives seat: "I never could have made it without the teachers."

Victory occurred in Florida where Reubin Askew, backed strongly by teachers in his campaign for governor, defeated Claude Kirk Jr., the teacher-antagonist of the widely publicized 1968 Florida teacher strike. Teachers in Ohio, supporting a gubernatorial candidate as a group for the first time, helped put John Gilligan into office. With backing of California teachers, John Tunney defeated George Murphy for the U.S. Senate. Teachers appeared to tip the scales in another California contest in which a Negro, Wilson Riles, who had been persuaded by teachers to enter the race for chief state school officer, defeated incumbent Max Rafferty.

Teachers supported winning candidates for governor in six states, U.S. Senate in eight states, U.S. House in many contests, and state and local offices in hundreds of elections.

Such favorable results stemmed largely from following the admonition of an NEA leader to hold "elected officials accountable for every single thing they do and don't do in education." NEA did that, immediately before the 1970 general election. For the first time it notified each of its 1.1 million members of the voting records of U.S. senators and representatives on education issues.

In next year's election, teachers will certainly be no less active, especially in the states already having strong independent political action arms.

States that formed units recently are Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Carolina, and Virginia, while Connecticut and Hawaii have definite plans. Already organizing are Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Local Forest Preserve Is 12,000 Years Old

Mature forests are rarely found undisturbed by man, say biologists at DePaul University.

But Carle Woods in Des Plaines, a part of the Cook County Forest Preserve, is one of them.

The 60-acre sugar maple forest has been preserved almost intact on the flood plain of the Des Plaines River.

The more than 12,000-year-old forest, which has never been timbered or harvested, was the site recently of a field trip for 12 biologists enrolled in a summer institute conducted by DePaul University of the science teachers.

One of the 12 is Mrs. Marion B. Davis, 906 N. Beverly Ln., Arlington Heights, a biology teacher at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

The biologists examined types of soil, types and numbers of insects and the changing patterns of weather conditions.

The forest has a population of deer, pygmy rattlers, fox, skunk and opossum, plus several species of birds.

The forest itself is self-maintaining as long as it remains undisturbed and one of the reasons it is being studied is to better understand this maintenance system. Biologists think it could be a model for an agricultural system which could be self-maintained and still have a high rate of production.

In fact, DePaul scientists have been studying the woods here, conducting experiments on it, for more than 40 years.

Scientists have now concluded the forest has reached its maturity. The age of a forest, they say, is determined by the kinds of plant life it contains and the number and types of insects. Carle Woods has an unusually large number of insects which decompose litter, a trait common to older forests.

Military Spending Tops That For Education

For each 60 cents spent on public education in the United States, $1 is spent on the military establishment, according to a National Education Association (NEA) research report.

These figures contrast sharply with the ratios in Canada, where $2.50 is spent on education for each $1 on military items, and in Japan where the ratio is $5.40 for public education for each $1 of military expenditures, according to the latest available data.

Although the ratio of education-military expenditures in the Soviet Union is about the same as in the United States, the USSR puts a greater proportion of its Gross National Product into its schools than does this nation. The Soviet Union spends about 8 per cent of its GNP on the military and a similar percentage on education, whereas the United States allocates 9.3 per cent of the GNP to military expenditures and only 5.4 per cent to public education.

During the past year various groups and organizations have demanded a change in the way tax dollars are spent in the United States. They have called for "a reordering of national priorities for less emphasis on military spending and increased investment in America," Wilbert Bolliger explains in the report, "Financial Status of the Public Schools, 1971," which for the first time includes a section on "World Military and Public Education Expenditures."

Bolliger, a Pomona, Calif., teacher, is chairman of the Committee on Educational Finance which prepared the publication.

WORLD MILITARY expenditures reached an estimated total of $204 billion in 1970, the eighth annual report reveals. This was an increase of 50 per cent since 1964, and a real net increase of 20 per cent, discounting inflation.

"If the United States were to reallocate all military and public education dollars on a 1-to-1 ratio, funds for public education would increase to $63.5 billion from $41.9 billion with no increase in the combined military and education budgets," says the report.

The United States also compares unfavorably with several nations when educational costs are related to national income. "From all levels of government and from all sources of funding, the United States is spending 6.9 per cent of its national income on education," the report points out. "By comparison Canada and Israel are spending 9.6 and 9.2 per cent, respectively, on education; Denmark, 8.1 per cent; Sweden, 7.9 per cent; and the Netherlands, 7.6 per cent."

Among problems that continue to plague school financing in the United States, the report notes, are high interest rates and high rejection of school bond

29 On Honor Roll

A total of 1,796 Northern Illinois University undergraduates including 29 residents of Arlington Heights were listed as being on the academic honor roll for the first semester released recently by the University.

To achieve the "dean's list" at NIU, a student must receive a grade-point average of 3.5 or above for 12 or more semester hours taken at the university in DeKalb. The 3.5 represents a B plus under Northern's grading system which ranks an A as four points.

The students who made the honor roll represent 10.8 per cent of the 16,536 full-time undergraduates at the university for the first semester. Of the list, 211 received all A's, including five of the Arlington Heights residents.

The straight A students were Susan Brooks, 418 E. Maude St.; Scott Fredrickson, 307 W. Hintz Rd.; William Jasper, 822 S. Roosevelt Ave.; Susan Wood, 729 N. Fernandez Ave.; and Robert Young Jr., 1303 E. Clarendon Ave.

Other local residents who made the honor roll were Linda Albert, 8 N. Regency Dr. E.; Dennis Bartelt, 1126 S. Wilke Rd., Apt. 403; Catherine Bieber, 1136 N. Dunton Ave.; Patricia Erbach, 311 S. Patton Ave.; and Christine Greene, 906 N. Douglas Ave.

More include Eric Hartley, 126 N. Waterman Rd.; Sue Herbert, 512 Knob Hill Dr.; Herbert Irlbacher, 423 S. Kennicott St.; Joanne Kieca, 821 N. Salem Ave.; and Kathleen Koren, 226 S. Donald Ave.

Other local residents include Susan Kost, 304 W. George St.; Karyl McKown, 206 S. Gibbons Ave.; Donnie McReynolds, 538 S. Lincoln Ln.; Linda Michael, 505 E. Ivy Ln.; and Debra Moss, 1018 N. Beverly Ln.

Additional residents include Deirdre Offen, 418 W. Wing St.; Barbara Pautz, 421 N. Dwyer Ave.; Steven Schaferman, 730 S. Kaspar Ave.; Diane Simpson, 1018 N. Belmont Ave.; and Marian Smentek, 1806 N. Mitchell Ave.

More residents include Laura Steude, 21 Derbyshire Ln.; Jane Tagge, 715 S. Dryden Pl.; Stanley Taylor, 719 N. Kaspar Ave.; and Leslie Wolters, 821 N. Wilshire Ln.

your 16, but the heart lead has hit you with only one stopper in the suit. You have to develop two club tricks if you want to score your game.

You hold off until the third heart lead. Then you take your ace and play a couple of rounds of diamonds before coming off dummy with the deuce of clubs. East plays the seven and you go up with your king. West shows out and, while you are over one hurdle, things look mighty bad because you can only count up to a total of eight tricks.

The only way to develop a ninth is to set up a second club and there sits East with three apparent tricks in the suit.

They are only apparent if you do a little counting. You play out the last two diamonds and East chucks two spades. He can't afford to chuck a club.

Now you know that East started with four clubs, two diamonds, three hearts, two spades and two other cards. If you have watched the play of the hearts, you can assume that these two other cards are both spades. You have a complete count. You cash the two spades and lead a club to dummy's jack. East wins the trick but is down to clubs and has to give you your ninth trick.

'Six Wives' Top Ratings

by ROBERT MUSEL
NEW YORK (UPI) — King Henry VIII of England was popular with his people though he beheaded two wives as a form of instant divorce, toyed with the idea of sending a third to the chopping block and changed the religion of the nation so he could marry still another of his six queens.

His executioners were busy dispatching Catholics, and an occasional Protestant, at the stake or with the axe but to most of Henry's subjects this was simply an exercise in the divine right of the monarch. They were more interested in his efforts to produce the male successor he thought necessary to ensure the safety of their throne.

Ironically he achieved a son only on a trial run with a mistress. His wives gave him two daughters.

OUT OF THE DARK and devious rel-

gious and political intrigue of that 16th century world and Henry's quest for an heir the British have fashioned a series that stands high among the better things television drama has accomplished thus far. Sunday night the first of the six self-contained 90-minute dramas came to CBS-TV with the premiere of "Catherine of Aragon," Henry's first marriage to the widow of his own brother.

In Britain the series "The Six Wives of Henry VIII" won many awards and topped the ratings. They deserve to do well here for they are beautifully acted, beautifully costumed though closer inspection will show that all that glitters on the cast is not gold nor is it jewelry. The BBC bought $250 worth of nuts, bolts and washers at a hardware shop and used them, suitably shaped and sprayed, to adorn a prize-winning array of court costumes.

Only one of the stars plays all through the series — Keith Michell who, as Henry, ages week by week in a remarkable combination of acting and makeup from the handsome young man of last night to the vast, drooping figure whose colossal armor still helps draw tourists to the Tower of London. Henry died at 56 from a number of afflictions; in those days the field of love could be as dangerous as the field of war.

IN THE PREMIERE Michell leaped quickly from a brave attempt to look 18 (he's actually in his forties) to the age of 36 when he decided to divorce Catherine after 18 years of marriage because she had produced only a daughter — and he has long passed the point of no return in his dalliance with one of the court ladies, Anne Boleyn.

The Lighter Side Play Loud To Delight The Audience

by DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The other day I read an article about a rock group that was about to fold because none of its members could sing or play very well. So the manager made a few changes and the group became a smash hit.

"Do you mean, sir, that the manager hired some better musicians and singers?"

No, the manager bought some bigger amplifiers. He replaced the 2,000-watt amplifiers, which most run-of-the-mill rock groups use, with 4,000-watt, and at some concerts even revved up to 8,000 watts.

In other words, when music was played badly at average volume, the audience was disenchanted. But when the sound was made twice or four times as loud, the audience was delighted.

THERE IS A message in this for all of us.

The message is: If you do something badly, don't waste time trying to improve it. Augment it. Increase the magnitude of your ineptness and the world will beat a path to your door.

Volume, however, is only one area in which rock groups, with their desperate quest for distinguishing styles, are advancing the frontiers of music.

If the following rock groups haven't been formed yet, they soon will be:

The Hart Hats — A five-member group featuring four guitars and a riveting machine.

When the riveting machine was first introduced as a substitute for conventional percussion instruments, audiences went wild over the new beat.

Some of the more discerning critics complained, however, that the sound lacked authenticity.

TO MEET THESE objections, the Hart Hats began performing on steel girders, with the rhythm section actually driving rivets. Thus far, they have turned out three albums, two office buildings and a parking garage.

The Flingers — America's latest rock sensation. This group plays no instruments at all. Its members simply stand on the stage and throw rocks at the audiences.

Up The Audience — Like the Flingers, this group never plays a note. It gained fame by failing to show up for concerts. Failure to appear causes audiences to riot, breaking all store windows in the neighborhood. Already booked solid for college concerts next fall.

'Saucers' Soar At Frisbee Contest

Guy Lewis about to latch on to a frisbee.

Frisbee fun got to be serious competition when Hoffman Estates youngsters competed in final contests to select a "Frisbee Champion" to represent the Hoffman Estates Park District at the State finals.

It looked like flying saucer time at Voegel Park last week as each playground "champ" tried to make a "butterfingers" out of his opponents.

Straight soars, and right and left curving flights were some of the easier sections of the contest.

Body English seemed to help many of the youngsters latch on to the elusive flying frisbees when it was time for the backhand and between-the-legs catches.

Miss Gayle Kaplan, playground supervisor, put the 15 contestants through their paces and Rick Fleming, 13 of MacArthur Playground and Frank Moroski 11, of Voegel Park came out on top.

Fleming, backed up by runner-up Moroski claimed no special talent and reportedly comes by his frisbee ability "naturally."

Frisbee play is one of many of the Park District's special event on playgrounds. This contest and state and then international finals are sponsored by the International Frisbee Association.

Commissioner Raps New Board Room

Cook County Commissioner Charles Chaplin stood near his desk at the new assembly room for the Cook County Board of Commissioners. He looked up at the one or two reporters present and remarked:

"This is the new style, modern repulsive. It's haphazard. I forgot my dark glasses."

The target of Chaplin's annoyance — or amusement — was the decor and colors of the new fifth floor assembly room, and he wasn't the only commissioner with opinions about interior decoration.

Commissioner Floyd Fullin who entered the room just before the meeting began wore a pink shirt. He remarked, "you notice, I match." He later added, "when does the music start?"

Until yesterday, the commissioners had held their meetings in a drafty, barn of a room on the eleventh floor of the Cook County Building—a floor with few offices or office holders.

Monday morning, the commissioners sat in red velvet chairs in a semi-circle below board president George Dunne, who towered over them in a high-back midnight blue chair. To the rear, the audience sat on red and blue chairs.

The carpeting, red and gold circles on a background of blue, had dazzled the commissioners who visited the room before the meeting.

"I don't think those board room chairs have any place for a serious body. The press is going to need air line trays, remarked Chaplin.

At the end of the meeting, Dunne commented, "I personally don't think it looks so bad." While other commissioners wise-cracked about the color scheme — there seemed to be few other complaints — Commissioner William Harvey replied to Dunne:

"You and I don't have a generation gap."

The cost of the remodeled room is $60,000 and the decision to remodel the facility came when Gov. Richard Ogilvie was county board president.

Named Employee Of The Month

Joseph Gates, of 1670 Whitcomb, Des Plaines, is the employee-of-the-month at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. He has worked for the medical center as a houseman in the housekeeping department since January, 1968.

A part and full-time employee while attending high school, Joe is now a freshman at Harper College in Palatine. He is majoring in electronics.

Joe's family has had a long association with the medical center. His mother, a former housekeeping supervisor, was the center's first employee-of-the-year, and his brother-in-law, Bob Taylor, is presently a housekeeping supervisor as well as a former employee-of-the-month.

William W. Shields, administrative assistant for supportive services, said, "Joe is an exceptionally fine young man. He's very gregarious and has fun; but, at the same time, he works very hard and needs minimal supervision."

JOE'S BUSY work schedule leaves little spare time, but he does enjoy tinkering with radios and other electronic equipment. He finds it a fascinating but expensive hobby. Joe recently took on scuba-diving on a vacation trip to Devils Lake, Wisc.

County Board Approves Trailer Park Permit

A special use permit for a small trailer park near the intersection of Elmhurst and Higgins Road in Elk Grove Township was approved Monday by the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

The approval, which will permit only five trailers on a portion of the three-acre property, came on a roll call vote, after it appeared the permit had been rejected.

Commissioner Floyd Fullin of Des Plaines asked for the rejection as he said three violations of the county zoning ordinances had not been corrected. The board then seemingly approved this motion for denial without any vocal objection.

However, a motion was then made for a roll call vote, and Fullin's denial was rejected by an 8-6 margin, with only Democrat John Touhy voting with the five minority GOP members.

Board president George Dunne voted "pass."

The county zoning board of appeals had earlier approved a special use permit. Objections to the permit had been filed by Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village.

The special permit expires when trailer operations on property to the west of the site are terminated.

William Harris, county zoning commissioner, said later that no building permit has been issued for the property and that trailers were only allowed in recognized trailer camps.

He said the matter has been referred to the State's Attorney's office.

The commissioners' meeting for the first time in their new assembly room, also heard David Daniel, director of the Cook County public aid department, suggest personal delivery of welfare checks to ease the threat of mail theft.

Daniel was responding to charges made last week concerning fraud in his office. He said that steps had been taken to dismiss the employees responsible for the fraud.

On Dean's List

Elaine M. Grimsell, a junior at Augustana College in Rock Island, was named to the dean's list there recently. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Grimsell, 1825 Locust Ln., Mount Prospect.

Beachcombing Great But Hawaii Has More

What comes to your mind when you think of Hawaii? Golden beaches . . . rolling surf . . . grass skirts and hula girls?

Or do you think of the warm welcome with garlands of flowers, ukuleles and shouts of "A-lo-ha!" you've heard that incoming passengers get when their ship sails into Honolulu?

This is all true. Everybody smiles, and the 50th state IS a vacation paradise with its breathtaking seascapes and grassy mountains sweeping down to palm-treed beaches.

But Hawaii is not a place to go just because it's beautiful. It's a place to participate — to become involved — to enjoy.

Hawaii, of course, is not just one island but a whole chain of lovely islands, the largest of which is called "Hawaii."

Your vacation will probably start on the island of Oahu. Here is the lively Hawaiian capital, Honolulu. It's an exciting city with a delightful combination of American, Polynesian, and Oriental cultures. Oahu also offers the splendor of Waikiki Beach, the famous surfing and sunning spot rimmed with fabulous hotels and posh specialty shops. You can see Pearl Harbor, the awesome view from the mountains at Nuuanu Pali, the soaring volcanic crater of Diamond Head, the famous Blow Hole where ocean waves shoot up like a geyser.

Other islands are Hawaii, three times larger than all the others combined; Maui, Kauai, Molokai, Niihau, Lanai, and Kahoolawe.

What an array of pleasures Hawaii offers for all kinds of visitors — sun-worshippers, sportsmen, swingers and singles, surfer, skin divers and sightseers.

People who follow the sun appreciate the always warm weather at this latitude. The coldest temperature ever recorded in Honolulu at sea level is 52. The influence of the mountains on the breezes allows the beaches to be bathed in sunlight almost constantly, although rain falls frequently farther inland, keeping the land abloom with tropical flowers. And the sun seems different in Hawaii. It is intense without seeming hot. Even the palest newcomer soon takes on a healthy glow.

Hawaii is a sportsman's paradise. There's exciting adventure for those who want to fish, surf, hunt, camp, scuba dive, hike, play golf, or try a dozen other sports in the most exotic setting in the USA.

Fishermen find it hard to leave. The marlin capital of Hawaii is a sleepy village called Kaihala on the sun-splashed Kona Coast of the Big Island. A colorful fleet of boats anchors in the bay there. Every year in July or August, fishermen from all over the world compete in the annual Hawaiian Invitational Billfish Tournament. Charter boats can be rented at Kewalo Basin in Honolulu, Nawiliwili Harbor on Kauai and Lahaina on Maui. Besides big game fishing you can try shore casting — or go for the rainbow trout in the mountain streams above Waimea Canyon on Kauai.

If you've always had a hankering to go skin diving, Hanauma Bay on Oahu, 15 minutes from Waikiki, is an ideal spot to begin. Scuba equipment is available for rent on all the islands.

Rental campers are obtainable on every major island of Hawaii and there are beautiful beach parks where camping is free. If you get a permit from the County Park headquarters.

Hiking is great in Hawaii, and a perfect way to appreciate the unbelievable beauty of the Islands. There are many well-marked trails to follow.

Swingers visiting the Islands will find plenty of ways to do their own thing. There's Kalakaua Avenue, Honolulu's "Great White Way" and the bright lights of Waikiki. There are fun discotheques and coffee houses and folk singing hideaways.

Sightseeing some of the most glorious scenery in the world is probably still the number one visitors' pastime in Hawaii. And island-hopping is the most fun of all. There are some tours of two to seven days in which you stay overnight in beautiful resort hotels on the neighboring islands. Some of these package tours also include meals and others allow you to have your own choice in selecting restaurants.

Other sightseeing tours of the eight major islands take in everything in a single day. You fly at low altitudes and see spectacular views from your own extra-large private window while your copilot guide fills you in on history and facts as you take in all eight of the islands.

Did You Know?

Travel remains the biggest leisure activity. Americans spend $9 billion annually on travel — $34 billion domestically and $5 billion abroad.

Nassau in the Bahamas was named for one of King William III's spare titles.

Young Americans are flying more than their elders. A Gallup poll conducted recently showed that 54 per cent in the 21-34 age group are flying the airlines as opposed to 40 per cent in the 50-years-plus age group.

SUN, SAND AND SURF: Sun-drenched beaches, always a favorite of visitors to Hawaii, dot the Islands' miles of shoreline. As tourists bask in the sunlight, a lonely catamaran gently bobs near the shore, waiting for another load of tourists who will venture out into the ocean. (United Air Lines photo)

HEY, YOU FISHERMEN—You haven't lived until you've fished in the Florida Keys. A couple of four-day, four-night Fishing Safaris are available at Islamorada. Package price includes licensed skippers and guides, land accommodations at air-conditioned motels, all meals, use of rental car for transportation between Miami International Airport and Islamorada, and all basic fishing costs.

Islamorada is one of our favorite spots in the Keys. Two of our favorite people, ex-Chicagoans Millard and Jeanne Wells, operate the Wells Studio-Gallery on the Overseas Highway in Islamorada.

Millard, who formerly owned a successful commercial design studio in Chicago, is now one of the top-notch artist-designers in the Florida Keys, and also conducts drawing and painting classes — including one for tourists spending time in the Keys.

IT'S A LONG, LONG WAY FROM THE COLD SANDWICH! Trader Vic's Service, a new dimension in inflight dining, was introduced this week by United Air Lines on selected routes flown with 747 and DC-10 Friend ships. Featuring Pacific-type foods (how does tenderloin steak Malagasy, Indonesian lamb roast with chutney peach, or Cornish game hen rea strike you?) and tropical drinks, the new service marks the first time Trader Vic's famous restaurant fare has been made available to airborne passengers.

Some friends of ours are about to join the "big spenders at Shannon."

Their jet lands at Shannon International Airport today, and no doubt the whole plane load will rush toward the fabulous duty free bargains. Well, wouldn't you? — to get mohair tweed jackets for around $35.00 that sell in the U.S. for close to a hundred?

Shannon was the world's first duty free airport shop, and the 750,000 airline passengers who hit there last year spent $6.25 million in the 18,000 square foot shop with its 16 mini-boutiques.

Of course, you don't have to jet to Ireland to get in on Shannon's buys (Although it's more fun that way!) You can order by catalogue, pay duty and postage and still save up to 50 per cent.

THINKING OLYMPIC? Advance admission tickets to the 11th Olympic Games in Sapporo, Japan (February 3-13, 1972) are now on sale. Ticket orders must be combined with an application

Business Today

by BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department egg inspectors report that some 750 small egg product plants have been put out of business by a new federal inspection law which took effect July 1.

But, a department official said today, agents are continuing their search for small operators who might be ignoring the new law — in some cases because they haven't yet heard about it.

Under the new law, a mandatory federal inspection program is now in effect for all plants which break eggs to produce dried, frozen or liquid egg items. To qualify for inspection, plants must meet stringent federal sanitation and equipment standards, which include a requirement for expensive pasteurization machinery.

H. Connor Kennett, deputy director of the department's poultry division, said a total of 136 U.S. egg processing plants are currently operating under continuous supervision of federal or state inspectors. This total includes 93 plants which previously had been covered by a voluntary federal inspection program.

Kennett said an estimated 750 small plants which earlier had been occasionally producing small quantities of egg products have stopped production. In many cases, Kennett said, this was because the cost of needed pasteurization equipment was too high for the small volume of business.

Under the new law, a producer operating without federal inspection can be subject to prosecution with penalties ranging up to a one-year prison term and fine of up to $10,000. A producer who knowingly distributes an adulterated egg product can face prison terms of up to three years and fines of up to $10,000.

Combined Insurance Calls Meeting

Combined Insurance Company of America has called a special shareholders meeting Tuesday, Aug. 17, to approve a 20 per cent share distribution.

The meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the Buckingham Room at the Continental Plaza Hotel, 900 N. Michigan, Chicago.

W. Clement Stone, board chairman and chief executive officer, said that if approved at the special meeting, the proposed one-for-five additional shares would be distributed Sept. 24 to holders of record Sept. 3.

This would mark the 18th year in succession that Combined has distributed additional shares.

To provide for the proposed share distribution, shareholders will be asked at the special meeting to increase the company's authorized shares to 25,762,334 shares at $1.00 par value from the present 21,268,612 shares.

This will also provide an additional 200,000 shares to continue an existing qualified stock option plan.

At present, the company has 21,069,046 shares issued and outstanding.

Shareholders also will be asked to act upon the nomination of David E. Bradshaw, Chicago attorney and businessman, as a director of Combined to replace his wife, Mrs. Donna S. Bradshaw, who has resigned. As president of the W. Clement and Jessie V. Stone Foundation, Mrs. Bradshaw said she found her philanthropic duties too pressing to continue as a director of Combined and other business organizations.

Bradshaw is a senior partner in the law firm of Bradshaw, Speranza, Verkerka and Brunlik, Chicago. In December of 1970, he was appointed by President Nixon as an incorporator and director of the National Railroad Passenger Corp. (Amtrak). He is a director of the United America Bank, Chicago, and is a special assistant attorney general for the state of Illinois.

Throughout the years in which Combined Insurance Co. has issued share distributions, it has continued to pay cash dividends at the same rate of 10 cents a share per quarter on the new shares. As a result, the regular cash dividend yield has increased commensurate with each share distribution.

In addition, in recent years the corporation has paid extra cash dividends in the fourth quarter on both old and new shares. Last year, the extra cash dividend amounted to 15 cents a share.

Combined is the parent corporation of a group of five insurance companies.

Taxpayers Ask The IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) My car was stolen and has not been recovered. I purchased it a month ago for $1,000, but it is really worth much more than that. When I compute my theft loss deduction next year, can I base it on the worth of the car rather than what it cost me?

A) No. Your loss would be the lesser of the cost or fair market value. In your case, if you had no insurance, your deduction would be $900 — the $1,000 or cost, less the $100 limitation imposed by the law on a personal casualty or theft loss deduction. For more information, obtain a free copy of IRS Publication 547, Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts, by sending a postcard to your IRS District office.

Q) I pay the premiums on my son's medical insurance. Are these premiums considered part of the total support I furnished when I determine if I can claim him as a dependent?

A) Yes. Medical insurance premiums are included as an item of support, although benefits under such policies are not.

A) Can a self-employed individual set up his own retirement plan?

A) Yes. If you are in business for yourself, you may deduct your contributions to a self-employed retirement plan, provided that the contributions are based on earned income and certain requirements are met. You can work in your business either full or part-time.

For details send a postcard to your local IRS District office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publications 560, Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals, and 566, Questions and Answers on Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals.

Q) I work on a farm. Can I have income tax withheld from my pay?

A) You can if your employer agrees. You may then request voluntary withholdings by filing with him a Form W-4, Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate.

Q) This summer I'm receiving college credits for working as a student intern for a state legislator. I'm required under the grant to do some routine office work and perform other assignments for the legislator for which I receive a salary. Is the salary I receive for this work taxable?

A) Yes. You must include in gross income amounts that you receive for your services.

American Can Co. Earnings Decrease With Higher Sales

American Can Co. recently reported decreased earnings on slightly increased sales for the second quarter of 1971 as compared to 1970.

Earnings of $16,270,000 or 88 cents per common share were reported on sales of $479,218,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1971 as compared to earnings of $23,813,000 of $1.30 per share on sales of $477,223,000 for the comparable 1970 period.

For the first half of 1971 earnings were $23,032,000 or $1.22 per common share on sales of $914,499,000 versus 1970 first half earnings of $38,472,000 or $2.09 per share on sales of $984,681,000.

William F. May, chairman and President, stated that the decreased earnings in the second quarter were largely due to lower sales of beer cans resulting from temporary dislocations in the market place due to a strike at most company can making locations in the first quarter, together with competitive pricing adjustments in the company's metal can markets which largely began in the last half of 1970.

Continuing promotion allowances and higher labor and material costs in the company's paper operations also reduced earnings in spite of a 7 per cent increase in sales.

Mr. May said that relocation costs in the recently acquired printing operations of World Publishing Company and lower earnings in the M&T Chemicals operations also contributed to the reduction in second quarter earnings.

The outlook for the balance of the year looks encouraging, according to Mr. May. The effects of the metal can strike are largely over. June sales and earnings showed improvement over those of April and May for metal beer containers and for the company's paper and chemical operations. Mr. May said that if this improvement continues, second half earnings should compare favorably with those of last year.

The company has research facilities in Barrington.

Hospital Supply Tells Record Sales

All time high quarterly sales for American Hospital Supply Corp. were reached in the second quarter of 1971. Net earnings were down 3 per cent from the comparable period the previous year. Second quarter earnings, however, were up 23 per cent from the first quarter. Board Chairman Harry K. DeWitt and President and Chief Executive Officer Karl D. Bays announced.

Net sales for the three months ended June 30, 1971 were $143,152,000, up 14 per cent from $125,250,000 for the comparable period last year.

Second quarter net earnings were $6,507,000 compared to $6,715,000 for the same quarter in 1970. Per share earnings were 19 cents, down one cent from 20 cents a year earlier.

For the first six months of 1971, sales were $271,960,000, up 13 per cent from $240,946,000 for the first half of 1970. Net earnings were $11,780,000, down 10 per cent from $13,078,000 a year ago. Earnings per share for the six month period were 35 cents, down 4 cents from 39 cents a year earlier.

DeWitt and Bays indicated that lower net earnings for the second quarter resulted from the predicted decrease in tax-exempt interest income earned in the second quarter of last year. Lower net earnings for the first six months of 1971 were also due to higher expenses of occupying 15 major buildings completed the previous year, and lower gross margins than those reported in the first quarter of last year in the dental and industrial capital equipment divisions.

For the six month period, sales of capital equipment increased and sales of disposable products to health care institutions continued to be strong.

DeWitt and Bays stated that they are encouraged by the second quarter sales gain of 14 per cent and the 12 per cent increase in operating earnings over the same quarter of last year.

ESCAPING RUNDOWN. Arlington Heights' Bruce Frase appears to be in deep trouble as he is caught in a rundown between first and second base Saturday in a District Nine Legion playoff game with Palatine. While Frase was in the rundown, Mike Wilbins, who was on third base, raced for the plate and then Palatine switched to running down Wilbins. It all ended up with Wilbins safe at third and Frase safe at second with a stolen base. Both scored as Arlington Heights posted a 10-9 victory with a rally in the 11th inning. Bob Bain is the pursuer. (Photo by Jim Frost)

Minor Hockey League Makes Plan

The Arlington Heights Minor Hockey Association is busy making plans for a new season.

The league, formerly run by the Arlington Heights Jaycees, who established the program — is now an incorporated non-profit entity chartered by the state.

Growth in the first stages of the Association has been very fast and future potential appears to be tremendous.

Most of the Jaycees who participated in prior years will continue to work within the Association framework. Financial support will continue to come from the Jaycees as requested and within the scope of their budget.

Officers and Board of Directors this year are: President, Robert Clark (394-1468); vice-president, Peter Smith (358-1611); secretary, William Schumann (392-4383); treasurer, James Bailey (253-0161); Squirts Director, John Tuitt (253-6895); Pee-Wee Director, Albert Rosenquist (394-0414); Bantams Director, Russell Gardner (259-2757); Midgets Director, Victor Johnson (392-2541).

The league does not own a facility to assure ice time, so alternate plans have been established. Primary location is the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex but no commitment had been received from the Rolling Meadows Park District at this writing. A second choice is the Polar Dome in Dundee. Both locations may well be used because of their limited availability.

There will be five age divisions, each with three or four teams and one all-star team. Each team will have about 25 boys. The divisions and year-of-birth limits are: Squirt (1961 and after), Pee-Wee (1959 and 1960), Bantam (1957 and 1958), Midget (1955 and 1956) and Juvenile (1953 and 1954).

Registration fee will be $45 per boy for regular-season play. All-star participation will carry another fee of $45. All-star selections will be determined by tryouts only.

Registration forms and checks should be mailed to Mr. Jim Bailey, 2023 E. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights. Checks should be payable to Arlington Heights

Minor Hockey Association.

New boys can register Aug. 14 and Sept. 11 at Recreation Park from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Registration will be on a first-come basis with the following priority rankings without regard to ability: First, all boys registered last year and their brothers; second, Arlington Heights residents; third, non-residents.

Any boy registered in this program will NOT be allowed to play for any other organized hockey league in any age group. Violators of this rule will be given one chance to choose between the Arlington program and the other without refund of registration fees. If a boy is found to violate the rule a second time, he will be suspended from the program without refund.

The Association is attempting to obtain medical accident insurance that would be available to anyone desiring it. Cost would be extra. Further details will be provided soon.

New and used equipment can be ordered at both open registration days under the same price arrangements as last year. Anyone with used equipment to sell should contact any of the Association officers.

Mandatory equipment will be: hockey skates, helmet with mouth guard, hockey pants and suspenders, shin guards, shoulder pads, elbow pads, protection cup and support, stocking garters and hockey sticks.

Mets Hoffman Minor Champs

The Mets emerged as top Minor League team in the Hoffman Estates Little League after a best-of-three playoff series victory over the previously undefeated Angels.

The two teams split the first two games but the Mets controlled the deciding contest from the start. The final score was 15-8 as the Mets collected 17 hits. The champs, managed by Bob Hanson and coached by Bill Gill, John Heleniak and Bob Ross, are composed of three second-year and 12 first-year players:

Kingman Excites Giants

Dave Kingman, former Prospect High School baseball and basketball star, broke into the big leagues with a loud bang this past weekend with the San Francisco Giants.

In Kingman's very first game Saturday, he blasted a grand slam home run to help the Giants with a 15-11 slugfest over the powerful Pittsburgh Pirates at San Francisco. He followed that with two two-run homers Sunday in the second game of a doubleheader to help the runaway division-leading Giants sweep a pair over the Pirates.

Kingman had just been called up from the Giants' Triple-A farm club at Phoenix where he had 26 homers and 99 runs batted in.

GOING, GOing...

That's what's happening to court time at the new River Trails Tennis Center just south of Mount Prospect. The roof is up, construction is ahead of schedule, an open house / exhibition night is set for September, and the head pro is stocking his shop. We'll open October 1.

So even if indoor play is farthest from your mind as you savor the summer sun, do yourself a favor: reserve your River Trails tennis time while the getting's good. Use the coupon below and mail it to Box 69, Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056. Enclose one-half the indicated fee.

I apply for membership in River Trails Tennis Center and enclose one-half indicated fee.

Here's How You Use

THRIFTY

WANT ADS

What are Thrifty Want Ads?

Thrifty Want Ads give Herald readers an exciting new way to sell usable household merchandise. Your Thrifty Want Ad will be seen by more than 200,000 potential customers.

15 Words, 6 Days, $5.00

The price of the new Thrifty Want Ads is a genuine bargain. Your ad of 15 words for 6 consecutive days is only
$5.00. Additional words . . .
33¢ each word. Sorry no refunds for early results.

What Can You Sell With The THRIFTY?

You can use the THRIFTY for fast sales of tools, bikes, appliances, radios, TV's, stereos, musical instruments, air conditioners, rugs, furniture, clothes, baby carriages . . . anything you have as long as the selling price of each item does not exceed $100. (For Sale items only). The price you are asking for the item (or items) in your ad must appear in your ad copy to qualify for THRIFTY rates!

THRIFTY rates apply to non-commercial advertisers only! Last items will also be honored at the low THRIFTY rate.

How Do You Place A Thrifty Want-Ad?

You put the THRIFTY to work for you simply by phoning 394-2400, or fill out the handy coupon below. The THRIFTY line is open for your calls from 8 a.m. to

2 Killed In Weekend Accidents

Wheeling Police Monday were seeking clues to the identity of a man killed in a traffic accident late Sunday night on Milwaukee Avenue.

The unidentified man was the second person killed by a car over the weekend in Wheeling.

The first fatality occurred Saturday afternoon when four-year-old James H. Fess Jr. of 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling was struck by a car on East Norman Lane approximately 130 feet north of Maureen Drive.

The two separate incidents resulted in the first fatal auto accidents of the year in Wheeling.

Wheeling Police Patrolman Bill Ralston said yesterday that the dead man was approximately 30 years old, and apparently of Mexican ancestry.

Ralston said the man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, and had a mustache and black hair which was rather long although not shoulder length. The man was of thin, medium build and had two tattoos on his left arm.

ONE TATTOO in the muscle area was a cross about three inches high and two inches wide with the initial "R" in the center, Ralston said. A second tattoo on the top of the victim's left hand had the initials R. A.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Ronald Nelson asked yesterday that anyone who could provide information as to the dead man's identity contact Wheeling police.

The body was taken to the Cook County morgue after he was declared dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 10:50 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the car that struck the man was James R. Curley Jr., 26, of 27 S. Crestview Ter., Buffalo Grove.

He was not charged in connection with the accident. Curley told police that he first saw the man running across the road at the centerline of Milwaukee Avenue. The accident occurred south of Lake Cook Road on Milwaukee Avenue at 10:30 p.m.

Two passengers in Curley's car, Barbara L. Meldrum, 32, of Morton Grove and Diane C. Shambau, 30, of Glenview also told police that the man was difficult to see as he ran across the road.

When police arrived the man was lying face down with his body on the east edge of Milwaukee Avenue approximately 70 feet from 667 N. Milwaukee Avenue.

POLICE USED a cardiac compressor to try to revive the man and Wheeling firemen used a resuscitator as the man was taken to Holy Family Hospital.

In connection with the death of the four-year-old Wheeling boy earlier last weekend, a Cook County coroner jury ruled yesterday that the death of James H. Fess Jr. was "accidental."

The inquest was held at the Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave. yesterday morning.

The accident Saturday occurred at 3:19 p.m. near the boy's home.

The driver of the car, Keith K. Knoll, 17, of 1255 Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights was charged by police with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision in connection with the accident. He is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court on Sept. 14.

KNOLL AND A passenger in his car, Brian H. Knoll, 15, told police that they were northbound on East Norman Lane at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. The child

Crowds Flock To Beer 'N Brat Fest

An overflow crowd jammed the Wheeling Shopping Center parking lot Sunday for the Wheeling Historical Society's Beer and Brat Fest and the Community Arts League's art show.

The "German Four" provided music as participants drank more than 15 barrels of beer and ate more than 2,000 bratwurst.

The fest, planned as an annual event, was scheduled by the historical society as a fund raising project modeled after the German Beer Garden held in 1969 during Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee Celebration.

The society grossed a total of $2,300 at the fest, officials said yesterday.

The art fair held by the community arts league was "an outstanding success," according to Mrs. Ronald Bruhn, league president.

She said that the league was "overwhelmed by the crowd," and said that because of the brat and beer fest activities, "even the artists who didn't sell

Opinions Please

Residents Approve Of 'Hotline'

Unanimous support for the proposed 24-hour emergency "hotline" program for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove-Prospect Heights area came from residents contacted in this week's "Opinions Please" column.

Members of HELP, Inc., a community group seeking to combat local problems, particularly drug abuse, hope to set up the phone service.

Some of those interviewed were not familiar with the program. After learning that the hotline would provide emergency counseling service and that it would refer callers to other agencies, these residents joined in supporting the project.

Mrs. Robert Campbell, 1006 Cambridge, Buffalo Grove, was very enthusiastic about the program. "I think it's a good idea considering the apparent problem with the increase in drugs in the area," she stated.

She said she feels drug abusers would call the hotline in an emergency.

"I think they would use it. I believe they have these programs in Chicago, but I think people would feel better about calling a local number than one in Chicago. It's worth it, even if it helps just one person."

Mrs. David Davis, 124 Forest, Buffalo Grove, also approved the 'hot line' plan.

"I think it's a good idea. I believe people would use it," she said. She added that she might use the hotline herself if faced with an emergency.

Mrs. Frank Ellinger, 56 Redwood, Wheeling, said she felt the proposed hotline would be a "great" idea.

"I think it's an excellent idea. I think there is definitely a need for this. I know there have been several times when I've wanted a doctor for my children on Saturday or Sunday and couldn't reach one."

"And it would be a help if someone needed medicine in the middle of the night and none of the stores were open," she stated.

Mrs. John Anderson, 230 E. Mors, Wheeling, also was very enthusiastic.

"I definitely think it's a good idea," she said. "It's especially good if you need help in a hurry or if you're not familiar with the area. I don't care how independent you are, once in a while there comes a time when you need help."

Woman Injured In Auto Accident

A Lake Villa woman was taken to Holy Family Hospital with major back injuries early last night after the car she was driving rolled over into a ditch in Wheeling.

The woman, Arlene H. Rechtermann, 46, told Wheeling police she was driving south on Wheeling Road when a red sports car driving north forced her to swerve off the road. Her car rolled over into a ditch on the east side of Wheeling Road 528 feet north of Mercantile Court.

Wheeling police estimated damage to her car at $1,500.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic out of Sudan Monday, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

Temperatures from around the nation:

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Program Receives Funds

Project Ties 'Real World' To Schools

THE ABLE (Authentic Basic Life-centered Education) project which has been operating in School Dists. 21 and 96 during the past year will be funded for a second year by the state and Northern Illinois University.

The ABLE program seeks to teach children through educational projects that stress adult occupations, using the resources of the community.

Announcement of the funding was made last week by Walter Wernick, a member of the NIU faculty and director of the ABLE program.

A state grant of $128,546 will be provided by the Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation and the Division of Vocational-Technical Education of the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

NIU will provide $155,012 from general revenue to help fund the ABLE program, for a total budget of $283,558. Last year the total budget was $264,979.

ABLE WILL operate not only in Dists. 21 and 96, but also in school districts in DeKalb, Mundelein, Chicago and Rockford. Last year, the ABLE program was offered to children in kindergarten through sixth grade.

In the coming year, it will be expanded to include junior high school students as well.

Ideas developed in the ABLE program are being used in many school districts in northern Illinois, Wernick said. Requests have also come from districts in other states for help in planning ABLE programs, he said.

"We feel that what the children are learning about the real world motivates them to do better in their school work," Wernick said. "The teacher who wants to be the bridge between traditional subjects and the world of work will find that the children learn more effectively."

ran from between parked cars on the east side of the street and in front of the car, they told police. There were no other witnesses, police said.

The boy's body was two feet west of the curb in front of 255 E. Norman Ln., when police arrived.

The child and his mother were taken to Holy Family Hospital by police. Wheeling patrolman Dexter Gorski attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation of the child on the way to the hospital and hospital staff tried for 25 minutes to revive him before he was pronounced dead.

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fess, 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today at the Wheeling Funeral Home.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papciak, 2368 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papciak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shoreline Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

2,100 Bikes Registered On First Day

Approximately 2,100 bicycles were registered Saturday as the Village of Wheeling began its first bicycle registration program.

Volunteers from Wheeling Civil Defense and the Wheeling Over 50 Club as well as individual volunteers helped with the registration which was held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Carl Sandburg, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Mark Twain and Eugene Field schools.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Gene Wolf explained that the new registration program will enable village police to trace lost bicycles and help eliminate thefts of bicycles in the village.

Each of the bicycles registered is given a sticker. The sticker number is kept on file, along with the bicycle's serial number, at the police station.

Wolf said yesterday that anyone who was unable to make the bicycle registration sessions Saturday can pick up forms to register his bicycle at the village police station in the municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Wolf said that the 2,100 bikes registered are less than half of the total number of bicycles in Wheeling. He estimated that 3,000 bicycles in the village have not been registered.

The new registration program was authorized by the village board recently in an ordinance. The program is a free service to residents of the village.

In conjunction with Saturday's registration program the Wheeling Police Benevolent Association awarded eight sets of bicycle accessories to various people who registered their bikes. The winners of the sets, which included a bicycle speedometer, a headlight, a horn and a taillight, were evenly divided among the four school registration locations.

The bicycle owners who received the accessories were Jim Hall of 151 Coral Ln., Liza Axelrod of 13 St. Armand Ln., Cheryl Cuba of 64 Schoenbeck Rd., Robert Williamson of 1069 Anthony, Margie Laemmerhirt of 324 W. Wayne, Ed Weier of 94 E. Dennis, Jim Roberts of 399 Mors, and Kirstin Nielsen of 397 Nancy Ln.

CULINARY PARTNERS Pierre Dousson, chef, and Robert Disch, airline pilot, look over a simmering sauce at their Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant. The pair began redesigning the kitchen and menu at the restaurant last May. They plan to offer food with an international touch to residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Airline Pilot Lands In The Kitchen

by TOM VON MALDER

Take an airline pilot of 15 years and a man, who as a boy wanted to wear a chef's hat, and you get the unlikely combination that is bringing an international approach in dining to the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

The partnership began nine years ago when the two met in the British West Indies.

Robert Disch, a pilot for North Central Airlines, was vacationing with his wife in Jamaica when they received an invitation to go to the island of St. Lucia. Some friends recently had set up the first American hotel there. This was in 1962.

"COOKING WAS a hobby with me at that time," Disch said. "Each Thanksgiving and Christmas, my roommates and I prepared dinner for airline crew members away from home."

But baking was his real interest and when Disch saw the puff pastry at the St. Lucia Beach Hotel he couldn't believe their height. (Puff pastry is the kind used for apple turnovers.)

Disch went into the kitchen and met chef Pierre Dousson, his future partner at the Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant. "I spent the rest of the vacation in the kitchen with Pierre."

It was through the strong friendship begun at that time that Disch's interest in other aspects of cooking flourished. But for Dousson, cooking had been his whole life.

Municipal Lot To Be Repaved

The upper section of the parking lot at the Buffalo Grove municipal building will get a new look and feel during the coming year.

Harris Engineers, village consultants, are working on plans to pave that section of the lot, and funds for the job have been included in the budget for the current fiscal year, according to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

The surface of the lot now consists of a bumpy layer of stones. The lower section of the lot was not included in the plans.

Born in Roanne, near Lyons, France, Dousson was just out of school when, with a friend, he went to visit a big hotel. The friend knew the hotel's cook and Dousson was introduced and hooked.

"The big, white hat impressed me," Dousson said. "I decided then that I wanted to be a chef."

He did his cooking apprenticeship in his home town and then moved to Vichy and Paris for four years. He finally made his way to St. Lucia.

The two kept in touch after Disch left St. Lucia. However, it was not until 1964 that Dousson was able to come to the United States. He was brought over by the Drake Hotel's cook internship program.

THE TWO often discussed the possibility of going into business and in May of this year, got their chance.

Disch had been golfing at the Old Orchard Country Club for a number of years and had been hired by the owner to redesign its golf course. (Disch, who wears many hats in addition to that of the chef, is a kind of amateur architect. He also designed the control tower at the Milwaukee airport.)

This allowed Disch to become familiar with the restaurant facilities at Old Orchard. When the chance came to take over the facilities, Disch contacted Dousson.

The first step, and one which is continuing, is to redesign the dining facilities, including the kitchen. Some $5,000 is being spent. Disch is doing the design.

The second step toward their international kitchen was to hire some experienced people. "We have assembled under this roof the six finest people you can find under any roof," Disch said.

Dousson, in addition to the Drake Hotel, has worked at Maxim's and the Champs Elysees in Paris, and the Comple Angler in England. "This is the best restaurant in England, outside of London," Dousson said. "We would only see Rolls Royces and Bentleys."

PIERRE VIMONT is the catering manager and like Dousson, he has served the Queen of England. Paco Sanchez is the maitre d'. He has worked at La Pavillion in New York and the Dorchester of London.

The three chefs have worked around the globe. Pierre Barth also has worked at La Pavillion. A native of Belgium, he has cooked for Cafe du Theatre and L'Auberge des Grottes in Liege. Stephen Furst, who speaks 10 languages, has worked at Gall, Geneva, Switzerland; Grand Hotel, Ancora, Turkey; Montmartre, England; and Imperial Hotel, Vienna, Austria.

The third chef, Rodolphe Vallee, was chef at the Hotel Transatlantic, Morocco; and the Cafe des Sport and Grand Veneur, Paris.

The pair, Dousson and Disch, feel the changes they are making at the country club restaurant are in line with a general tendency of "good restaurants to move into the suburbs." They said the suburban resident is now less likely to go to downtown Chicago to eat.

"We'd like to think we are part of this movement in bringing good food to the suburbs," Disch said.

Group To Appeal Ruling Against Incorporation

Prospect Heights residents have filed a notice to appeal circuit court rejection of their proposal to incorporate Prospect Heights.

The residents announced they planned to appeal the case last month after Judge Harry Comerford dismissed the incorporation petition. The hearing had been continued five times since March.

The petition calls for incorporation of portions of Prospect Heights, unincorporated Wheeling and unincorporated Arlington Heights. It was filed by leaders of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

Attorney Don Kreger, representing the petitioners, announced this week that he has filed a notice of appeal. He said, "A record of the county court trial is now being prepared and will be forwarded to the appellate court. Once the report is completed, I will prepare a brief on the case and submit it to the appellate court. Objectors will be given a chance to answer my brief."

IT IS NOT known when the case will appear before the appellate court. However, some parties involved in the case predicted it would be several months before the case is called because of the backlog of cases in the courts.

The county judge based his ruling on the fact that the petitioners failed to secure the consent of the municipalities which lie within one mile of the boundaries of the proposed city. Two of these municipalities, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, have filed an objection in court to the incorporation proposal.

The necessity of the municipalities' consent was the key factor in the hearing and the subject of a discrepancy in the statutes. The judge listened to arguments on both sides of the consent question before ruling. He heard no other evidence of objections. The consent question was the deciding factor in the case.

Attorneys representing objectors to the incorporation proposal include Jack Siegel, attorney of the Village of Arlington Heights; Paul Hamer, attorney of the Village of Wheeling; and Roger Bjorvik, attorney of the River Trails Park District. Several individuals are also objecting.

Molly The Mystic Gets 'Power From The Lord'

by KAREN RUGEN

A gilt-edged certificate on the wall calls her a medium. A notice below it claims she has the power of divine healing.

As if to guard the paper credentials and verify their credibility, a picture of Jesus Christ has been placed nearby. Across the room a statue of the Virgin Mary faces Molly Ranae as she does what she thinks God has intended her to do.

"I get all my powers from the Lord," says Mrs. Ranae who combines the religious with the supernatural. "I have the richest gift that can be found in the Bible."

Mrs. Ranae, who moved into her house at 1802 Locust Ln. in Mount Prospect a year ago, bills herself as a divine mystic and a possessor of extra-sensory perception, commonly called ESP. While she passes off her claim as a divine healer with "I just make people feel good," she has a lot more to say about her extra-sensory powers.

"I WAS THE SEVENTH daughter of seven daughters," explains Mrs. Ranae who is quick to tell you her lucky number is seven. "When I was born into the family, I was born with a psychic veil over my face. From then on, people just kept asking me questions."

Although she says she has always been sure of her gift, Mrs. Ranae did not go into business until about 10 years ago "because friends urged me to go out and help people." For $5 a private reading, she's been doing it ever since.

"There are a lot of phonies and all they do is ask for money," said Mrs. Ranae who also uses her talents to entertain at small parties. "But I give customers their money's worth."

When the self-proclaimed mystic does readings for the housewives and businessmen who are her customers, she tries to open the chapters of their lives by holding their hands or several of their personal effects.

She says she gets her powers through vibrations and meditation, but can't describe what happens when she tries to see into the future or uncover hidden remnants of someone's past. All she can say is that she "gets her answers from God, sometimes I see pictures and sometimes I see dates."

SHE SAYS HER vibrations have dealt with national issues as well as personal incidents of her friends. Like many other mystics, she says she warned John Kennedy from going to Dallas and claims to have predicted the deaths of Martin Luther King and Dwight Eisenhower. She also claims she has helped solve murders and predicted the 1968 riots in Chicago.

Mrs. Ranae said sometimes her friends do no heed her warnings. She said she predicted that a friend's home in Glenview would be bombed; several days later it was. "It got to the point where I was even afraid to drive around with her in her car," she said.

One of Mrs. Ranae's most unusual readings took place when she was called into a nudist camp. "I went there, clutching a rosary," she said. "I prayed to God that he would not let me see anything below the face. He answered the prayer, and I did the readings."

Mrs. Ranae is as serious about her business as she is about her gift. In a strong voice, she emphasizes she is not a fortune teller and doesn't own a crystal ball. She says she is clairvoyant, although in the next breath she admits she cannot define what it is. She keeps repeating that her gift is from above and she uses it only the way God wants her to use it.

"God knows who to put the gift upon," she explained but didn't know why she felt he chose her. "All I know is that the Lord is always with me."

Hotline Fund Hits $1,900; Plan Tag Day

The "hotline" fund for Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights has grown to $1,900 since the donation of $1,300 last week by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

"It was unbelievable. We're really getting there," said Ruth Wieder, member of the hotline committee, a sub-committee of HELP, Inc.

The idea behind the hotline project is to set up a telephone that would be manned around the clock by volunteers from the community. Persons could call the hotline for emergency counseling and referral to agencies which, in turn, could give specialized help to persons with social or emotional problems. HELP hopes to set up the hotline by Oct. 1.

With $1,900 now secure, the hotline committee has turned its attention to other avenues of fund raising.

Plans are under way for "Hotline Day" on Aug. 27.

HELP MEMBERS plan to station themselves at shopping centers and intersections throughout the three communities on that day to solicit funds for the hotline.

Telephone key chains have been donated by Illinois Bell to be given as tags to those who contribute.

"We thought the telephone key chains seemed appropriate, as our program is geared around the phone," Mrs. Wieder said.

Contributions can be mailed to HELP's hotline project at P.O. Box 241 in Wheeling.

Mrs. Wieder said the budget needed to maintain the hotline project will depend on where office space can be located.

"If we have to rent space, our budget will run around $6,000 a year. We're looking for a cheaper location. If one could be donated, we would only have to pay for the phones and insurance."

She praised the estimated 200 young people in the three communities who have been helping to establish the hotline.

"SOME HAVE volunteered to man the hotline. Others are involved in our fund raising. They're doing a beautiful job."

The young people raised $100 by manning a hot dog stand in Wheeling a few weeks ago. They have also raised an estimated $150 from interviews about their likes and dislikes of various products by market research analysts, Mrs. Sieder stated.

Woman Injured In Auto Accident

A Lake Villa woman was taken to Holy Family Hospital with major back injuries early last night after the car she was driving rolled over into a ditch in Wheeling.

The woman, Arlene H. Rechtermann, 46, told Wheeling police she was driving south on Wheeling Road when a red sports car driving north forced her to swerve off the road. Her car rolled over into a ditch on the east side of Wheeling Road 528 feet north of Mercantile Court.

Wheeling police estimated damage to her car at $1,300.

SILHOUETTED AGAINST a summer sky, workmen erect the steel reinforcing that will support a new addition to Northwest Community Hospital on Central Road in Arlington Heights. Work on the entire addition is expected to be completed by the fall of next year.

Weekend Accidents Kill Man And Tot

Wheeling Police Monday were seeking clues to the identity of a man killed in a traffic accident late Sunday night on Milwaukee Avenue.

The unidentified man was the second person killed by a car over the weekend in Wheeling.

The first fatality occurred Saturday afternoon when four-year-old James H. Fess Jr. of 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling was struck by a car on East Norman Lane approximately 130 feet north of Maureen Drive.

The two separate incidents resulted in the first fatal auto accidents of the year in Wheeling.

Wheeling Police Patrolman Bill Ralston said yesterday that the dead man was approximately 30 years old, and apparently of Mexican ancestry.

Ralston said the man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, and had a mustache and black hair which was rather long although not shoulder length.

The man was of thin, medium build and had two tattoos on his left arm.

ONE TATTOO in the muscle area was a cross about three inches high and two inches wide with the initial "R" in the center, Ralston said. A second tattoo on the top of the victim's left hand had the initials R. A.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Ronald Nelson asked yesterday that anyone who could provide information as to the dead man's identity contact Wheeling police.

The body was taken to the Cook County morgue after he was declared dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 10:50 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the car that struck the man was James R. Curley Jr., 26, of 27 S. Crestview Ter., Buffalo Grove.

He was not charged in connection with the accident. Curley told police that he first saw the man running across the road at the centerline of Milwaukee Avenue. The accident occurred south of Lake-Cook Road on Milwaukee Avenue at 10:30 p.m.

Two passengers in Curley's car, Barbara L. Meldrum, 32, of Morton Grove and Diane C. Shambau, 30, of Glenview also told police that the man was difficult to see as he ran across the road.

When police arrived the man was lying face down with his body on the east edge of Milwaukee Avenue approximately 70 feet from 667 N. Milwaukee Avenue.

POLICE USED a cardiac compressor to try to revive the man and Wheeling firemen used a resuscitator as the man was taken to Holy Family Hospital.

In connection with the death of the four-year-old Wheeling boy earlier last weekend, a Cook County coroner's jury ruled yesterday that the death of James

H. Fess Jr. was "accidental."

The inquest was held at the Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave. yesterday morning.

The accident Saturday occurred at 3:19 p.m. near the boy's home.

The driver of the car, Keith K. Knoll, 17, of 1255 Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights was charged by police with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision in connection with the accident. He is to appear in Arlington Heights District Court on Sept. 14.

KNOLL AND A passenger in his car, Brian H. Knoll, 15, told police that they were northbound on East Norman Lane at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. The child

Penny Carnival Slated Aug. 11

A Penny Carnival will be held from 2 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Aug. 11 at Emmerich Park in Buffalo Grove.

The carnival will be sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Park District and money raised at the event will be used for next year's summer playground program of the park district.

There will be game booths, arts and crafts displays, a play and a barbecue. Youngsters working on the carnival come from the Joyce Kilmer, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Booth Tarkington, and Willow Grove Schools, as well as from the park district's tiny tots and instructional baseball programs.

Donna Barthelle and Nancy Stoll are co-chairman of the carnival.

Engineers Planning For Prevention Of Flooding

Buffalo Grove village engineers are working on plans for a sewer to prevent flooding of homes along Elmwood Drive.

Flooding problems in the area came to a peak last June 18 when an earthen dam built by the village broke and sent water knee-deep into a home at 591 Elmwood Dr.

Last week, the village board approved a recommendation from Bill Davis, village director of public service, and asked Hattis Engineering to prepare specifications and cost estimates for a sewer and manhole system in the area. Davis said the system would carry water away from the home, instead of into it.

The flood water hits the Elmwood Drive homes regularly after heavy rains. The rain water pours out of 20-acre field east of the homes. The field is owned by the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago.

Davis has received a letter from an archdiocesan official saying that the archdiocese will cooperate in the plan. The archdiocese had allowed the village to build the temporary dam that the village had hoped would at least temporarily stop the flooding.

The dam broke and water from an earlier rain rushed into the home of Mrs. Casimir Zaworski, 591 Elmwood Dr. Village Pres. Gary Armstrong visited the home and promised action on the flooding.

Tom Houser May Handle Nixon's State Campaign

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 48-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic out of Sudan Monday, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

Temperatures from around the nation:

	High	Low
Atlanta	81	69
Boston	86	71
Houston	85	74
Los Angeles	92	74
Miami Beach	85	77
Phoenix	106	82
San Francisco	72	56

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Program Receives Funds

Project Ties 'Real World' To Schools

THE ABLE (Authentic Basic Life-centered Education) project which has been operating in School Dist. 21 and 96 during the past year will be funded for a second year by the state and Northern Illinois University.

The ABLE program seeks to teach children through educational projects that stress adult occupations, using the resources of the community.

Announcement of the funding was made last week by Walter Wernick, a member of the NIU faculty and director of the ABLE program.

A state grant of $129,546 will be provided by the Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation and the Division of Vocational-Technical Education of the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

NIU will provide $155,012 from general revenue to help fund the ABLE program, for a total budget of $284,558. Last year the total budget was $264,979.

ABLE WILL operate not only in Dist. 21 and 96, but also in school districts in DeKalb, Mundelein, Chicago and Rockford. Last year, the ABLE program was offered to children in kindergarten through sixth grade.

In the coming year, it will be expanded to include junior high school students as well.

Ideas developed in the ABLE program are being used in many school districts in northern Illinois, Wernick said. Requests have also come from districts in other states for help in planning ABLE programs, he said.

"We feel that what the children are learning about the real world motivates them to do better in their school work," Wernick said. "The teacher who wants to be the bridge between traditional subjects and the world of work will find that the children learn more effectively."

ran from between parked cars on the east side of the street and in front of the car, they told police. There were no other witnesses, police said.

The boy's body was two feet west of the curb in front of 255 E. Norman Ln., when police arrived.

The child and his mother were taken to Holy Family Hospital by police. Wheeling patrolman Dexter Gorski attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation of the child on the way to the hospital and hospital staff tried for 25 minutes to revive him before he was pronounced dead.

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fess, 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today at the Wheeling Funeral Home.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papiak, 2388 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papiak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shoreline Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

2,100 Bikes Registered On First Day

Approximately 2,100 bicycles were registered Saturday as the Village of Wheeling began its first bicycle registration program.

Volunteers from Wheeling Civil Defense and the Wheeling Over 50 Club as well as individual volunteers helped with the registration which was held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Carl Sandburg, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Mark Twain and Eugene Field schools.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Gene Wolf explained that the new registration program will enable village police to trace lost bicycles and help eliminate thefts of bicycles in the village.

Each of the bicycles registered is given a sticker. The sticker number is kept on file, along with the bicycle's serial number, at the police station.

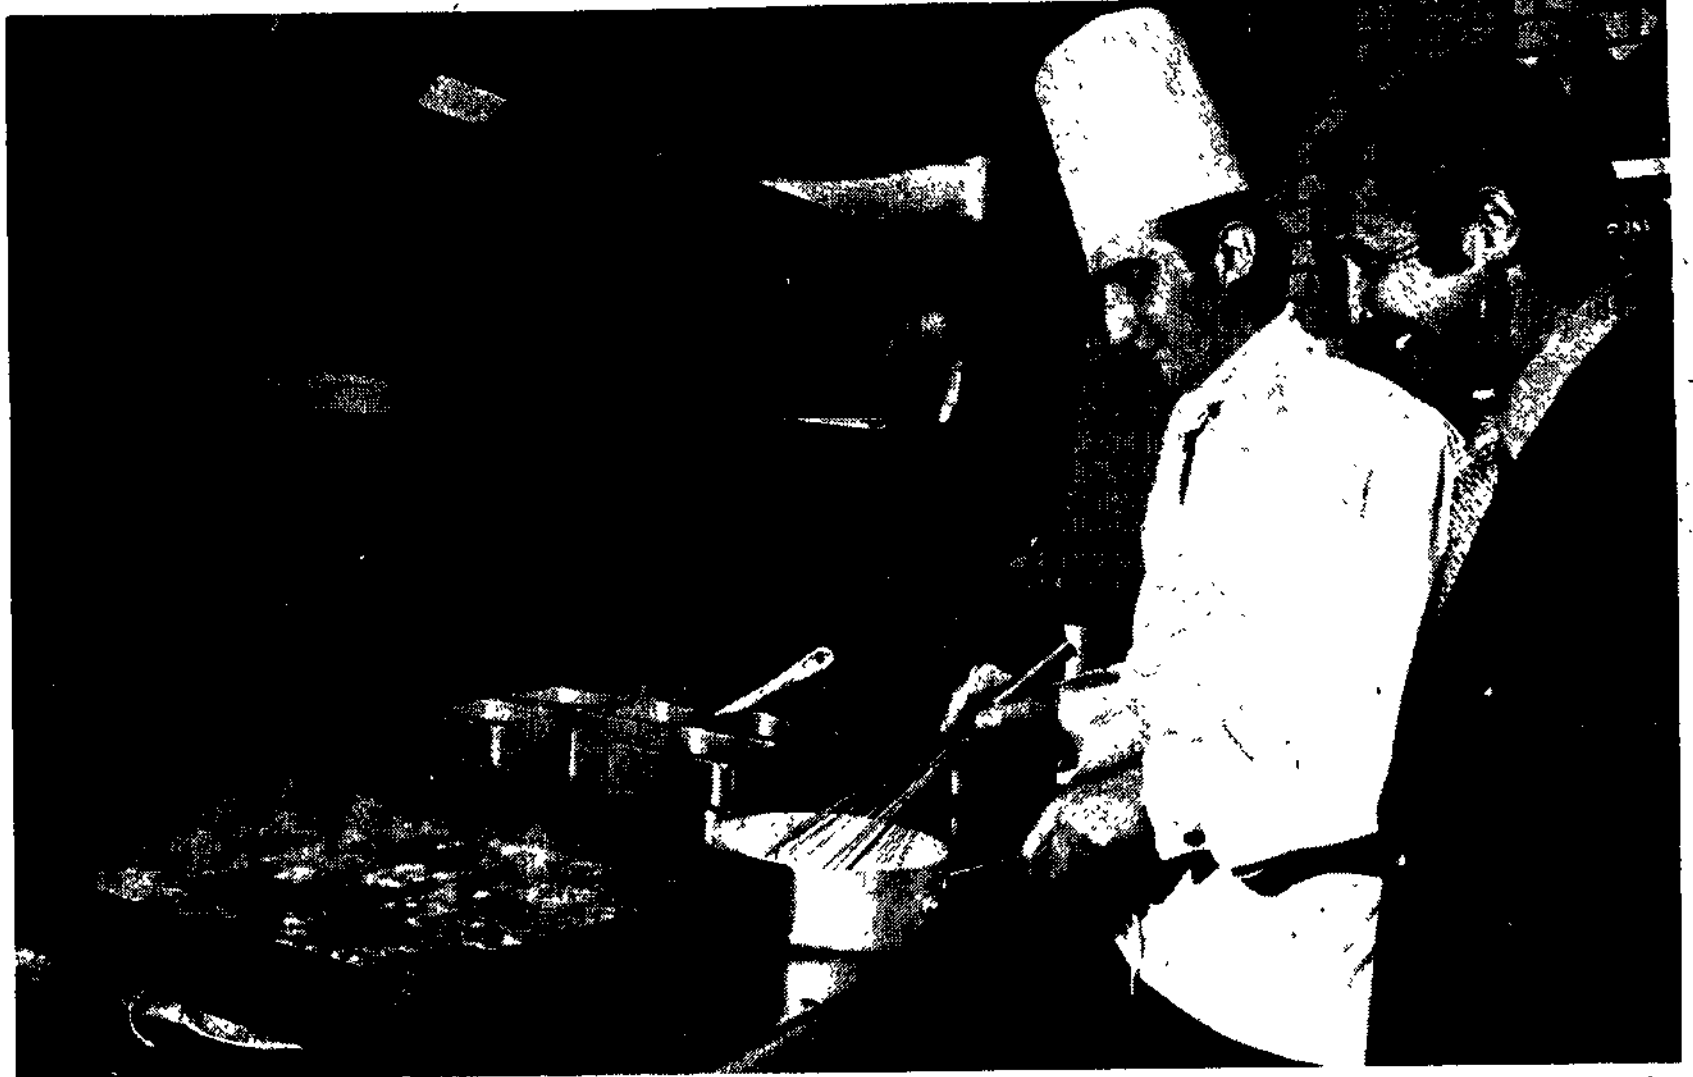

Wolf said yesterday that anyone who was unable to make the bicycle registration sessions Saturday can pick up forms to register his bicycle at the village police station in the municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Wolf said that the 2,100 bikes registered are less than half of the total number of bicycles in Wheeling. He estimated that 3,000 bicycles in the village have not been registered.

The new registration program was authorized by the village board recently in an ordinance. The program is a free service to residents of the village.

In conjunction with Saturday's registration program the Wheeling Police Benevolent Association awarded eight sets of bicycle accessories to various people who registered their bikes. The winners of the sets, which included a bicycle speedometer, a headlight, a horn and a taillight, were evenly divided among the four school registration locations.

The bicycle owners who received the accessories were Jim Hall of 151 Coral Ln., Liza Axelrod of 13 St. Armand Ln., Cheryl Cuba of 64 Schoenbeck Rd., Robert Williamson of 1069 Anthony, Margie Laemmerhirt of 324 W. Wayne, Ed Weier of 94 E. Dennis, Jim Roberts of 399 Mors, and Kirstin Nielsen of 397 Nancy Ln.

CULINARY PARTNERS Pierre Douso, chef, and Robert Disch, airline pilot, look over a simmering sauce at their Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant.

The pair began redesigning the kitchen and menu at the restaurant last May. They plan to offer food with an international touch to residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Airline Pilot Lands In The Kitchen

by TOM VON MALDER

Take an airline pilot of 15 years and a man, who as a boy wanted to wear a chef's hat, and you get the unlikely combination that is bringing an international approach in dining to the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

The partnership began nine years ago when the two met in the British West Indies.

Robert Disch, a pilot for North Central Airlines, was vacationing with his wife in Jamaica when they received an invitation to go to the island of St. Lucia. Some friends recently had set up the first American hotel there. This was in 1962.

"COOKING WAS a hobby with me at that time," Disch said. "Each Thanksgiving and Christmas, my roommates and I prepared dinner for airline crew members away from home."

But baking was his real interest and when Disch saw the puff pastry at the St. Lucia Beach Hotel he couldn't believe their height. (Puff pastry is the kind used for apple turnovers.)

Disch went into the kitchen and met chef Pierre Douso, his future partner at the Old Orchard Country Club Restaurant. "I spent the rest of the vacation in the kitchen with Pierre."

It was through the strong friendship begun at that time that Disch's interest in other aspects of cooking flourished. But for Douso, cooking had been his whole life.

Municipal Lot To Be Repaved

The upper section of the parking lot at the Buffalo Grove municipal building will get a new look and feel during the coming year.

Harris Engineers, village consultants, are working on plans to pave that section of the lot, and funds for the job have been included in the budget for the current fiscal year, according to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

The surface of the lot now consists of a bumpy layer of stones. The lower section of the lot was not included in the plans.

Born in Roanne, near Lyons, France, Douso was just out of school when, with a friend, he went to visit a big hotel. The friend knew the hotel's cook and Douso was introduced and hooked.

"The big, white hat impressed me," Douso said. "I decided that I wanted to be a chef."

He did his cooking apprenticeship in his home town and then moved to Vichy and Paris for four years. He finally made his way to St. Lucia.

The two kept in touch after Disch left St. Lucia. However, it was not until 1964 that Douso was able to come to the United States. He was brought over by the Drake Hotel's cook internship program.

This allowed Disch to become familiar with the restaurant facilities at Old Orchard. When the chance came to take over the facilities, Disch contacted Douso.

The first step, and one which is continuing, is to redesign the dining facilities, including the kitchen. Some $5,000 is being spent. Disch is doing the design.

The second step toward their international kitchen was to hire some experienced people. "We have assembled under this roof the six finest people you can find under any roof," Disch said.

Douso, in addition to the Drake Hotel, has worked at Maxim's and the Champs Elysees in Paris, and the Complete Angler in England. "This is the best restaurant in England, outside of London," Douso said. "We would only see Rolls Royces and Bentleys."

PIERRE VIMONT is the catering manager and like Douso, he has served the Queen of England. Paco Sanchez is the maitre d'. He has worked at La Pavillon in New York and the Dorchester of London.

The three chefs have worked around the globe. Pierre Barth also has worked at La Pavillon. A native of Belgium, he has cooked for Cafe du Theatre and L'Auberge des Grottes in Liege. Stephen Furst, who speaks 10 languages, has worked at Galil, Geneva, Switzerland; Grand Hotel, Ancora, Turkey; Montmartre, England; and Imperial Hotel, Vienna, Austria.

The third chef, Rodolphe Vallee, was chef at the Hotel Transatlantic, Morocco; and the Cafe des Sport and Grand Veneur, Paris.

The pair, Douso and Disch, feel the changes they are making at the country club restaurant are in line with a general tendency of "good restaurants to move into the suburbs." They said the suburban resident is now less likely to go to downtown Chicago to eat.

"We'd like to think we are part of this movement in bringing good food to the suburbs," Disch said.

The necessity of the municipalities' consent was the key factor in the hearing and the subject of a discrepancy in the statutes. The judge listened to arguments on both sides of the consent question before ruling. He heard no other evidence of objections. The consent question was the deciding factor in the case.

Attorneys representing objectors to the incorporation proposal include Jack Siegel, attorney of the Village of Arlington Heights; Paul Hamer, attorney of the Village of Wheeling; and Roger Bjorvik, attorney of the River Trails Park District. Several individuals are also objecting.

IT IS NOT known when the case will appear before the appellate court. However, some parties involved in the case predicted it would be several months before the case is called because of the backlog of cases in the courts.

The county judge based his ruling on the fact that the petitioners failed to secure the consent of the municipalities which lie within one mile of the boundaries of the proposed city. Two of these municipalities, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, have filed an objection in court to the incorporation proposal.

The petition calls for incorporation of portions of Prospect Heights, unincorporated Wheeling and unincorporated Arlington Heights. It was filed by leaders of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

Attorney Don Kreger, representing the petitioners, announced this week that he has filed a notice of appeal. He said, "A record of the county court trial is now being prepared and will be forwarded to the appellate court. Once the report is completed, I will prepare a brief on the case and submit it to the appellate court. Objectors will be given a chance to answer my brief."

One of Mrs. Ranae's most unusual readings took place when she was called into a nudist camp. "I went there, clutching a rosary," she said. "I prayed to God that he would not let me see anything below the face. He answered the prayer, and I did the readings."

Mrs. Ranae is as serious about her business as she is about her gift. In a strong voice, she emphasizes she is not a fortune teller and doesn't own a crystal ball. She says she is clairvoyant, although in the next breath she admits she cannot define what it is. She keeps repeating that her gift is from above and she uses it only the way God wants her to use it.

"God knows who to put the gift upon," she explained but didn't know why she felt he chose her. "All I know is that the Lord is always with me."

THE TWO often discussed the possibility of going into business and in May of this year, got their chance.

Disch had been golfing at the Old Orchard Country Club for a number of years and had been hired by the owner to redesign its golf course. (Disch, who wears many hats in addition to that of the chef, is a kind of amateur architect. He also designed the control tower at the Milwaukee airport.)

Douso, in addition to the Drake Hotel, has worked at Maxim's and the Champs Elysees in Paris, and the Complete Angler in England. "This is the best restaurant in England, outside of London," Douso said. "We would only see Rolls Royces and Bentleys."

PIERRE VIMONT is the catering manager and like Douso, he has served the Queen of England. Paco Sanchez is the maitre d'. He has worked at La Pavillon in New York and the Dorchester of London.

The three chefs have worked around the globe. Pierre Barth also has worked at La Pavillon. A native of Belgium, he has cooked for Cafe du Theatre and L'Auberge des Grottes in Liege. Stephen Furst, who speaks 10 languages, has worked at Galil, Geneva, Switzerland; Grand Hotel, Ancora, Turkey; Montmartre, England; and Imperial Hotel, Vienna, Austria.

The third chef, Rodolphe Vallee, was chef at the Hotel Transatlantic, Morocco; and the Cafe des Sport and Grand Veneur, Paris.

The pair, Douso and Disch, feel the changes they are making at the country club restaurant are in line with a general tendency of "good restaurants to move into the suburbs." They said the suburban resident is now less likely to go to downtown Chicago to eat.

"We'd like to think we are part of this movement in bringing good food to the suburbs," Disch said.

The necessity of the municipalities' consent was the key factor in the hearing and the subject of a discrepancy in the statutes. The judge listened to arguments on both sides of the consent question before ruling. He heard no other evidence of objections. The consent question was the deciding factor in the case.

Attorneys representing objectors to the incorporation proposal include Jack Siegel, attorney of the Village of Arlington Heights; Paul Hamer, attorney of the Village of Wheeling; and Roger Bjorvik, attorney of the River Trails Park District. Several individuals are also objecting.

IT IS NOT known when the case will appear before the appellate court. However, some parties involved in the case predicted it would be several months before the case is called because of the backlog of cases in the courts.

The county judge based his ruling on the fact that the petitioners failed to secure the consent of the municipalities which lie within one mile of the boundaries of the proposed city. Two of these municipalities, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, have filed an objection in court to the incorporation proposal.

The petition calls for incorporation of portions of Prospect Heights, unincorporated Wheeling and unincorporated Arlington Heights. It was filed by leaders of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

Attorney Don Kreger, representing the petitioners, announced this week that he has filed a notice of appeal. He said, "A record of the county court trial is now being prepared and will be forwarded to the appellate court. Once the report is completed, I will prepare a brief on the case and submit it to the appellate court. Objectors will be given a chance to answer my brief."

One of Mrs. Ranae's most unusual readings took place when she was called into a nudist camp. "I went there, clutching a rosary," she said. "I prayed to God that he would not let me see anything below the face. He answered the prayer, and I did the readings."

Mrs. Ranae is as serious about her business as she is about her gift. In a strong voice, she emphasizes she is not a fortune teller and doesn't own a crystal ball. She says she is clairvoyant, although in the next breath she admits she cannot define what it is. She keeps repeating that her gift is from above and she uses it only the way God wants her to use it.

"God knows who to put the gift upon," she explained but didn't know why she felt he chose her. "All I know is that the Lord is always with me."

CTC Members Receive Ballots

Teachers Must Face Strike Decision Before Settlement

Teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will have to face the decision of whether to strike before a contract settlement is reached for the coming school year.

Members of the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC), the local chapter of the Illinois Education Association, have received ballots from the teacher negotiating team asking for their position on the negotiations which have been going on since February.

Teachers are asked to respond to the contract offer of the board of education representatives which calls for a six per cent package deal salary increase, including a salary schedule, to last one year.

Under the board offer, beginning teachers with Dist. 15 would receive a base salary of $7,650. Continuing teachers would move up one step on the salary schedule, plus receive a one and one-fourth per cent raise.

Teachers already at the maximum experience level would be granted a six per cent flat increase over their present salaries.

UNDER THE CURRENT salary schedule, beginning teachers receive a base salary of $7,500, with four and three-fourths per cent salary increases for experience on each step of the schedule.

Settlement was not reached between the teacher and board representatives because the teacher negotiators felt "the board's offer of a six per cent package deal for everyone was insufficient because of the board's increased revenue and the rise of the cost of living," according to a statement issued by the teacher team.

Ballots have been sent to the almost

Delay Rezoning Decision

About 18 residents of the Pinehurst Manor subdivision came to the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals meeting Monday to protest a planned development for more than 120 acres north of the subdivision and Gardenia Lane in Palatine Township.

A decision on rezoning petition was postponed until the attorney for the homeowners group, Eugene Schlickman, could present the homeowners' appeal. The date of the continued hearing, at which time the Palatine village attorney will also present possible objections, will be set by the zoning board at a later date convenient to all parties.

Schlickman could not be present because of commitments in Springfield.

In an unusual move, the developers, Otto Bittner and Mildred LaRue, will donate eight acres of land on which Dist. 15 can build an elementary school. In the past, developers have given money to school districts but have not donated land.

Joseph Kiszka, assistant superintendent of Dist. 15, said at the meeting in the Palatine Village Hall that he was pleased with the donation of the land. He said that Dist. 15 had long been looking for a school site in the Pinehurst Manor area, and that reports indicated the donated land would be excellent to build on.

The development, which will be shaped like a large "L" if approved by the Cook County Board, runs along Gardenia Lane and Lake-Cook Road between Baldwin Road and Long Grove Road. When fully developed, the land and the 2,500 planned units will be worth about $50 million.

About a third of the units will be quadruminums which will sell for between $20,000 and $28,000. The quadruminums will have four two-story units in each building. Each quadruminum will have two bedrooms.

Eight 12-story high rises will also be built, with a total of 210 high rise units. Both one-and two-bedroom apartments will be included in the high rises. The apartments will cost $190 a month for the one-bedroom apartments and $285 a month for the two-bedroom apartments.

According to the developers, 39 per cent of the 120 acres will be open space, and will include three small lakes and a swimming pool.

A small convenience shopping center is also planned for the area, which will include a small grocery store, cleaner and other such services, the developers said.

KIDS CAN HAVE a lot of fun in a big, new house, as Mrs. Benjamin Manalo. She directs the painters and little Benjamin Jr., Melissa and Vicor Manalo show, but furniture delivery men, while the kids have a lot of spare moving in can be quite a headache for their mother, play room, at least until all the furniture arrives.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papciak, 2368 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papciak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shoreline Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

New Family Attracted To Area By Schools

(Editor's Note: Many new families move in and out of Palatine every year. For a family who's new in town, there are some adjustments to be made. Chosen randomly, the Benjamin Manalo family, living here for just two months, gives some reasons for moving to Palatine.

by PAUL GREENFIELD

More than 835 new families moved into Palatine between June 15, 1970 and June 15, 1971, village officials report, and this figure does not include those moving into large apartment buildings.

The growth, which is measured by new water meters installed, is probably more than the population growth for the two full years from 1968 to 1970.

From the special Palatine census taking in 1968 until the U.S. census in 1970, Palatine added about 2400 residents. Each of the 835 new families would then have to have fewer than three members to equal in one year the previous two year's growth. And again, this does not include most apartment dwellers, which the census does include in its count.

YET DESPITE THE large number of families who have been moving to Palatine, the wants, needs and problems of many of these families are quite similar. The experience of the Benjamin Manalo's who moved into their new home at 1044 Old Mill Dr. about two months ago, seems to relate the concerns of many new Palatine residents.

New employment opportunities attract many people to the Northwest suburbs, and the Manalo's are no exception. "We moved here mainly because I opened up my medical practice in Rolling Meadows," the Philipino-born general practitioner said. Because of the rapid growth of the area, Manalo said, there is a great need for physicians.

But there were other inducements for the Manalo's to move here from their Chicago apartment, especially since they have three young children. Mrs. Manalo said she feels much better knowing that when Victor, 8, Melissa, 6, and Benjamin Jr., 2, go out to play they are not likely to get injured by a passing car.

"The kids also have a lot more space to play in," she said. "The city just doesn't have this much recreation area."

Suburban schools also attracted the Manalo's. "We had heard a lot about how good schools out here are, and naturally that meant something when we were deciding where to move," Manalo said.

WITH THREE CHILDREN, Manalo said, they were outgrowing their townhouse apartment, and large homes are hard to find in Chicago, another reason for their moving to Palatine.

And the absence of the heavy traffic was another plus for the northwest suburbs. But the Manalo's are not able to escape the evils of the Chicago streets altogether. Manalo still operates a clinic near Rush-Presbyterian St. Lukes Hospital and travels down there every day. Also, the Manalo's still visit their old friends in the city.

"But most of our friends want to come out here and see our new house," Mrs. Manalo said.

All new residents have some problems, and the Manalo's haven't been able to escape some, either. "It takes time to get a telephone put in," Manalo said, "and things like the heating take time to get straightened out."

MRS. MANALO DIDN'T like all the packing and unpacking they had to do, and are still doing. "And the water is awfully hard out here, so we had to get a water-softener," she said.

"Getting around out here hasn't been too much of a problem, though," Mrs. Manalo said. "The Palatine Plaza is near us, and we can get almost everything we need there."

The Chamber of Commerce and the Welcome Wagon were also helpful to the Manalo's, she said. The Chamber gave them the village directory, and the Welcome Wagon gave them, besides much valuable information, a month's free subscription to the Herald. The Manalo's chose Palatine because "we happened to find the house we wanted here instead of in another suburb," Manalo said. But now they're happy they made the choice.

"There's more fresh air out here, and the people are very friendly," he said. "There were five families living in our townhouse in Chicago, and we only knew one of them. And then we would just say 'hello' and 'goodbye.'"

"OUR NEIGHBORS here have been very friendly, and have really helped us a lot in moving in and getting used to a new environment," Mrs. Manalo said. "And our kids haven't had any problems finding friends at all. In fact, Melissa has already been to a birthday party."

Because the kids in the neighborhood have been so nice, she said, her two school-age children are quite eager to go to their new school in the fall.

"Palatine seems to be quite a progressive town, and I'm sure it will develop into a prosperous town," Manalo said. "We're very happy we moved here."

And so, apparently, are the hundreds of families who move to Palatine each year.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Russian Embassy's No. 2 man and the Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Many Ways To View Drug Abuse

(Editor's Note: In the next few weeks Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case will discuss the growing drug abuse problem in the area. We're happy to present his data and views on the subject.)

by LEWIS CASE

There are probably several different ways of looking at and examining the human price of drug abuse because there are so many ways it can affect personal and family life and individuals' futures.

It would seem obvious that anything which a person uses to withdraw from society would have a large potential for adversity. Perhaps, more than anything else that's happening, the drug movement in our country definitely allows its followers to withdraw from society.

It's hard to separate the drug problem from the social scene. Young people often feel opportunities are limited to them. So drugs offer a means of withdrawal from society they find too impersonal.

Drugs also offer escape from the competitive aspects of society. One cannot compete in the drug state. Youngsters often want to avoid getting involved in the "games" that mark our society.

Regardless of the initial reason for experimenting with drugs, the user always winds up with far more real trouble than he ever had when he was seeking his personal escape from the daily realities of life.

The actual monetary cost of using any drugs is a constantly increasing factor, but the effects on human life are much more staggering and heartbreaking.

Exactly how many youths are getting themselves in trouble by abusing drugs is impossible to count, since it is difficult to measure. But it's a well known fact that courts are becoming inundated with drug violation cases.

A drug conviction in court is "on the record" and the single fact that there was a conviction is a difficult thing to live down.

Aside from this, individual reaction to drugs is so varied that just one experiment can lead a person to a long term dependency on the use of certain drugs. To argue that some drugs have not proved permanently harmful is ridiculous. In viewing some case histories it's been shown that the least harmful drug often leads to the most horrifying drug use in the search of bigger and better thrills.

Remember when the alcoholic was looked on simply as a social outcast. Now, of course, alcoholism is looked upon as a disease and treated accordingly. Why? Because there are approximately 6 million alcoholics in this country today.

It would seem we waited too long to take effective treatment measures against alcoholism. Let's not look the other way on the national drug problem.

Teachers Face Strike Decision Before Fall

400 teachers in the CTC asking them to take one of three possible positions: whether to reject the board's six per cent salary offer and not return to work at last year's salary; whether to reject the board's offer but return to work with negotiations continuing; or whether to accept the board's offer.

Responses to the ballots are requested to be returned to the teacher negotiating team by Saturday so that the feelings of the teachers can be determined and the next course of action prepared.

According to George Yingst, head of the teacher negotiating team, the base figure of $7,650 is "basically the same as the first offer in February." Under their proposal, the total cost to the board of education would be approximately $5,341,180, as opposed to the $5,038,871 spent under the 1970-71 schedule.

"AFTER MUCH discussion, your team proposed a salary schedule with a $7,900 base on the current index," the teacher statement said. "This would cost the board approximately $158,000 more than their offer and would give the teachers approximately a four and one-fourth per cent raise after their vertical move on last year's schedule."

However, the board negotiators "flatly rejected this proposal," the statement said.

Board representatives told the teachers they would direct the Dist. 15 business manager to set up payment for teachers on last year's salary schedule with no raises to be granted for experience. This procedure would not involve moving teachers up one step on the schedule because of experience.

Following the board's rejection of their offer, the teacher representatives suggested an impasse be declared and the problem be subjected to fact-finding as outlined in the professional negotiations agreement approved by both sides almost two years ago. However, the board also rejected this proposal.

Under the negotiations agreement, if an impasse had been declared, the services of a mediator from the American Arbitration Association would have been requested. However, neither the decisions reached by a mediator nor a fact-finder would have been final.

THE LAST negotiation session held July 27 was adjourned until Aug. 25, four days before school is scheduled to begin. At that meeting, the board will have an advisor present, whom Yingst has speculated to be Richard Zwieback, an attorney who specializes in school board contract negotiations.

Two of the board representatives were unavailable for comment Monday about the entire situation. Walter Sundling, the board president and chairman of the board negotiating team, is on vacation.

If the teachers would choose to return to work under their present salary schedule with negotiations continuing, they would lose about $25,000 a month in combined salaries because of no increases to the next salary step, Yingst estimated.

"We didn't feel we were ready to take the risk and speak for all the teachers on this, so we are seeking their opinion through the ballot," Yingst said.

According to Dave Tomchek, area field representative for the Illinois Education Association who has attended most negotiation sessions, the board's offer "is not a very significant figure," explaining that Elk Grove Dist. 59, the only area school district to reach a settlement with teachers, is giving teachers a seven per cent total increase.

The problem with bargaining in Dist. 15 "is twofold," Tomchek said. First, the board hasn't changed its money position since the beginning of negotiations, he said, which "is not good faith bargaining."

Second, he said the board has put "personal vacations before their service to the district," causing the delay of the next negotiation session until Aug. 25.

TOMCHEK SAID the board's refusal to change their financial offer is "an outrageous position, which amounts to blackmail." He said if state bargaining laws existed for the teachers, such refusal would probably be prohibited.

He said he doubted whether Dist. 15 teachers would vote to strike by mail through the ballots, but did not eliminate the possibility of a strike.

Housing Story Is Disputed

A recent Herald article about low and moderate-income housing contained a number of errors, according to Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

The article stated Walchirk reported to the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing committee he thought there was no need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority in Arlington Heights.

Walchirk said yesterday he thinks there is a need for low-income housing "if not for present Arlington Heights residents, then for ex-migrant families in and about the Northwest suburban area." Walchirk said he thinks there is a need for both low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights and the surrounding towns.

taxes, but it is something," Walchirk said.

Walchirk was quoted in the previous article as saying the differing tax situations of privately financed and publicly built housing was the reason housing built by private developers was better.

Yesterday, Walchirk said both types of housing have their importance because "they meet different needs and fit different income levels." Rental prices for low-income, publicly financed projects are about one-third as much as prices for moderate-income, privately developed housing.

Moderate-income housing projects can be developed by private developers while low-income housing requires a public agency, Walchirk said, "but the need is for both types."

The CCHA executive also disputed a portion of the article which stated that when private developers build moderate income housing, the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the tax rolls. The article stated that when developments are built by a public housing authority, the property is taken off the tax rolls.

When a public housing authority builds a project, 10 per cent of the rent receipts are paid in lieu of real estate taxes, Walchirk pointed out.

This money paid in lieu of taxes is distributed to various taxing bodies in the same proportions as real estate taxes. The money paid by public housing authorities is "not as much as property

1st Bank And Trust Wins Championship

The 1st Bank and Trust Co. entry in the Palatine North Little League senior league, behind the route-going performance of Bill Carlson, won the league championship, Sunday by beating the Palatine Savings and Loan team 13 to 3.

The big blow in a five-run fifth inning for 1st Bank and Trust was a two-run homer by Jim Sprinkle. Dave Kunsweiler took the loss for the Savings and Loan. The game, played at Maple Park, was between the champions of the first half and the second half of the season.

Police Seek Apartment Keys

Arlington Heights police are searching for two sets of keys stolen this weekend which fit door locks at Greenbrier Apartments in Arlington Heights and Lake Louise Apartments in Palatine.

Mrs. Loretta Smale, rental manager for Greenbrier Apartments, which along with Lake Louise was built by Miller Builders and is under common management, said the keys were taken late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Two key cases containing 244 keys, 120 for Greenbrier at 2400 N. Kennicott, and 124 for Lake Louise on Wilke Road, were taken from a desk drawer in Mrs. Smale's office.

Police said they believe the thief gained entry into the manager's office with a master key. There was no evidence that the door or lock had been forced open, police added.

Mrs. Smale told police that only employees of the apartment complexes are issued master keys. Police, therefore, have questioned at least 12 persons employed as custodians.

No suspect has been named, but police said one custodian had been fired after three months of working at Greenbrier, and had never turned in his master key.

After the employee was discharged, there were a series of incidents at the apartments, including some vandalism in the basement of the buildings, Mrs. Smale told police.

Mrs. Smale said management is now considering changing the locks on the doors of all apartments matching the stolen keys.

Both Arlington Heights and Palatine police said they will put on extra patrols in the Greenbrier-Lake Louise apartment area.

For Those Away From Home

This is a summary of the week's news in Palatine.

THOMAS F. AHERN, a 10-year Palatine resident active in community affairs, was unanimously appointed trustee to the Palatine Village Board. He replaces John Hughes, who resigned two weeks ago. Hughes is moving to Wisconsin.

CHANGES RECENTLY approved in the preannexation agreement for development of sewer and water facilities at Countryside Apartments are expected to save about $8,000 from the cost previously anticipated.

FORMER ASSISTANT director Fred B. Hall was appointed director of the Palatine Park District by the park district board. Hall replaces Rex McMorris, who resigned July 13. Hall was assistant director from 1965 to 1966. He will be assuming his duties Aug. 16 at an annual salary of $14,200.

ANN SCOLLAY, vice president and political affairs chairman of the 13th Congressional District Democratic Women's Club, has been appointed democratic committeewoman of Palatine by committeeman Richard Mugallan. The organization has not had an official committeewoman in two years.

A MAINTENANCE AGREEMENT between the Village of Palatine and the state division of highways will provide an additional $1,700 for patchwork, bringing the total to $19,900 of money the village will receive to fix state roads in the village. Although village officials said the money isn't enough to do all the necessary work, they said if they didn't sign the agreement the state would leave the work for the village to do, anyway.

THE SALVATION ARMY Community Counseling Center raised more than $2,500 more than the minimum $7,500 it needed to stay in operation without cutting services. A private foundation has agreed to provide a matching grant.

PALATINE WON'T GET any state funds to help finance the Colfax Street improvement project from Smith to Quentin, but will receive $100,000 for later improvement of Colfax east from Smith to Hicks, according to village manager Berton Braun.

THE VILLAGE INCUMBENT Party, which elected two of its three trustee candidates in April's elections, has changed its name to the Village Independent Party and established a nine-man board of directors to coordinate the party's activities. Tom Kearns was elected president of the VIP's.

Duffy Kilrain Leaves Hospital

Duffy Kilrain goes home from the hospital today, the day before the two-month anniversary of an accident that nearly cost him his life.

Duffy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Duffy, Hoffman Estates, has been a patient at Alexian Brothers Medical Center since June 4, more than eight weeks ago, when he was struck by an auto near his home.

Duffy is to be released at 10 a.m., and will go home, at least for the present. His mother said yesterday she still is not sure whether or not he will need further treatment at some other institution, although he will be receiving mental therapy at home. He also will return to Alexian Brothers in a month for X-rays.

Last night Duffy was presented with his diploma from Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg, from which he would have graduated June 9 were it not for the accident. Curtis Casey, principal, also presented Duffy with four awards, recognizing his achievements in physical fitness, and his participation in wrestling, track and band activities at school. Duffy was a member of the band two years, and track and wrestling teams last year.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS award is in honor of Duffy's scores among the top 15 per cent of youth in the country on a series of skill tests given at school.

Casey described Duffy as a "very popular boy" at school, and said he has been well-liked by teachers as well as by classmates.

Duffy went home for a brief visit Sunday, said Mrs. Duffy, and he "enjoyed himself very much." His visit brought the first smile to his face his mother has seen since the accident, she said. He felt at ease at home, and seemed happy in the familiar surroundings after his long absence from them, she said.

Duffy's hospital stay has been marked into time spans by his progress in recovery. Some of his victories have been major, and some have seemed almost insignificant, except to his family and their friends. For about two weeks, he was unconscious, and listed in critical condition in intensive care. When he regained consciousness, his condition was classed serious, but he was kept in intensive care for several days more. His progress improved steadily most of the time, indicated by such triumphs as recognition of family, speaking coherently and feeding himself.

TWO WEEKS AGO, Duffy's doctors announced they would begin teaching him to walk again. He had been kept in bed, except for brief spells in a wheel chair, until that time. Last week Duffy was able to walk, first with assistance and then on his own.

While Duffy has made good physical progress, he still has not regained all his mental powers, said his mother. His memory is not complete or always accurate.

Hospital officials have encouraged interested persons to write to Duffy, and even to send him gifts in recent weeks, to help stimulate mental improvement. They have recommended creative play things to persons wishing to send gifts, specifying the articles should involve some kind of assembly, but should not have small parts.

CTC Members Receive Ballot

Teachers Must Face Strike Decision Before Settlement

Teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will have to face the decision of whether to strike before a contract settlement is reached for the coming school year.

Members of the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC), the local chapter of the Illinois Education Association, have received ballots from the teacher negotiating team asking for their position on the negotiations which have been going on since February.

Teachers are asked to respond to the contract offer of the board of education representatives which calls for a six per cent package deal salary increase, including a salary schedule, to last one year.

Under the board offer, beginning teachers with Dist. 15 would receive a base salary of $7,650. Continuing teachers would move up one step on the salary schedule, plus receive a one and one-fourth per cent raise.

Teachers already at the maximum experience level would be granted a six per cent flat increase over their present salaries.

UNDER THE CURRENT salary schedule, beginning teachers receive a base salary of $7,500, with four and three-fourths per cent salary increases for experience on each step of the schedule.

Settlement was not reached between the teacher and board representatives because the teacher negotiators felt "the board's offer of a six per cent package deal for everyone was insufficient because of the board's increased revenue and the rise of the cost of living," according to a statement issued by the teacher team.

Ballots have been sent to the almost-

Why Choose Meadows?

Train Service Important

(Editor's Note: Many families move in and out of Rolling Meadows every year. To a family new in town there are a few adjustments. Chosen randomly, the Richard Gerke family has lived here for just two months and gives some reasons for moving to Rolling Meadows.)

by LINDA PUNCH

An estimated 250 families have moved into apartments and homes in Rolling Meadows since January.

Some families come to make homes for themselves away from the rush and crowds of the city. Others merely transplant themselves from a suburb of one city to the suburb of another. All go through a similar process — that of adjusting to a new community and making it their own.

For the Richard Gerke family of Rolling Meadows the period of adjustment has been relatively easy. Mr. and Mrs. Gerke, their daughters Sara, Deborah and Barbara and their Siamese cat, Mari, moved to Rolling Meadows in June from New Albany, Ind., near Louisville, Ky.

As a suburb to Louisville, Ky., New Albany serves basically the same function as Rolling Meadows — a commuter town for city-based businessmen.

"IN NEW ALBANY, I worked out of my home," said Gerke, who works for Union Carbide in Chicago. "Now I work out of Chicago, but I also do a lot of traveling."

Easy access to the train station and expressway were important factors in the Gerkes' choice of homes.

"We spent a week looking for homes in this area," he said. "We looked at new homes but they didn't have trees or anything else."

The Gerkes' final choice was a five-year-old house at 2178 Vermont.

"We wanted something with a little shady area. This is a very attractive area — everyone takes pride in their homes," Gerke said.

Getting acquainted with their neighbors has been no problem for the Gerkes. The two older girls have a flock of friends in the neighborhood, and Mrs. Gerke is still trying to find time to return dinners given them their first week in town.

"Our neighbors have been terribly friendly. Sometimes you move into a new neighborhood and don't see your neighbors for months," said Mrs. Gerke.

Although living in Rolling Meadows is not a drastic change from New Albany, the Gerkes have found differences.

"It's about the same distance to stores in both cities, but there's more of a variety here," said Mrs. Gerke. "If you wanted a wide selection in New Albany you'd have to go to downtown Louisville."

Travel in the Northwest suburbs is also a change from New Albany.

"I THINK CHICAGO has the worst drivers I've ever seen in my life," said Gerke. "I do a lot of traveling and there are no drivers like Chicago drivers."

Air traffic also poses a problem for the Gerkes.

"We're having trouble getting used to the airplanes. It seems like we're right on the flight path for landing. You can't hear yourself talk when the jets go over," Gerke said.

The greatest difference between New Albany and Rolling Meadows is prices, according to Gerke.

"If I had paid for a house down there what I paid for this house they would have thought I was a millionaire," Gerke said.

Delay Rezoning Decision

About 18 residents of the Pinehurst Manor subdivision came to the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals meeting Monday to protest a planned development for more than 120 acres north of the subdivision and Gardenia Lane in Palatine Township.

A decision on rezoning petition was postponed until the attorney for the homeowners group, Eugene Schlickman, could present the homeowners' appeal. The date of the continued hearing, at which time the Palatine village attorney will also present possible objections, will be set by the zoning board at a later date convenient to all parties.

Schlickman could not be present because of commitments in Springfield.

In an unusual move, the developers, Otto Bittner and Mildred LaRue, will donate eight acres of land on which Dist. 15 can build an elementary school. In the past, developers have given money to school districts but have not donated land.

Joseph Kiszka, assistant superintendent of Dist. 15, said at the meeting in the Palatine Village Hall that he was pleased with the donation of the land. He said that Dist. 15 had long been looking for a school site in the Pinehurst Manor area, and that reports indicated the donated land would be excellent to build on.

The development, which will be shaped like a large "L" if approved by the Cook County Board, runs along Gardenia Lane and Lake-Cook Road between Baldwin Road and Long Grove Road. When fully developed, the land and the 2,500 planned units will be worth about $50 million.

About a third of the units will be quadruminums which will sell for between $20,000 and $28,000. The quadruminums will have four two-story units in each building. Each quadruminum will have two bedrooms.

Eight 12-story high rises will also be built, with a total of 210 high rise units. Both one- and two-bedroom apartments will be included in the high rises. The apartments will cost $190 a month for the one-bedroom apartments and $285 a month for the two-bedroom apartments.

According to the developers, 39 per cent of the 120 acres will be open space, and will include three small lakes and a swimming pool.

A small convenience shopping center is also planned for the area, which will include a small grocery store, cleaner and other such services, the developers said.

HOME IS WHERE the family is for the Richard Gerke family of Rolling Meadows. Newcomers to the community, the Gerkes are still going through their period of adjustment.

Special Meeting Set For YMCA Board

A special meeting of the Countryside YMCA board of directors will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the YMCA Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson, Palatine.

According to Y director Herman Hertog, the meeting was called so that the Executive and Facility Planning committees can make recommendations to the board on facilities for the future Y building. Hertog said, however, the board may not take any action on the recommendations at this time.

"Prices are higher here on food, haircuts and clothes. That all adds up."

Medical services in the Northwest suburbs also differ from those in New Albany, according to Mrs. Gerke.

"I called two doctors here and could only get their answering services. I'm used to calling and having a doctor there," she said.

All in all, the family is pleased with the new home, according to Gerke. Sara, 6, is getting ready for her first day at school, and hopefully, in the near future, Mrs. Gerke will decide where to hang that picture in the living room.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papciak, 2368 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papciak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shortley Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

Signups For Preschool Rescheduled

Registration for the fall session of the Rolling Meadows Park District Preschool has been rescheduled to start this week.

Registration for any or all three of the fall sessions can be made at the Rolling Meadows Park District at 1 Park Meadow Place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

The first fall session will run from Sept. 13 to Oct. 15. The second session starts Oct. 18 and ends Nov. 19 with the third session starting Nov. 22 and ending Dec. 23.

Three classes are being offered for three and four year olds. Class 1 is from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Class 2 is at the same time on Tuesday and Thursday. Class 6 is from 1 to 3 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

Children from four years old to school age may be enrolled in any of four classes available. Class 3 meets from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. On Tuesday and Thursday Class 4 will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday with Class 7 meeting at the same time on Tuesday and Thursday.

The fee for Tuesday and Thursday classes is $12.50 and the fee for Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes is $18.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by a vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 19 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Russian Embassy's No. 2 man and the Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Many Ways To View Drug Abuse

(Editor's Note: In the next few weeks Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case will discuss the growing drug abuse problem in the area. We're happy to present his data and views on the subject.)

by LEWIS CASE

There are probably several different ways of looking at and examining the human price of drug abuse because there are so many ways it can affect personal and family life and individuals' futures.

It would seem obvious that anything which a person uses to withdraw from society would have a large potential for adversity. Perhaps, more than anything else that's happening, the drug movement in our country definitely allows its followers to withdraw from society.

It's hard to separate the drug problem from the social scene. Young people often feel opportunities are limited to them. So drugs offer a means of withdrawal from society they find too impersonal.

Drugs also offer escape from the competitive aspects of society. One cannot compete in the drug state. Youngsters often want to avoid getting involved in the "games" that mark our society.

Regardless of the initial reason for experimenting with drugs, the user always winds up with far more real trouble than he ever had when he was seeking his personal escape from the daily realities of life.

The actual monetary cost of using any drugs is a constantly increasing factor, but the effects on human life are much more staggering and heartbreaking.

Exactly how many youths are getting themselves in trouble by abusing drugs is impossible to count, since it is difficult to measure. But it's a well known fact that courts are becoming inundated with drug violation cases.

A drug conviction in court is "on the record" and the single fact that there was a conviction is a difficult thing to live down.

Aside from this, individual reaction to drugs is so varied that just one experiment can lead a person to a long term dependency on the use of certain drugs. To argue that some drugs have not proved permanently harmful is ridiculous. In viewing some case histories it's been shown that the least harmful drug often leads to the most horrifying drug use in the search of bigger and better thrills.

Remember when the alcoholic was looked on simply as a social outcast. Now, of course, alcoholism is looked upon as a disease and treated accordingly. Why? Because there are approximately 6 million alcoholics in this country today.

It would seem we waited too long to take effective treatment measures against alcoholism. Let's not look the other way on the national drug problem.

Teachers Face Strike Decision Before Fall

400 teachers in the CTC asking them to take one of three possible positions: whether to reject the board's six per cent salary offer and not return to work at last year's salary; whether to reject the board's offer but return to work with negotiations continuing; or whether to accept the board's offer.

Responses to the ballots are requested to be returned to the teacher negotiating team by Saturday so that the feelings of the teachers can be determined and the next course of action prepared.

According to George Yingst, head of the teacher negotiating team, the base figure of $7,650 is "basically the same as the first offer in February." Under their proposal, the total cost to the board of education would be approximately $5,341,180, as opposed to the $5,038,871 spent under the 1970-71 schedule.

"AFTER MUCH discussion, your team proposed a salary schedule with a $7,900 base on the current index," the teacher statement said. "This would cost the board approximately $158,000 more than their offer and would give the teachers approximately a four and one-fourth per cent raise after their vertical move on last year's schedule."

However, the board negotiators "flatly rejected this proposal," the statement said.

Board representatives told the teachers they would direct the Dist. 15 business manager to set up payment for teachers on last year's salary schedule with no raises to be granted for experience. This procedure would not involve moving teachers up one step on the schedule because of experience.

Following the board's rejection of their offer, the teacher representatives suggested an impasse be declared and the problem be subjected to fact-finding as outlined in the professional negotiations agreement approved by both sides almost two years ago. However, the board also rejected this proposal.

Under the negotiations agreement, if an impasse had been declared, the services of a mediator from the American Arbitration Association would have been requested. However, neither the decisions reached by a mediator nor a fact-finder would have been final.

THE LAST negotiation session held July 27 was adjourned until Aug. 25, four days before school is scheduled to begin. At that meeting, the board will have an advisor present, whom Yingst has speculated to be Richard Zwieback, an attorney who specializes in school board contract negotiations.

Two of the board representatives were unavailable for comment Monday about the entire situation. Walter Sundling, the board president and chairman of the board negotiating team, is on vacation.

If the teachers would choose to return to work under their present salary schedule with negotiations continuing, they would lose about $25,000 a month in combined salaries because of no increases to the next salary step, Yingst estimated.

"We didn't feel we were ready to take the risk and speak for all the teachers on this, so we are seeking their opinion through the ballot," Yingst said.

According to Dave Tomchek, area field representative for the Illinois Education Association who has attended most negotiation sessions, the board's offer "is not a very significant figure," explaining that Elk Grove Dist. 59, the only area school district to reach a settlement with teachers, is giving teachers a seven per cent total increase.

The problem with bargaining in Dist. 15 "is twofold," Tomchek said. First, the board hasn't changed its money position since the beginning of negotiations, he said, which "is not good faith bargaining."

Second, he said the board has put "personal vacations before their service to the district," causing the delay of the next negotiation session until Aug. 25.

TOMCHEK SAID the board's refusal to change their financial offer is "an outrageous position, which amounts to blackmail." He said if state bargaining laws existed for the teachers, such refusal would probably be prohibited.

He said he doubted whether Dist. 15 teachers would vote to strike by mail through the ballots, but did not eliminate the possibility of a strike.

Housing Story Is Disputed

A recent Herald article about low and moderate-income housing contained a number of errors, according to Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

The article stated Walchirk reported to the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing committee he thought there was no need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority in Arlington Heights.

Walchirk said yesterday he thinks there is a need for low-income housing "if not for present Arlington Heights residents, then for ex-migrant families in and about the Northwest suburban area." Walchirk said he thinks there is a need for both low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights and the surrounding towns.

The CCHA executive also disputed a portion of the article which stated that when private developers build moderate income housing, the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the tax rolls. The article stated that when developments are built by a public housing authority, the property is taken off the tax rolls.

When a public housing authority builds a project, 10 per cent of the rent receipts are paid in lieu of real estate taxes, Walchirk pointed out.

This money paid in lieu of taxes is distributed to various taxing bodies in the same proportions as real estate taxes. The money paid by public housing authorities is "not as much as property taxes, but it is something," Walchirk said.

Walchirk was quoted in the previous article as saying the differing tax situations of privately financed and publicly built housing was the reason housing built by private developers was better.

Yesterday, Walchirk said both types of housing have their importance because "they meet different needs and fit different income levels." Rental prices for low-income, publicly financed projects are about one-third as much as prices for moderate-income, privately developed housing.

Moderate-income housing projects can be developed by private developers while low-income housing requires a public agency, Walchirk said, "but the need is for both types."

1st Bank And Trust Wins Championship

The 1st Bank and Trust Co. entry in the Palatine North Little League senior league, behind the route-going performance of Bill Carlson, won the league championship, Sunday by beating the Palatine Savings and Loan team 13 to 3.

The big blow in a five-run fifth inning for 1st Bank and Trust was a two-run homer by Jim Sprinkle. Dave Kunsweiler took the loss for the Savings and Loan. The game, played at Maple Park, was between the champions of the first half and the second half of the season.

Keeping Up

Here is a summary of last week's news in Rolling Meadows:

TRAFFIC FINES issued by the Cook County Circuit Court in Rolling Meadows this year are approximately $3,000 higher than the same period last year. The increase has been attributed to selective enforcement of traffic areas within the city, additional police manpower and a second radar car by Police Chief Lewis Case.

MAIL COLLECTION times in Rolling Meadows have been moved up. Instead of the previous 8 p.m. pickup the last collection for mail dropped at the Arlington Heights Post Office will be 6:30 p.m. on weekdays and 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

A BRIEFCASE possibly containing $100,000 went unclaimed when officials at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect responded to a false bomb threat by an anonymous caller. An investigation of the incident is being conducted by the Mount Prospect Police.

FUTURE EXPANSION of the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District in the south industrial park and west near Plum Grove School is anticipated by Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Growth of the fire protection district will necessitate a new station being built near Rte. 58 in the future, he said.

A COURT SUIT against Layne Western Co. of Aurora for damages to a well has been authorized by the Rolling Meadows City Council. The suit will charge Layne Western Co. with negligence in sinking the well an additional 806 feet. The well, which services the southern section of the city, has been inoperable for the last month.

A SIGN ORDINANCE to regulate the size of gasoline price signs has been recommended to the Rolling Meadows City Council. The recommendation was referred to the Ordinance for Judiciary Committee for study.

A MARCH ON O'HARE Airport to protest "noise pollution" from jet aircraft was threatened during hearings by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. George Franks, chairman of the O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council, told the hearing board his committee had followed the due process without receiving results and the committee's next meeting might be out on the runway.

TAX CUTS for homeowners in the Rolling Meadows Park District were predicted by Park District Board Pres. William T. Billings. The anticipated reduction was attributed to growth and construction in the district. The tax levy ordinance will be approved next month.

LOW-COST HOMESITES are not available in the Northwest suburbs, according to a recent study. Bernard Lee, commissioner of the Cook County Housing Authority, said the only way to alleviate the situation is for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to loosen its cost restrictions on land acquisition.

Duffy Kilrain Leaves Hospital

Duffy Kilrain goes home from the hospital today, the day before the two-month anniversary of an accident that nearly cost him his life.

Duffy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hogg, Hoffman Estates, has been a patient at Alexian Brothers Medical Center since June 4, more than eight weeks ago, when he was struck by an auto near his home.

Duffy is to be released at 10 a.m., and will go home, at least for the present. His mother said yesterday she still is not sure whether or not he will need further treatment at some other institution, although he will be receiving mental therapy at home. He also will return to Alexian Brothers in a month for X-rays.

Last night Duffy was presented with his diploma from Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg, from which he would have graduated June 9 were it not for the accident. Curtis Casey, principal, also presented Duffy with four awards, recognizing his achievements in physical fitness, and his participation in wrestling, track and band activities at school. Duffy was a member of the band two years, and track and wrestling teams last year.

THE PHYSICAL FITNESS award is in honor of Duffy's scores among the top 15 per cent of youth in the country on a series of skill tests given at school.

Casey described Duffy as a "very popular boy" at school, and said he has been well-liked by teachers as well as by classmates.

Duffy went home for a brief visit Sunday, said Mrs. Hogg, and he "enjoyed himself very much." His visit brought the first smile to his face his mother has seen since the accident, she said. He felt at ease at home, and seemed happy in the familiar surroundings after his long absence from them, she said.

Duffy's hospital stay has been marked into time spans by his progress in recovery. Some of his victories have been major, and some have seemed almost insignificant, except to his family and their friends. For about two weeks, he was unconscious, and listed in critical condition in intensive care. When he regained consciousness, his condition was classed serious, but he was kept in intensive care for several days more. His progress improved steadily most of the time, indicated by such triumphs as recognition of family, speaking coherently and feeding himself.

TWO WEEKS AGO, Duffy's doctors announced they would begin teaching him to walk again. He had been kept in bed, except for brief spells in a wheel chair, until that time. Last week Duffy was able to walk, first with assistance and then on his own.

While Duffy has made good physical progress, he still has not regained all his mental powers, said his mother. His memory is not complete or always accurate. Hospital officials have encouraged interested persons to write to Duffy, and even to send him gifts in recent weeks, to help stimulate mental improvement. They have recommended creative play things to persons wishing to send gifts, specifying the articles should involve some kind of assembly, but should not have small parts.

Police Seek Apartment Keys

Arlington Heights police are searching for two sets of keys stolen this weekend which fit door locks at Greenbrier Apartments in Arlington Heights and Lake Louise Apartments in Palatine.

Mrs. Loretta Smale, rental manager for Greenbrier Apartments, which along with Lake Louise was built by Miller Builders and is under common management, said the keys were taken late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Two key cases containing 244 keys, 120 for Greenbrier at 2400 N. Kennicott, and 124 for Lake Louise on Wilke Road, were taken from a desk drawer in Mrs. Smale's office.

Police said they believe the thief gained entry into the manager's office with a master key. There was no evidence that the door or lock had been forced open, police added.

Mrs. Smale told police that only employees of the apartment complexes are issued master keys. Police, therefore, have questioned at least 12 persons employed as custodians.

No suspect has been named, but police said one custodian had been fired after three months of working at Greenbrier, and had never turned in his master key.

After the employee was discharged, there were a series of incidents at the apartments, including some vandalism in the basement of the buildings, Mrs. Smale told police.

Mrs. Smale said management is now considering changing the locks on the doors of all apartments matching the stolen keys.

Both Arlington Heights and Palatine police said they will put on extra patrols in the Greenbrier-Lake Louise apartment area.

Group To Appeal Ruling Against Incorporation

Prospect Heights residents have filed a notice to appeal circuit court rejection of their proposal to incorporate Prospect Heights.

The residents announced they planned to appeal the case last month after Judge Harry Comerford dismissed the incorporation petition. The hearing had been continued five times since March.

The petition calls for incorporation of portions of Prospect Heights, unincorporated Wheeling and unincorporated Arlington Heights. It was filed by leaders of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

Police Chief Announces Retirement

Newell Esmond, Mount Prospect's police chief for almost six years, is resigning.

Esmond made the announcement in a press conference yesterday morning at the village hall. His last day as the village's police chief will be Aug. 13. He said yesterday he plans to move to Florida shortly thereafter.

No replacement, either on a temporary or a permanent basis has yet been named by village officials.

In a short statement Esmond said, "I have desired to retire as of last October and have been working toward this goal since then." Esmond said he is selling his present home at 1730 Verde Dr. He and his wife Billie, will move to a new home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Once in Fort Lauderdale, Esmond said, he plans to seek employment, either in police work or something similar.

Esmond's announcement came the same day that Robert Epley began his new job as Mount Prospect's village manager. Esmond said, however, "That this action coincides with the arrival of the new village manager, Bob Epley, is mere coincidence, and I look forward to his service here."

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert also praised Esmond: "It always hurts when good men leave the village. Newell is leaving the department in excellent shape. He's done a good job as chief."

Attorney Don Kreger, representing the petitioners, announced this week that he has filed a notice of appeal. He said, "A record of the county court trial is now being prepared and will be forwarded to the appellate court. Once the report is completed, I will prepare a brief on the case and submit it to the appellate court. Objectors will be given a chance to answer my brief."

IT IS NOT known when the case will appear before the appellate court. However, some parties involved in the case predicted it would be several months before the case is called because of the backlog of cases in the courts.

The county judge based his ruling on the fact that the petitioners failed to secure the consent of the municipalities which lie within one mile of the boundaries of the proposed city. Two of these municipalities, Arlington Heights and Wheeling, have filed an objection in court to the incorporation proposal.

The necessity of the municipalities' consent was the key factor in the hearing and the subject of a discrepancy in the statutes. The judge listened to arguments on both sides of the consent question before ruling. He heard no other evidence of objections. The consent question was the deciding factor in the case.

Attorneys representing objectors to the incorporation proposal include Jack Siegel, attorney of the Village of Arlington Heights; Paul Hamer, attorney of the Village of Wheeling; and Roger Bjorvik, attorney of the River Trails Park District. Several individuals are also objecting.

Jaycees Eye Sports Event

The Prospect Heights Jaycees are considering setting up a competitive sports event for community youth sometime later this year or early next year.

The Jaycees plan to consult their international headquarters about instituting communitywide competition in Prospect Heights. According to Roger Hoffman, a Jaycee officer, other Jaycee groups have participated in this type of project.

"One example is the speed skating races that were held in this area last year. Local winners were sent to a regional contest. Before we can hold a race, we have to find a skating rink that meets amateur standards."

"We are interested in small expenditure projects that will involve a large portion of the community," said Hoffman. "At this time we do not plan to give any funds away."

Another major consideration of the Jaycees is the formation of a J-Teens organization. With this project the Jaycees would serve in an advisory capacity to a group of teens.

The Jaycee's treasury includes $1,600 earned from a summer carnival. The Jaycees sponsored the carnival with the help of the Jaycees Wives and the Prospect Heights Woman's Club.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER BUSCH and two Mexican houseguests met with other members of a student group now visiting Prospect Heights at a swimming pool party last week. The girls, Leticia Beristain, right center and Yolanda Ramos will tour the United States with their group before returning to their home in Veracruz.

Two Mexican Women Like U.S. Stores

by BETSY BROOKER

American feminists might learn a lesson from two Mexican girls visiting the United States this month.

Leticia Beristain, 16, and Yolanda Ramos, 24, are living with the Walter Busch family in Prospect Heights, under the sponsorship of a program called "Experiment in International Living." They are here because they are independent young women who have broken with the Mexican traditions that require women to marry and retire to the home.

"In Mexico women must marry and not work. It is terrible," said Yolanda with a grimace. "Here all the people, men and women, work together. There are so many possibilities."

The two trend setters both headed straight for office jobs in Veracruz as soon as they finished their education. Yolanda is a secretary in a government office and Leticia is a secretary in a medical school — the same school at which Yolanda's brother is studying to be a doctor.

The girls' ambition also led them to the Franklin Institute in the same city for English lessons. It is through the institute that they learned about the trips offered by "Experiment in International Living." The two girls arrived in Prospect Heights last week along with seven other students from the institute.

The group's visit to the United States is being hosted by the Prospect Heights Woman's Club. All of the seven students are taking a first-hand look at American family life in Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights homes. The other host families are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Schlott, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Purcell, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Treacy, Col. and Mrs. Roland Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Camen; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sarnar and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Elston.

Comparing American family life with Mexican customs, Yolanda said there are few differences. She pointed out that her home is very similar to the Busch's, but a "little smaller. We only have a very narrow yard in front of our house and we have no dishwasher in the kitchen."

One of the most noticeable differences between the two countries is the meals, according to the girls. The food, of course, is different, but the hour of the meals is also different. The girls usually eat breakfast at 7:30 a.m., their midday meal at 2:30 p.m. and their final meal at 9:30 p.m.

In their tours of local sights, including skyscrapers and museums, the girls have enjoyed Randhurst Shopping Center the most. "I just love the stores," exclaimed Yolanda. She said many of the items are much cheaper here than in Mexico. And according to Leticia, American stores are much larger and have more departments.

The girls' first visit to the United States has held few other surprises. They said they had become very familiar with our country by watching U.S. news broadcasts on television in Mexico and by reading U.S. newspapers.

"We came to the United States because we wanted to learn more about the people of your country. We wanted to know what they are really like," said Yolanda. And thought the girls are not liberationists in the full sense of the word, they approve of the American movement. "It is good," they said.

Weekend Accidents Kill Man And Tot

Wheeling Police Monday were seeking clues to the identity of a man killed in a traffic accident late Sunday night on Milwaukee Avenue.

The unidentified man was the second person killed by a car over the weekend in Wheeling.

The first fatality occurred Saturday afternoon when four-year-old James H. Fess Jr. of 221 E. Norman Ln., Wheeling was struck by a car on East Norman Lane approximately 130 feet north of Maureen Drive.

The two separate incidents resulted in the first fatal auto accidents of the year in Wheeling.

Wheeling Police Patrolman Bill Ralston said yesterday that the dead man was approximately 30 years old, and apparently of Mexican ancestry.

Ralston said the man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, and had a mustache and black hair which was rather long although not shoulder length.

The man was of thin, medium build and had two tattoos on his left arm.

ONE TATTOO in the muscle area was a cross about three inches high and two inches wide with the initial "R" in the center, Ralston said. A second tattoo on the top of the victim's left hand had the initials R. A.

Wheeling Police Sgt. Ronald Nelson asked yesterday that anyone who could provide information as to the dead man's identity contact Wheeling police.

The body was taken to the Cook County morgue after he was declared dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 10:50 p.m. Sunday.

The driver of the car that struck the man was James R. Curley Jr., 26, of 27 S. Crestview Ter., Buffalo Grove.

He was not charged in connection with the accident. Curley told police that he first saw the man running across the road at the centerline of Milwaukee Avenue. The accident occurred south of Lake-Cook Road on Milwaukee Avenue at 10:30 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Bulgarian ambassador have been ordered out of Sudan, pushing diplomatic out of Sudan Monday, pushing diplomatic relations between the Sudan and the Soviet Union near the breaking point.

The Weather

Torrential downpours across the Atlantic Coast states have caused deaths, flooding and traffic problems.

Temperatures from around the nation:

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 884.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

With the help of the Mount Prospect Historical Society, archaeologists are taking a fascinating look back into history. On farm land in southwestern Illinois, they are carrying on one of the most important "digs" in the world today. So far they have found remains from 12 past civilizations — dating back to about 10,000 B.C.

Digging at the Koster site is being directed by Stuart Struwer, associate professor of archaeology at Northwestern University. High school and college students, as well as scientists, are assisting. The privately funded project needs $30,000 to continue this summer's work. To help out, the Mount Prospect Historical Society has sent a contribution.

Some interesting discoveries have been a large-headed dog buried near the remains of two ceremonial fires about 10,000 B.C.; mussel shell fishing lures and long bone hairpins used by people of the Helton Culture about 4,000 B.C.; and 3,000-year-old hunting spears used by men of the Riverton Culture.

WHILE CIVILIZATION was beginning to develop along the Nile, Tigris, Euphrates, Indus and Yellow Rivers, people were living in a flourishing village sheltered by limestone bluffs at the Koster site. Drilling has now gone down 34 feet. Archaeologists wonder if they have reached remains of the Paleo-Indians, who may have arrived in Illinois as early as 11,000 B.C. The Mount Prospect Historical Society wanted to have a small part in this exciting and important project.

Private Michael Korcek recently completed a ten-week military journalist course at Defense Information School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Korcek, 413 S. Wille St.

COLLEGE GRADS... Mark Rockley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Rockley, 1604 Chestnut, Prospect Heights, recently receives several special honors at Hope College in Holland, Mich. During commencement exercises he was awarded the Sigma Xi Senior Research award for making the most noteworthy contribution to research in the sciences while at the college. He also was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary. In addition, Mark received the E. I. DuPont Award for Research in Chemistry. He plans to attend graduate school at Cornell University in New York.

Augustana College in Rock Island, has awarded degrees to two Mount Prospect residents. Receiving a B.A. degree in business administration and geography was David Beckstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Beckstrom, 511 S. Owen St. Wendy Lynn Wegner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wegner, 708 S. Candota, has received a bachelor's degree in music education.

Jill Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Swanson, 19 N. Lancaster, has received her B.S. degree from the School of Business, University of Colorado in Boulder. She majored in marketing and statistics. Following a European vacation, Jill will become a management trainee for Dayton's fashion buying department in Minneapolis.

Inner-City Kids Want To Visit

Friendly Town Group Seeking Homes

There are more children from Chicago who want to spend some time in the Northwest suburbs than there are suburbanites willing to open their homes for a couple of weeks.

The 1971 Friendly Town program now in its second session of the summer still needs suburban families to host several inner-city children for a period of two weeks.

Before the first session which ran from July 11 to 25 about 30 children were called and told they couldn't come, according to Betty Ginger, Rolling Meadows.

"We just didn't have any place they could go," she said.

"IT'S KIND OF HARD to call a kid

who's ready to leave tomorrow and tell him he'll have to wait or maybe not come at all," she added.

Mrs. Ginger and Mary Ann Reiter of Arlington Heights are the organizers of the program which arranges for the inner-city children to visit with suburban host families.

Some of the 30 children who missed out on the first session of the Friendly Town program now are visiting in the area for the second session. But several children still need a place to stay.

For the first time since the program was started a third session has been scheduled running from Aug. 8 to 22.

"But we're willing to make exceptions

if those dates aren't acceptable to a family who's willing to take a child," Mrs. Ginger said.

"IF THE KIDS DON'T go at the convenience of the host they don't go at all, so we really don't have a choice," she added.

This year the majority of children involved in the program will come through the Faith Community Church on Chicago's west side. Host families are asked to go to the church on Sunday morning to pick up their guest.

Friendly Town children are given a medical exam before their visits. They are also covered by a $2,500 sickness and accident policy during their visits.

To be eligible, a family must provide their own personal liability insurance, included in most homeowner's policies, and be willing to furnish a personal reference.

FAMILIES WITH no children at home and those who have only infants are asked to request two children. Past experience indicates that Friendly Town children who are used to large families and crowded neighborhoods are happier when they are near children their own ages to play with.

Host families will receive the name of their assigned children about two days before the session begins. They are asked to contact the child and his family immediately to introduce themselves and ease any of the child's fear.

Housing Story Is Disputed

A recent Herald article about low and moderate-income housing contained a number of errors, according to Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

The article stated Walchirk reported to the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing committee he thought there was no need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority in Arlington Heights.

Walchirk said yesterday he thinks there is a need for low-income housing "if not for present Arlington Heights residents, then for ex-migrant families in and about the Northwest suburban area." Walchirk said he thinks there is a need for both low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights and the surrounding towns.

The CCHA executive also disputed a portion of the article which stated that when private developers build moderate income housing, the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the tax rolls. The article stated that when developments are built by a public housing authority, the property is taken off the tax rolls.

When a public housing authority builds a project, 10 per cent of the rent receipts are paid in lieu of real estate taxes, Walchirk pointed out.

This money paid in lieu of taxes is distributed to various taxing bodies in the same proportions as real estate taxes. The money paid by public housing authorities is "not as much as property taxes, but it is something," Walchirk said.

Walchirk was quoted in the previous article as saying the differing tax situations of privately financed and publicly built housing was the reason housing built by private developers was better.

Yesterday, Walchirk said both types of housing have their importance because "they meet different needs and fit different income levels." Rental prices for low-income, publicly financed projects are about one-third as much as prices for moderate-income, privately developed housing.

Moderate-income housing projects can be developed by private developers while low-income housing requires a public agency, Walchirk said, "but the need is for both types."

District Swim Meet Scheduled

The Mount Prospect Park District swimmers will compete tonight for the championship of the Class A Division of the Northern Illinois Park District Conference.

"The meet, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m., will be held at the Barrington Park District Pool on Lions Drive in Barrington. With a 3-2 record, the more than 100 swimmers on park district team will compete with five other teams for the conference crown. Other teams competing for the title are from park districts in Park Ridge, Glenview, Northbrook, Des Plaines and Barrington.

1:57 a.m. — Ambulance responded to call at 905 Golfhurst Ave. Patient taken to Holy Family Hospital.

7:38 p.m. — Engine responded to call at 1500 Catalpa Ln. Smoke under front porch.

Ben Chvot, Chicago aeronautical expert, will address members of the Hersey High School aeronautics course tomorrow.

The presentation, open to the public, will be held at 10:30 a.m. in Room 223 at Hersey, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

Tom Reed, course instructor, said Chvot will talk on aircraft from the World War I era, and will present slides and model-scale aircraft.

Man Is Charged

James L. Murray, 30, of Elgin, was arrested and charged by Mount Prospect Police about 5 p.m. Friday for deceptive practice. Police claim he charged $194.78 worth of clothing at Lauter's Mens Store in the Randhurst Shopping Center with another person's credit card. He will appear in court August 12.

Assessment '70 Suit Is Open For Appeal

The fate of a class action suit filed in connection with Special Assessment '70, a $634,000 storm sewer project, now depends on residents living in the Hatten Heights area of Mount Prospect.

The suit which would have given more property owners who have been assessed for the project a chance to legally object was dismissed last week by a Cook County Circuit Court judge. Attorneys representing the Hatten Heights Civic Association, a group of 50 objectors, have 30 days to petition the court for a rehearing or to appeal the case in the Illinois Appellate Court.

Edward Finnegan, attorney for the group, said Friday his clients will "wait to find out the responses of other property owners in the area" before they make a decision on the suit.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papciak, 2388 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papciak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shorely Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1966 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

Local Builder Gives Playground Equip.

Salvatore DiMucci a local builder has donated approximately $1,500 worth of playground equipment to the Mount Prospect Park District.

The equipment, including two swing sets, benches and a slide, will be installed sometime in the next two weeks on an empty strip of land north of Dempster Street near Redwood Lane in Mount Prospect. The park district currently leases the land from Commonwealth Edison Inc.

The equipment will be placed in a sand area, surrounded by railroad ties, near the Alpine Apartment buildings, built by Di Mucci. Park district officials have agreed to maintain the playground.

Di Mucci said he donated the equipment "hoping the park district will keep the area, not for Alpine because it caters only to an adult community." The equipment will also be nearby the Mount Shire subdivision, another Di Mucci development.

Plan Golf, Swim Competition

Junior golfers and novice swimmers are preparing for competition being sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District this month.

The fourth annual park district junior golf tourney is scheduled to begin Saturday. The five-day event will be held at the Mount Prospect Country Club course for 12 to 17-year-old residents living in the park district.

Entries will be divided into age groups and then into three flights within each age group following a qualifying round. Boys, ages 12 and 13, will play 36 holes with tee-off times set for 10 a.m. Aug. 12 and 13. Tee-off times for both divisions of older boys, 14 to 15-year-olds and 16 to 17-year-olds, have been set for August 7, August 14 and August 15 at 1 p.m. for a total of 54 holes.

Girls wishing to play in the tournament will be divided into age groups of 12 to 15 and 16 to 17. They will play a total of 18 holes and will tee off at 11 a.m. on August 12 and 13.

THIRTY TROPHIES will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in each flight. Boys and girls wishing to compete must sign up at the pro shop, 800 See-Gwan Ave., no later than 6 p.m. Friday.

The park district's third annual novice swim meet has been scheduled for August 21 from 9 a.m. to noon. Swimmers, ages 7 to 15, living in the park district who have not won any competitive awards in their current age group are eligible for the competition that will be held at Lions Park Pool.

Swimmers who wish to participate can sign up at the three park district pools. Swimmers living north of Northwest Highway must sign up at Meadows Pool, 1401 W. Gregory St. Swimmers living south of Northwest Highway and north of Golf Road will represent Lions Pool, 411 S. Maple St. Swimmers living south of Golf Road can sign up at Kopp Pool, 420 W. Dempster St.

Esmond Announces Retirement

Police Chief Is Resigning After Six Years In Job

Newell Esmond, Mount Prospect's police chief for almost six years, is resigning.

Esmond made the announcement in a press conference yesterday morning at the village hall. His last day as the village's police chief will be Aug. 13. He said yesterday he plans to move to Florida shortly thereafter.

No replacement, either on a temporary or a permanent basis has yet been named by village officials.

In a short statement Esmond said, "I have decided to retire as of last October and have been working toward this goal since then." Esmond said he is selling his present home at 1730 Verde Dr. He and his wife Billie, will move to a new home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Once in Fort Lauderdale, Esmond said, he plans to seek employment, either in police work or something similar.

Esmond's announcement came the same day that Robert Eppley began his new job as Mount Prospect's village manager. Esmond said, however, "That this action coincides with the arrival of the new village manager, Bob Eppley, is mere coincidence, and I look forward to his service here."

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert also praised Esmond: "It always hurts when good men leave the village. Newell is leaving the department in excellent shape. He's done a good job as chief."

Teichert said the job, both of naming a temporary chief and of finding a permanent replacement for Esmond, would be Eppley's. "This is in the purview of Eppley. Newell has made a recommendation on an acting chief. Eppley asked for that. As for a permanent chief, I imagine that would take a little time to find."

Though Esmond would not reveal what his recommendation was, he said it would be preferable to select a permanent successor from within the ranks of the Mount Prospect department "if that man meets the requirements." He added, "We have some people here who are qualified, but the decision is Eppley's."

Esmond is leaving a position that pays $17,200 a year. Upon his retirement he will receive a pension of 52 per cent of his salary last year, $16,250.

Esmond rose through the ranks to become the village's police chief. A native of Massachusetts he served in the Army Air Corps from 1935 to 1939. Before entering police work he was involved in the manufacture of aircraft instruments.

Esmond moved to the Mount Prospect area in 1947. He joined the force in 1949 because, he said, "I thought it was an interesting and good job. And I needed a good job."

In 1963 Esmond became a lieutenant, rank he still holds in addition to his title of chief.

Esmond was appointed the village's new chief in November 1965 by then Mayor Dan Congreve.

Today Esmond heads a force that includes 34 men and four civilian radio operators.

Board Hires A Second Social Worker

In response to teachers' requests, Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 will employ two social workers for the 1971-72 school year.

The hiring of a second social worker, recommended by Supt. Eric Sahlberg, was approved last night by a 4-1 vote of the school board. Board members Robert Novy and Harrison Hanson were absent. Board member Leo Floros voted against the proposal because he said he did not want "to add another staff member when we are currently overstaffed."

DIST. 57 SCHOOLS

Mount Prospect: Busse, Fairview, Gregory, Lincoln, Lions Park, Sunset Park and Westbrook.

Floros requested in May that the administration try to add a second full-time social worker to the staff. At a teacher-board forum in March, teachers told board members they needed more social workers and counselors in the district's seven schools.

However, Floros said he made the request with the understanding that Sahlberg eliminate one more staff member to make room for a social worker.

A 1971-72 staffing plan calls for 25 1/2 fewer teachers than employed during the last school year.

Sahlberg said last night that the district "still has a surplus of teachers. We have to see that disappear before we can reach a reduction of one more."

He estimated the projected staff cuts would be reached through teacher resignations "by the first of next year."

Sherrie Samuels, the new social worker, holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois. She recently received a master's degree in social work from The Jane Addams School of Social Work in Chicago.

Molly The Mystic Gets 'Power From The Lord'

by KAREN RUGEN

A gilt-edged certificate on the wall calls her a medium. A notice below it claims she has the power of divine healing.

As if to guard the paper credentials and verify their credibility, a picture of Jesus Christ has been placed nearby. Across the room a statue of the Virgin Mary faces Molly Ranae as she does what she thinks God has intended her to do.

"I get all my powers from the Lord," says Mrs. Ranae who combines the religious with the supernatural. "I have the richest gift that can be found in the Bible."

Mrs. Ranae, who moved into her house at 1802 Locust Ln. in Mount Prospect a year ago, bills herself as a divine mystic and a possessor of extra-sensory perception, commonly called ESP. While she passes off her claim as a divine healer with "I just make people feel good," she has a lot more to say about her extra-sensory powers.

"I WAS THE SEVENTH daughter of seven daughters," explains Mrs. Ranae who is quick to tell you her lucky number is seven. "When I was born into the family, I was born with a psychic veil over my face. From then on, people just kept asking me questions."

Although she says she has always been sure of her gift, Mrs. Ranae did not go into business until about 10 years ago "because friends urged me to go out and help people." For $5 a private reading, she's been doing it ever since.

"There are a lot of phonies and all they do is ask for money," said Mrs.

Ranae who also uses her talents to entertain at small parties. "But I give customers their money's worth."

When the self-proclaimed mystic does readings for the housewives and businessmen who are her customers, she tries to open the chapters of their lives by holding their hands or several of their personal effects.

She says she gets her powers through vibrations and meditation, but can't describe what happens when she tries to see into the future or uncover hidden remnants of someone's past. All she can say is that she "gets her answers from God, sometimes I see pictures and sometimes I see dates."

SHE SAYS HER vibrations have dealt with national issues as well as personal incidents of her friends. Like many other mystics, she says she warned John Kennedy from going to Dallas and claims to have predicted the deaths of Martin Luther King and Dwight Eisenhower. She also claims she has helped solve murders and predicted the 1968 riots in Chicago.

Mrs. Ranae said sometimes her friends do not heed her warnings. She said she predicted that a friend's home in Glenview would be bombed; several days later it was. "It got to the point where I was even afraid to drive around with her in her car," she said.

One of Mrs. Ranae's most unusual readings took place when she was called into a nudist camp. "I went there, clutching a rosary," she said. "I prayed to God that he would not let me see anything below the face. He answered the prayer, and I did the readings."

Mrs. Ranae is as serious about her business as she is about her gift. In a strong voice, she emphasizes she is not a fortune teller and doesn't own a crystal ball. She says she is clairvoyant, although in the next breath she admits she cannot define what it is. She keeps repeating that her gift is from above and she uses it only the way God wants her to use it.

"God knows who to put the gift upon," she explained but didn't know why she felt he chose her. "All I know is that the Lord is always with me."

Plans Under Way For Little League Tourney Saturday

Plans are currently under way for the second annual Mount Prospect Park District Little League tournament set for Saturday.

The event, which will pit All-Star teams of the Waycinden Area Boys' Baseball League against those of the Mount Prospect Little League Association, will be held on the diamonds at Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St. The nine and ten-year-old divisions and the eleven and twelve-year-old divisions will begin play at 6 p.m. The thirteen and fourteen-year-old divisions will play at 8 p.m. under the lights.

The names of the winners of the tournament will be placed on a trophy on display at the park district offices. Last year Mount Prospect won two games and tied Waycinden in the third.

About 45 boys have been selected as All-Stars for Waycinden, according to Willard Seefeldt, president of the association. He said the boys are selected by their managers from the 50 teams in the league that covers a part of Mount Prospect and the eighth ward in Des Plaines.

All-Star teams are currently being chosen by managers of the 20 teams in the Mount Prospect Little League. Budd Clark, president of the league said about 40 players will be involved in the tournament.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs" the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot those resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

The Market

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

With the help of the Mount Prospect Historical Society, archaeologists are taking a fascinating look back into history. On farm land in southwestern Illinois, they are carrying on one of the most important "digs" in the world today. So far they have found remains from 12 past civilizations — dating back to about 10,000 B.C.

Digging at the Koster site is being directed by Stuart Struwer, associate professor of archaeology at Northwestern University. High school and college students, as well as scientists, are assisting. The privately funded project needs $90,000 to continue this summer's work. To help out, the Mount Prospect Historical Society has sent a contribution.

Some interesting discoveries have been a large-headed dog buried near the remains of two ceremonial fires about 10,000 B.C.; mussel shell fishing lures and long bone hairpins used by people of the Helton Culture about 4,000 B.C.; and 3,000-year-old hunting spears used by men of the Riverton Culture.

WHILE CIVILIZATION was beginning to develop along the Nile, Tigris, Euphrates, Indus and Yellow Rivers, people were living in a flourishing village sheltered by limestone bluffs at the Koster site. Drilling has now gone down 34 feet. Archaeologists wonder if they have reached remains of the Paleo-Indians, who may have arrived in Illinois as early as 11,000 B.C. The Mount Prospect Historical Society wanted to have a small part in this exciting and important project.

Inner-City Kids Want To Visit

Friendly Town Group Seeking Homes

There are more children from Chicago who want to spend some time in the Northwest suburbs than there are suburbanites willing to open their homes for a couple of weeks.

The 1971 Friendly Towns program now in its second session of the summer still needs suburban families to host several inner-city children for a period of two weeks.

Before the first session which ran from July 11 to 25 about 30 children were called and told they couldn't come, according to Betty Ginger, Rolling Meadows.

"We just didn't have any place they could go," she said.

"IT'S KIND OF HARD to call a kid

who's ready to leave tomorrow and tell him he'll have to wait or maybe not come at all," she added.

Mrs. Ginger and Mary Ann Reiter of Arlington Heights are the organizers of the program which arranges for the inner-city children to visit with suburban host families.

Some of the 30 children who missed out on the first session of the Friendly Towns program now are visiting in the area for the second session. But several children still need a place to stay.

For the first time since the program was started a third session has been scheduled running from Aug. 8 to 22.

"But we're willing to make exceptions

if those dates aren't acceptable to a family who's willing to take a child," Mrs. Ginger said.

"IF THE KIDS DON'T go at the convenience of the host they don't go at all, so we really don't have a choice," she added.

This year the majority of children involved in the program will come through the Faith Community Church on Chicago's west side. Host families are asked to go to the church on Sunday morning to pick up their guest.

Friendly Town children are given a medical exam before their visits. They are also covered by a $2,500 sickness and accident policy during their visits.

To be eligible, a family must provide their own personal liability insurance, included in most homeowner's policies, and be willing to furnish a personal reference.

FAMILIES WITH no children at home and those who have only infants are asked to request two children. Past experience indicates that Friendly Town children who are used to large families and crowded neighborhoods are happier when they are near children their own ages to play with.

Host families will receive the name of their assigned children about two days before the session begins. They are asked to contact the child and his family immediately to introduce themselves and ease any of the child's fear.

Housing Story Is Disputed

A recent Herald article about low and moderate-income housing contained a number of errors, according to Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

The article stated Walchirk reported to the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing committee he thought there was no need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority in Arlington Heights.

Walchirk said yesterday he thinks there is a need for low-income housing "if not for present Arlington Heights residents, then for ex-migrant families in and about the Northwest suburban area." Walchirk said he thinks there is a need for both low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights and the surrounding towns.

The CCHA executive also disputed a portion of the article which stated that when private developers build moderate income housing, the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the tax rolls. The article stated that when developments are built by a public housing authority, the property is taken off the tax rolls.

When a public housing authority builds a project, 10 per cent of the rent receipts are paid in lieu of real estate taxes, Walchirk pointed out.

This money paid in lieu of taxes is distributed to various taxing bodies in the same proportions as real estate taxes. The money paid by public housing authorities is "not as much as property taxes, but it is something," Walchirk said.

Walchirk was quoted in the previous article as saying the differing tax situations of privately financed and publicly built housing was the reason housing built by private developers was better.

Yesterday, Walchirk said both types of housing have their importance because "they meet different needs and fit different income levels." Rental prices for low-income, publicly financed projects are about one-third as much as prices for moderate-income, privately developed housing.

Moderate-income housing projects can be developed by private developers while low-income housing requires a public agency, Walchirk said, "but the need is for both types."

District Swim Meet Scheduled

The Mount Prospect Park District swimmers will compete tonight for the championship of the Class A Division of the Northern Illinois Park District Conference.

The meet, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., will be held at the Barrington Park District Pool on Lions Drive in Barrington. With a 3-2 record, the more than 100 swimmers on park district team will compete with five other teams for the conference crown. Other teams competing for the title are from park districts in Park Ridge, Glenview, Northbrook, Des Plaines and Barrington.

Expert To Address Aeronautics Course

Ben Chvot, Chicago aeronautical expert, will address members of the Hershey High School aeronautics course tomorrow.

The presentation, open to the public, will be held at 10:30 a.m. in Room 229 at Hershey, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

Tom Reed, course instructor, said Chvot will talk on aircraft from the World War I era, and will present slides and model-scale aircraft.

Man Is Charged

James L. Murray, 20, of Elgin, was arrested and charged by Mount Prospect Police about 5 p.m. Friday for deceptive practice. Police claim he charged $194.78 worth of clothing at Lauter's Mens Store in the Randhurst Shopping Center with another person's credit card. He will appear in court August 12.

Assessment '70 Suit Is Open For Appeal

The fate of a class action suit filed in connection with Special Assessment '70, a $634,000 storm sewer project, now depends on residents living in the Hatlen Heights area of Mount Prospect.

The suit which would have given more property owners who have been assessed for the project a chance to legally object was dismissed last week by a Cook County Circuit Court judge. Attorneys representing the Hatlen Heights Civic Association, a group of 50 objectors, have 30 days to petition the court for a rehearing or to appeal the case in the Illinois Appellate Court.

Edward Finnegan, attorney for the group, said Friday his clients will "wait to find out the responses of other property owners in the area" before they make a decision on the suit.

About 110 of the 380 property owners who have received bills for the project have already filed objections protesting the amount of their assessment. Finnegan said that as it stands now, according to a default order issued in May, non-objectors will have to pay the amounts of their original assessment even if the assessments of the objectors are reduced by court action. Residents' assessments vary from several hundred to several thousand dollars.

FINNEGAN SAID residents interested in the suit should contact Tony Amato, president of the civic association in whose name the suit has been filed. He said residents who want to press the suit could also write to the Cook County Circuit Court.

The motion to dismiss the suit was made last month by Kenneth Stonesieffer, attorney representing the village. The village is scheduled to pay about $157,000 as the public benefit portion of the project.

Stonesieffer contended that there is no provision for the suit under state laws dealing with local improvements and special assessments. Leroy Tornquist, an attorney for about 60 homeowners also objecting to their assessment, argued for dismissal of the suit.

Further court action on the objections filed against the project will not take place until October. Then a circuit court judge will hear benefit objections, which contend the amount of financial benefit gained from the project is not equal to individual assessments.

Investigation Continues In Kidnap Case

Barrington police are at a standstill in their investigation into the kidnapping of 12-year-old Katherine Kuhn, according to Barrington Police Lt. Ronald Hemmingson.

Police are waiting for completion of a composite drawing of the alleged abductor, which should be finished today, Hemmingson said. The drawing will then be distributed to Chicago area police. However, Hemmingson said reports that police had found a footprint of the abductor were erroneous.

Katherine was released by her abductor Sunday night around midnight. She then knocked on the door of Mrs. Judith Papiak, 2368 Irene Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township and Mrs. Papiak called Cook County Police. Katherine was taken to Ravenswood Hospital, where she was released after treatment for facial bruises.

Hemmingson refused to say whether Katherine or her sister Suzanne, 10, who was with Katherine when she was kidnapped, said they recognized the abductor. But Katherine's father, John C. Kuhn, of 579 Shorely Lane, Barrington, said he was convinced the abductor was "a local person."

The abductor, who reportedly was armed, kidnapped Katherine late Sunday afternoon while she and her sister were playing by the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks about 100 yards from their home. Suzanne said the kidnapper told her to lie face down while he drove Katherine away in a 1968 blue-green Rambler that had been parked in the Kuhn's townhouse parking lot.

Local Builder Gives Playground Equip.

Salvatore DiMucci a local builder has donated approximately $1,500 worth of playground equipment to the Mount Prospect Park District.

The equipment, including two swing sets, benches and a slide, will be installed sometime in the next two weeks on an empty strip of land north of Dempster Street near Redwood Lane in Mount Prospect. The park district currently leases the land from Commonwealth Edison Inc.

The equipment will be placed in a sand area, surrounded by railroad ties, near the Alpine Apartment buildings, built by Di Mucci. Park district officials have agreed to maintain the playground.

Di Mucci said he donated the equipment "hoping the park district will keep up the area, not for Alpine because it caters only to an adult community." The equipment will also be nearby the Mount Shire subdivision, another Di Mucci development.

Plan Golf, Swim Competition

Junior golfers and novice swimmers are preparing for competition being sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District this month.

The fourth annual park district junior golf tourney is scheduled to begin Saturday. The five-day event will be held at the Mount Prospect Country Club course for 12 to 17-year-old residents living in the park district.

Entries will be divided into age groups and then into three flights within each age group following a qualifying round. Boys, ages 12 and 13, will play 36 holes with tee-off times set for 10 a.m. Aug. 12 and 13. Tee-off times for both divisions of older boys, 14 to 15-year-olds and 16 to 17-year-olds, have been set for August 7, August 14 and August 15 at 1 p.m. for a total of 54 holes.

Girls wishing to play in the tournament will be divided into age groups of 12 to 15 and 16 to 17. They will play a total of 18 holes and will tee off at 11 a.m. on August 12 and 13. THIRTY TROPHIES will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in each flight. Boys and girls wishing to compete must sign up at the pro shop, 600 See-Gwon Ave., no later than 6 p.m. Friday.

The park district's third annual novice swim meet has been scheduled for August 21 from 9 a.m. to noon. Swimmers, ages 7 to 15, living in the park district who have not won any competitive awards in their current age group are eligible for the competition that will be held at Lions Park Pool.

Swimmers who wish to participate can sign up at the three park district pools. Swimmers living north of Northwest Highway must sign up at Meadows Pool, 1401 W. Gregory St. Swimmers living south of Northwest Highway and north of Golf Road will represent Lions Pool, 411 S. Maple St. Swimmers living south of Golf Road can sign up at Kopp Pool, 420 W. Dempster St.

Kenneth Bonder Named Village Finance Director

Kenneth Bonder, Arlington Heights finance director, has been appointed village clerk.

His appointment, along with 15 others to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals, and Environmental Control Commission, was made last night by Village Pres. Jack Walsh.

Bonder, 224 S. Prindell, will assume his new duties in addition to serving as the finance director, a post he has held since 1969.

Bonder's term as clerk is effective until April of 1973, the expiration date of outgoing clerk Mrs. Betty Revard's term. Elected two years ago, Mrs. Revard recently tendered her resignation.

Seven other appointments were made last night to the village's first Environmental Control Commission (ECC). The ECC, approved by ordinance July 19, is charged with setting guidelines to safeguard and promote the local environment.

Serving a three-year term as chairman of that group is Edward Kokkelenberg, 324 S. Rammer. Other members and their terms are Mrs. John Maco, 1414 E. Sunset Ter., three years; William Kenning, 509 S. Reuter, three years; Mrs. Thomas Hanlon, 110 E. Campbell, two years; Ronald Patun, 1717 N. Ridge, two years; Mrs. Mary Schlott, 415 S. Evergreen, one year; and James Glynn, 2123 E. Grove, one year.

ALL SUBSEQUENT terms on the ECC will be for three years, Walsh said.

Five appointments were also made to the village plan commission, a 12-member group responsible for making recommendations to the village board in regard to planning and regulating community growth.

Reappointed to the board are Leo J. Mueller, 110 S. Vail, a four year term, Victor Beisler, 125 N. Waterman, a six year term; and James T. McGrath, 1021 N. Dunton, a two year term.

The reappointments of Mueller and McGrath fill the unexpired terms of recently resigned commissioners Mrs. Alice Harms and James Louden.

New appointments to the plan commission, both for six year terms, are Lewis O'Donnell, 815 Kimbur; and Joseph Turley, 616 E. Redwood.

Three reappointments for five year terms were made last night to the zoning board of appeals, a hearing body for appeals on administrative decisions regarding building and land use.

THEY ARE Fredrick Marks, 538 S. Newbury, chairman; Harry Fall, 2032 Burke Drive; and George Hauff, 308 N. Haddow.

Walsh said other appointments will be forthcoming this week to the nine-member study committee which will be set up to review the current form of government in Arlington Heights and alternatives to it.

WAITING FOR A VERDICT, entrants 50 and 51 watch the judging at the Kids' Dog Show Saturday. A feature event of Sidewalk Days, the competition was held on the site of the

Collect Glass And Cans For Recycling

More than 27,000 pounds of glass and 4,000 pounds of cans have been collected from the recycling drop-off location established in Arlington Heights in mid-June.

"Response has been excellent," according to Darryl Kenning, administrative assistant to the village manager and head of the village's health department.

The drop-off location, which is open 24 hours a day, is behind the south fire station, 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd. The station is on the west side of the road between Golf and Algonquin roads.

A second location on the north side of the village will be established in the near future, Kenning said.

Appropriately marked bins at the recycling drop-off location are provided for white, brown, green and other colored glass. Receptacles are also provided for cans, either tin or aluminum. Residents should not leave newspaper and other paper products because no provisions are made for recycling these items.

Before depositing glass bottles, residents should remove all metal caps and rings. If this is not done, the caps and rings are almost impossible to separate from the glass when the bottles become broken. Recycling plants cannot use the glass if it contains these metal objects.

TIN, ALUMINUM and other metal cans may be all deposited in the same bin and do not have to be separated from one another. Although residents are not required to smash the cans, Kenning said it does help if residents will do so.

To compact the cans to allow more to be deposited in the bins, residents may cut off the tops and bottoms of the cans and then smash the remaining cylinder flat.

The bins are periodically emptied and the materials are taken to recycling plants by employees of the village's public works department. The bins were donated by Laseke Disposal Co. and were painted by public works department employees.

The money which the village receives from taking the bottles and cans to recycling plants is set aside in a separate fund for special ecology projects. Among the activities for which the money may be used will be projects suggested by the village's newly created Environmental Control Commission. Members of the commission were scheduled to be appointed at last night's Village Board meeting.

THE PERMANENT drop-off location was established following the high interest shown in the temporary drop-off points during 1971 Earth Week held in April by the village.

Including the temporary drop-off points and the new permanent one, more than 50,000 pounds of cans and bottles have been deposited by village residents and taken to recycling plants.

A third recycling location may be established in addition to the present site and the proposed second site if participation warrants it.

Housing Story Is Disputed

A recent Herald article about low and moderate-income housing contained a number of errors, according to Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

The article stated Walchirk reported to the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing committee he thought there was no need for low-income housing built by a public housing authority in Arlington Heights.

Walchirk said yesterday he thinks there is a need for low-income housing "if not for present Arlington Heights residents, then for ex-migrant families in and about the Northwest suburban area." Walchirk said he thinks there is a need for both low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights and the surrounding towns.

The CCHA executive also disputed a portion of the article which stated that when private developers build moderate income housing, the federal government subsidizes certain costs and the property remains on the tax rolls. The article stated that when developments are built by a public housing authority, the property is taken off the tax rolls.

When a public housing authority builds a project, 10 per cent of the rent receipts are paid in lieu of real estate taxes, Walchirk pointed out.

This money paid in lieu of taxes is distributed to various taxing bodies in the same proportions as real estate taxes. The money paid by public housing authorities is "not as much as property taxes, but it is something," Walchirk said.

Walchirk was quoted in the previous article as saying the differing tax situations of privately financed and publicly built housing was the reason housing built by private developers was better.

Yesterday, Walchirk said both types of housing have their importance because "they meet different needs and fit different income levels." Rental prices for low-income, publicly financed projects are about one-third as much as prices for moderate-income, privately developed housing.

Moderate-income housing projects can be developed by private developers while low-income housing requires a public agency, Walchirk said, "but the need is for both types."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy — threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Labor settlements in the rail and steel industries powered the stock market to its first advance in almost two weeks, but turnover was moderate. After plunging nearly 30 points last week, the Dow Jones Average climbed 6.49 to 864.92. Advances outnumbered declines, 909 to 469, among the 1,635 issues crossing the tape on the New York Exchange. Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

BIG, SMALL and in-between dogs of all sizes were the feature attraction Saturday at the Kids' Dog Show in Arlington Heights. "Lord Mill House," a big brown dog entered by Shelia Draut of Arlington Heights, captured the Best of Show trophy after winning first place in tricks. Laurel Keplinger, Arlington Heights, and her dog, "Heather," took top honors in the best costume category. Meg Heinz's dog, "Tina," won a trophy for being the smallest dog in the show, while Luke Weeg and "Ben" took home the largest dog award. Both winners were from Arlington Heights. All first place finishers received trophies, with ribbons going to seconds and thirds. And every contestant received a special Sidewalk Days ribbon to commemorate the event.

Youths' Action May Save Pond

by TOM ROBB

Last night the village board was expected to approve the appointments of seven members to the newly formed Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission (ECC).

Designed to safeguard the local environment and guide the way for a village as susceptible as any to pollution, the ECC will take up as one of its first tasks the matter of the Hasbrook Retention Pond.

Located on a few acres of Hasbrook Park just north of Thomas Street and west of Chestnut Avenue, the pond is nothing more than a fenced-in, overgrown basin of water in the midst of single family homes dotting Hasbrook subdivision.

For years, the pond has been labeled an unsightly blight on the neighborhood, a haven for mosquitoes and a part of the back yard of Hasbrook that residents say they could live without.

Accordingly, the village took appropriate steps to appease the residents — about $60,000 worth of appropriation.

ON THE NIGHT OF June 21, the board was ready to award bids to R. W. Duntman of Bensenville to the tune of $59,283 to revamp and nearly bury the pond under mounds of dirt.

But before the board could begin the project a group of youngsters, most of them just starting high school this fall, stood up and spoke out.

Calling themselves the "Save the Hasbrook Pond Committee," the boys presented a verbal plea, slides and even a small turtle who resides at the pond, to persuade the trustees to call off the bulldozers for the sake of ecology.

The village's plan — which officials said was the culmination of suggestions from residents living near the pond — would not only rid the pond of standing water, but would also eliminate wildlife living in or near the basin, which is one of the few oases of the natural left in Arlington Heights, the boys said.

The boys' action caused the board to defer its plans and refer the project to the ECC for further study. It also prompted the Hasbrook Homeowner's Association to submit a plan to the village which reduces the task of revamping the pond to a more palatable figure of $10,000 to $15,000.

BY SIMPLY VOICING their concern, these boys may very well save a bit of the dwindling wildlife in town, not to mention thousands of taxpayers dollars.

The credit goes to Save the Pond Committee members Chuck Purcell, 14, of 1504 N. Ridge, Paul Kastens, 13, of 1721 N. Rand Rd.; Barry Monroe, 14, 1106 W. Clarendon, Greg Zolp, 14, of 308 E. Oakton, and the many other youngsters who have helped them out.

The credit goes to them for starting the wheels in motion.

Hopefully, the ECC will seriously consider the boys' proposal, not because the ideals of a group of young men trying to make changes within "the system" are at stake, but because they make sense — ecologically and financially.

Young Girl Hurt On Carnival Ride

This past weekend's Sidewalk Days Carnival wasn't all fun and games. Shortly after Susan Trump, 8, of 600 W. Rand Rd., was treated at Northwest Community Hospital for minor injuries she received on a bumper car ride, another patron asked the police to check into the ride.

Robert Morris, of 955 Whitehall, Buffalo Grove, told police he considered the bumper car ride to be unsafe.

After inspection, police directed the carnival management to enforce all seat belt and age regulations for the ride — the object of which was to jolt one car into another.

Police Seek Apartment Keys

Arlington Heights police are searching for two sets of keys stolen this weekend which fit door locks at Greenbrier Apartments in Arlington Heights and Lake Louise Apartments in Palatine.

Mrs. Loretta Smale, rental manager for Greenbrier Apartments, which along with Lake Louise was built by Miller Builders and is under common management, said the keys were taken late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Two key cases containing 244 keys, 120 for Greenbrier at 2400 N. Kenmore, and 124 for Lake Louise on Wilke Road, were taken from a desk drawer in Mrs. Smale's office.

Police said they believe the thief gained entry into the manager's office with a master key. There was no evidence that the door or lock had been forced open, police added.

Mrs. Smale told police that only employees of the apartment complexes are issued master keys. Police, therefore, have questioned at least 12 persons employed as custodians.

No suspect has been named, but police said one custodian had been fired after three months of working at Greenbrier, and had never turned in his master key.

After the employee was discharged, there were a series of incidents at the apartments, including some vandalism in the basement of the buildings, Mrs. Smale told police.

Mrs. Smale said management is now considering changing the locks on the doors of all apartments matching the stolen keys.

Both Arlington Heights and Palatine police said they will put on extra patrols in the Greenbrier-Lake Louise apartment area.

Fall, Winter Park Programs On Agenda

Plans for fall and winter programs will be reviewed tonight by the recreation committee of the Arlington Heights Park Board.

Although summer isn't over yet, members of the park district staff have prepared proposed programs to begin in September. These programs will be the topic of tonight's meeting which will begin at 7:30 in the park district's administrative offices in Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Staff members prepare the program ideas in midsummer to allow enough time for printing of the park district's brochure so it can be mailed to residents' homes. The new brochure may contain a mail-in registration form, allowing citizens to register for park programs by mail rather than in person at the park offices.

Legion's Monthly Steak Fry Saturday

The monthly steak fry and dinner dance of Merle Guild post 208 of the American Legion will be held Saturday at the post, 121 N. Douglas Ave., Arlington Heights.

This month's event will be called "Emil Eck Night," in honor of Eck, outgoing commander of the 9th district of the Legion. Dinner will be served from 7 to 9 p.m.

Reservations should be made in advance of the event by calling the post or contacting legion members. The evening's entertainment will include dancing to the music of Bob Balme and his "Tradesmen" orchestra.

After 117 Years, Rand Mill May Get A New Site

Historic Rand Mill may be saved from destruction if the Des Plaines Historical Society can raise the money to move or dismantle it, the City Council learned last night.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel told the council he had persuaded site owner Robert Dooley to cooperate with the city and historical society in efforts to preserve the mill, considered by society officials to be of great importance in the development of Des Plaines and the Northwest suburbs.

After hearing the decision, the council voted unanimously to authorize drawing a zoning ordinance amendment to allow construction of the Rand Mill site, Miner Street and Des Plaines River Road, of two four-story apartment buildings. Final decision on the amendment will be made at a future council meeting, Behrel said.

"If there is any way the council and historical society can remove the whole building or its contents, or store it for future use, we'll do it," Behrel said.

The mayor said he contacted Dooley on Monday in Florida by telephone. He convinced Dooley of the site's importance and asked him "to let us tear it down for him."

DAVID WOLF, president of the historical society which has tried for several months to get Dooley's cooperation, said he was "very happy" with the Dooley decision reported by the mayor.

Ideally, the mill would be moved to Spiegle Park, on Ashland Avenue. This would cost $15,000 including a new base for the mill, Wolf said.

Wolf said he will begin to seek funds for preserving all or part of the mill. In the past, Wolf has said the mill is the only site in Des Plaines that could qualify for federal preservation funds as a national historical site.

He presented the council a report from Thomas Yanul, of the Illinois Architectural Survey, who last week visited the mill site.

Yanul said the mill is architecturally valuable and still fairly sound, and "because of its manner of construction might be carefully disassembled and moved to a new location."

THE RAND MILL, commonly called the "Old Barn," is probably the oldest building in Des Plaines, constructed in 1854, according to historical society records. It originally was a sawmill, where ties were cut to build the railroad.

S. Franklin Logsdon To Be Guest Speaker

S. Franklin Logsdon, former pastor of the Moody Church in Chicago, will speak on the Bible and prophecy today at the Northwest Christian Businessmen's Assn. luncheon at Nielsen's Restaurant, 8715 Mannheim Rd. Rosemont.

All northwest suburban businessmen are invited to the group's weekly Tuesday luncheons.

that opened the Northwest suburbs for development, according to local historians.

Later, the mill was purchased by Socrates Rand, the most prominent early settler and founder of Des Plaines. Used as a grain mill, it became the local gathering place and the first building in downtown Des Plaines.

The historical society also has shown interest in preserving another house on the Miner-River Road site, the residence of a pioneer physician, Dr. Clarence Earle. An unofficial historian of Des Plaines, Dr. Earle is said to have collected many documents and pictures that the historical society hopes to examine. Dooley is Dr. Earle's grandson.

The Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals last month unanimously recommended rezoning the site, because members felt that construction of apartments near downtown shopping and forest preserve recreation would be appropriate and beneficial.

Motorcycle Stolen

A motorcycle valued at $1,200 was reported stolen Sunday morning from a garage behind a Des Plaines residence, according to Des Plaines police.

Jerry Fish, 2285 Webster Ln., told police he painted a burgundy color with lice that his motorcycle, a 1962 Harley silver trim, was discovered missing about 9 a.m. Sunday.

The Des Plaines City Council Youth Committee may meet this month to discuss the rising crime rate among juveniles and possible increased city services for young people.

Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd), committee chairman, said the meeting will be with officers of the Des Plaines Police Department Youth Division, school officials and representatives of local social agencies.

Juvenile arrest statistics, released several weeks ago, indicated a 33 per cent rise during the first half of 1971, compared to the first half of 1970—from 507 to 679.

Arrests of juveniles, males under 17 and females under 18, rose to 425 during the second quarter of 1971 as compared to 322 arrests for the same period in 1970.

DRUG OFFENSES by juveniles climbed 62 per cent over the first half of last year from 14 to 37 arrests. In all of 1970, only 42 were arrested for drug offenses.

Other juvenile offenses which increased over the six-month period included assault and battery, from 20 to 30; arson, from zero to six; vandalism, from 35 to 50, drinking from 30 to 73, and runaways from 113 to 141.

Arrests of juveniles, males under 17 and females under 18, rose to 425 during the second quarter of 1971 as compared to 322 arrests for the same period in 1970.

A GROUP OF 50 Japanese youngsters 6 to 11 years old spent an hour in downtown Des Plaines Saturday during a brief stopover on a tour of the United States this summer. The kids, visiting this country to, in part, polish up their English, landed at O'Hare Airport Saturday and caught a Chicago and North Western train for Crystal Lake, where they visited a camp, according to Kenji Nakane of the Japanese Consulate General's Office, Chicago.

Slate Meeting On Juvenile Crimes

However, police officials say the rise in statistics may be deceptive, because the youth division has been expanded.

"Obviously, with more men out on the street, more offenses will be detected," an official said.

Sgt. Ken Fredricks, senior officer of the youth division, said that an extra officer, Det. William Tarver, was added to the division last September to bring the total of youth officers to three.

This has meant that the officers have more time to patrol. Sgt. Fredricks reports that the youths in the community feel the use of drugs is not increasing.

HE ALSO DETECTS a greater willingness of parents and youngsters to report drug abuse. This might be caused by the increased drug education in the schools, which have helped in informing parents and children of drug abuse dangers.

"Children are more willing to speak up because of concern for their friends," Sgt. Fredricks said.

Statistics do not indicate the true extent of drug abuse in Des Plaines because not all drug abuse is detected, and parents may bring their children directly to the social agencies in town, Fredricks said.

Tarver recently attended a two-week seminar at the University of Illinois in Urbana on drug abuse, and the youth division is working closely with local agencies, including the Maine Township Mental Health Association, 1032 Lee Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, and Lutheran General, Park Ridge.

Des Plaines Police Chief Arthur Hintz, told the Herald that Des Plaines and 19 other North and Northwest suburbs have received a $200,000 federal grant to train narcotics agents.

The grant, from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, will help the police departments to increase communications and to assist each other in combating drug abuse, he said.

ALD ROBERT SHERWOOD (2nd), former head of the youth committee and now chairman of the city council's welfare and counseling committee, said he will ask for more funds for youth services in the next city budget.

This year's budget included $10,000 for youth counseling services, mostly diagnostic and some treatment services from the Maine Township agency and the Salvation Army Counseling Center, 1737 Oakton. So far the city has only used about $2,000 for these services he said.

He said his committee is developing new programs in counseling and guidance.

At present, city services include the diagnostic services from the Maine township agency—the city pays when the youth's parents can't, formation of a Youth Advisory Committee—a group of high school students who are to discuss youth problems and make recommendations to the city, and Youth Appreciation week—in which the city and the Des Plaines Optimists have activities for high school-age youngsters, including a trip to Springfield.

Ald. Sherwood said expanded city services for youths might include a new youth center.

According to Mrs. Mary Jo Morgan, member of the Des Plaines Youth Commission, the rise in youth arrest statistics is "indicative that the community must provide more services and activities for young people."

She advocates creation of several informal youth centers in Des Plaines, similar to the Place for People Youth Center, at the Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner St., where teenagers can get adult counseling.

Mayor Hits Critics Of O'Hare Noise

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel Monday criticized officials who use "scare tactics" about O'Hare Airport noise, and said that a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) move to quiet airplane engines would "solve three quarters of the problem."

Commenting on a recently released Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) study, the mayor, at his weekly press conference, said that jet aircraft noise has decreased because of fewer flights at O'Hare.

While noting that Des Plaines has campaigned for eight years to decrease airport noise, he also pointed out that the city reaps benefits in taxes and jobs from O'Hare.

Those people who want to "hammer the heads" of the airlines are wrong, he said.

The NIPC report, funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Transportation, called the land directly north west and northeast of O'Hare—Des Plaines, the northwest suburbs and Park Ridge—the "most affected" by airport noise in the Chicago area.

Maps released last week by NIPC indicate that if no action is taken to reduce airplane noise, by 1975 more than half of Des Plaines will be subjected to uncomfortable and unhealthy noise levels.

IN THESE AFFECTED areas—including southern, northeastern and the downtown areas of Des Plaines—only highly insulated apartments would be strong enough to protect residents from noise, the report stated. NIPC recommended that no new single-family homes be constructed in these noise affected areas.

Mayor Behrel said the key to the noise problem is federal government action. He said the FAA should do more to encourage work on "retrofitting," making presently used engines more quiet.

He said the airlines are now working to create quieter engines. Fewer flights have been taking place over Des Plaines recently, because of the Boeing 747 jumbo jet.

This huge plane has a bigger capacity and so fewer flights are needed, Behrel claimed. It also has a quieter engine and produces less air pollution, he said.

United Air Lines, one of the biggest airlines at O'Hare, has decreased its flights by 10 per cent because of the jumbo jet, according to Behrel.

He said the City of Des Plaines has fought for less airport noise since 1963. Behrel favors closing O'Hare from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., a noise prevention technique now used at Washington National Airport in the nation's capital.

HE SAID THAT reduced power take-offs, proposed by NIPC, are safe. In this type of take-off, the pilots reduce engine speed after reaching 1,500 feet. Federal Aviation Administration officials said last week that this technique is being studied for O'Hare.

Des Plaines has considered airplane noise for a decade in its zoning policies, Behrel said. Des Plaines representatives have met with other concerned community officials and Chicago spokesmen about near-airport zoning since 1965, he said.

The only residential property in the extreme noise area is between Touhy and Howard, near Wolf Road. This land contains two housing subdivisions, annexed to the city three years ago, he said.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate approved a quarter-billion dollar loan guarantee for the bankruptcy—threatened Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by one vote. President Nixon greeted the action with "gratitude and deep satisfaction." The 49-48 vote giving final congressional approval to legislation permitting the government to guarantee $250 million in bank loans to the giant airplane builder "will contribute greatly to the economic strength of the country as a whole" and "save tens of thousands of jobs," the President said in a statement.

The nation's two biggest steel producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, have announced sweeping price increases to finance what they called an "inflationary" three-year wage contract.

with the United Steelworkers.

Agreement has been reached in the 18-day-old selective rail strike that had shut down 10 lines and sharply affected employment in other industries. The 180,000 affected striking train workers started immediately to return to work.

The U.S. announced it will vote next month to admit Communist China to the United Nations but will fight any effort to oust Nationalist China.

Astronauts David Scott and James B. Irwin have rejoined the orbiting command ship after three record-breaking days on the moon's surface.

The State

The Illinois Legislative Reapportionment Commission has adjourned to hold informal discussions in an effort to reach agreement on a redistricting map before the Aug. 10 deadline.

The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and the Telephone Commercial Employees Union have agreed on a new three-year contract.

The War

Major fighting in the Indochina war has shifted to Cambodia where Communists attacked Cambodian positions north and south of the capital of Phnom Penh and battled South Vietnamese troops in the southeast.

Communist Chinese forces have installed long-range radar-directed anti-aircraft weapons along a road they are building in Laos, according to a report made public by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The World

Israeli troops with orders to shoot these resisting arrest have launched a sweeping manhunt for Arab guerrillas in the terrorist-ridden occupied Gaza Strip.

You want to help. People are suffering. There is no food, clothing. They are wet and need a place to sleep. There are children and you look at your own children snug in their beds and feel guilty about those sleeping on the ground covered with plastic to keep them dry.

Since you were old enough to recognize injustice and discrimination you felt sorry — and maybe a bit guilty — about the people of this race. America was theirs for generations and then your people — whites — managed to sweep it out from under their feet in a matter of years.

You read and see pictures of them stuck on plots of ground here and there; a once proud nation reduced to trinket makers. You recognize them as a people steeped in tribal tradition, used to a communal way of life, proud, longing for the old way and faced with the new.

THEY LEAVE THE reservation and come to the big city. They arrive in groups with little money and few skills. There is discouragement after discouragement and they wind up in poor neighborhoods clinging together.

For a long time you wanted to do something — help right the wrong. So a few dollars go to this reservation in return for a little carved doll; clothing and canned goods are brought to their center in Chicago; books and games are sent to a headstart program for them in Wisconsin.

Then suddenly a small band of them make headlines. They are protesting their lot and demanding what they feel is rightfully theirs. They are putting into words what you thought they must feel — the frustration, anger and hatred. In the middle of one rainy night — the night before your country goes up for grabs celebrating its independence — they become a part of your community.

NOW THE PROBLEM has really come home. Now you can act on all those lofty words you've been spouting since adolescence. So you act. You visit them and find out not only what's happening (that part of your job) but what they need and what you can do.

Telephone lines buzz as the word spreads from you to friends and to their friends. Within 24-hours there is a car full of food, blankets and other necessities on its way.

The good samaritan faces the people he helps. You understand the touch of bitterness and the shortness of their voice. You listen and can't imagine being in this situation — you a white, Anglo Saxon protestant.

To you they represent all of their people. You mount a bandwagon in their defense when reports come in that they are drinking. "You'd drink too if that was you," is your frequent response.

BUT THINGS BEGIN TO sour. The reports become more numerous. Not just drinking but beatings, knives, guns, and, finally, rapes. You talk to a friend who had a knife drawn on him for no real reason. Talk circulates about big trouble brewing — a confrontation with police, an eviction, a revolution.

Then, as suddenly as they came, they are gone. You join with the community and heave a sigh of relief. The problem is out of your back yard.

Others of their race tell you that they don't represent all of them. They are a trouble making minority, too stubborn to listen to reason, to adamant in their beliefs, they say. You realize that you can't excuse all that happened while they were your neighbors. You can't condone it — but you can try to understand.

THEY HAVE LEFT you confused. You recognize right from wrong. They have been wronged and are still being wronged. This is the obvious. It is also obvious that you can't make things become what you want them to be. You can't change the world or the government or the community or the attitudes and ignorance of all the others.

So you retreat like a child with his feelings hurt. You can be what you are. They will not suffer prejudice from you. And slowly — ever so carefully — you can hope to convince a few others. But it takes a long time changing the world person by person.

JUDO INSTRUCTOR John Martindale demonstrates a defensive technique for students in the summer judo class sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District.

Commissioner Raps New Board Room

Cook County Commissioner Charles Chaplin stood near his desk at the new assembly room for the Cook County Board of Commissioners. He looked up at the one or two reporters present and remarked:

"This is the new style, modern repulsive. It's haphazard. I forgot my dark glasses."

The target of Chaplin's annoyance — or amusement — was the decor and colors of the new fifth floor assembly room, and he wasn't the only commissioner with opinions about interior decoration.

Commissioner Floyd Fullilove who entered the room just before the meeting began wore a pink shirt. He remarked, "you notice, I match." He later added, "when does the music start?"

Until yesterday, the commissioners had held their meetings in a drafty, barn of a room on the eleventh floor of the 'Cook County Building—a floor with few offices or office holders.

Monday morning, the commissioners sat in red velvet chairs in a semi-circle below board president George Dunne, who towered over them in a high-back midnight blue chair. To the rear, the audience sat on red and blue chairs.

The carpeting, red and gold circles on a background of blue, had dazzled the commissioners who visited the room before the meeting.

"I don't think those board room chairs have any place for a serious body. The press is going to need air line trays, remarked Chaplin.

At the end of the meeting, Dunne commented, "I personally don't think it looks so bad." While other commissioners wise-cracked about the color scheme — there seemed to be few other complaints — Commissioner William Harvey replied to Dunne.

"You and I don't have a generation gap."

The cost of the remodeled room is $60,000 and the decision to remodel the facility came when Gov. Richard Ogilvie was county board president.

Obituaries

Frank A. Bremer

Frank A. Bremer, 70, of 1120 Rose Ave., Des Plaines, formerly associated with Bremer Stationery Office Supply, died Saturday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born Jan. 24, 1900, in Illinois.

Funeral mass will be said at 10:30 a.m. today in St. Mary Catholic Church, Des Plaines. Burial will be in Town of Maine Cemetery, Park Ridge.

Mr. Bremer was a member of Des Plaines Elk Club; American Legion and St. Mary's Mens Club.

Surviving are his widow, Lucille, nee Gadke; three daughters, Mrs. Arlene (Arthur) Ahlquist of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Patricia (Louis C.) Smith of Des Plaines and Mrs. Carol (Thomas) Erbach of Arlington Heights; seven grandchildren; two brothers, Charles Bremer of Des Plaines and George Bremer of Alaska; and a sister, Mrs. Bernice Click of Des Plaines.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, masses or contributions to your favorite charity.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Marguerite E. Baier

Mrs. Marguerite E. Baier, 77, of Chicago, died Sunday in Brookwood Convalescent Home, Des Plaines. She was born May 11, 1894, in Sweden.

Visitation is today in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. Funeral mass will be said at 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Zachary Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin Road, Des Plaines. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Nyman of Roselle; a son, Richard Baier of Des Plaines; four grandchildren; one great-grandchild; a brother, Berndt Lyckberg of Villa Park; and one sister, Mrs. Louise Nelson of Salem, Ore. She was preceded in death by her husband, Edward.

Mrs. Ruth D. Lavery, 71, of 1184 Jeanette, Des Plaines, died Wednesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Anita Almas of Sherman Oaks, Calif.; five grandchildren, Colleen and Daniel Cahill, both of Des Plaines, Kathleen and Kari Phueffer, and Erik Almas, all of Sherman Oaks.

Mrs. Lavery willed her body to Medical Science, therefore there was no visitation or funeral services.

Memorial donations may be made to the Remembrance Fund of Mrs. Ruth D. Lavery in care of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

Happy Times For The Handicapped Are Planned

The Mount Prospect Park District may have a program this fall where physically and mentally handicapped children could "just have a good time," according to Lois Lindberg, recreation supervisor.

Miss Lindberg is currently trying to get parents of the handicapped interested in the six-week program that would begin in the fall. The class would be held on Saturdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Saturday mornings in the gym and multipurpose room at Lions Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Miss Lindberg said yesterday that the class activities would be tailored to the individual child's ability.

"THE CLASS is not therapy, but therapeutic," said Miss Lindberg. "They go to their doctors for muscle development. Here they could have a good time and be with other children."

Miss Lindberg and Dale Johnson, recreation supervisor would conduct the program. Miss Lindberg said the class could be programmed on an individualized basis if the park district can find enough residents with training who would volunteer their time. She said anyone interested should contact the park district office at the recreation center or call 255-5380.

The class would be open to handicapped children of all ages living in the park district that covers a major portion of Mount Prospect, the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines and part of Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights. No fee would be charged for the program, but participants would need a medical release from their doctor. Parents who would like to have their children participate in the program should contact Miss Lindberg at the park district office.

County Board Approves Trailer Park Permit

A special use permit for a small trailer park near the intersection of Elmhurst and Higgins Road in Elk Grove Township was approved Monday by the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

The approval, which will permit only five trailers on a portion of the three-acre property, came on a roll call vote, after it appeared the permit had been rejected.

Commissioner Floyd Fullilove of Des Plaines asked for the rejection as he said three violations of the county zoning ordinances had not been corrected. The board then seemingly approved this motion for denial without any vocal objection.

However, a motion was then made for a roll call vote, and Fullilove's denial was rejected by an 8-6 margin, with only Democrat John Touhy voting with the five minority GOP members.

Board president George Dunne voted "pass." The county zoning board of appeals had earlier approved a special use permit. Objections to the permit had been filed by Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village.

The special permit expires when trailer operations on property to the west of the site are terminated.

William Harris, county zoning commissioner, said later that no building permit has been issued for the property and that trailers were only allowed in recognized trailer camps.

He said the matter has been referred to the State's Attorney's office.

The commissioners, meeting for the first time in their new assembly room, also heard David Daniel, director of the Cook County public aid department, suggest personal delivery of welfare checks to ease the threat of mail theft.

Daniel was responding to charges made last week concerning fraud in his office. He said that steps had been taken to dismiss the employees responsible for the fraud.

Promoted

Fred Schultz, 103 North Mount Prospect Rd., Des Plaines, has been promoted to manager of hardware manufacture for Borg-Warner Educational Systems. He formerly was manager of quality control for the firm.

An employee of the Borg-Warner Corp. for 15 years, Schultz came to the Educational Systems division from the Robert C. Ingersoll Research Center, where he was chief inspector.

Schultz and his wife, Martha, have three children: Diane 17; Fred 16, and James 10.

He has lived in Des Plaines since 1955, and serves as chief score-keeper for the Des Plaines Little League.

MRS. THERESA DITTRICH can be found from morning until dark working in her garden. Customers marvel that this tiny, wispy of a woman can maintain such an extensive garden by hand at her age. Mrs. Dittrich is 86 years old.

Theresa Dittrich Makes The Most Of Her Garden Plot

by MARY B. GOOD

The raspberry lady is going to the Old Country.

Mrs. John Dittrich of Arlington Heights leaves for her Austrian vacation in just a few weeks.

The last time she went for a visit, the customs men gave her a hard time about the flower and radish seeds she was taking her nephew in Vienna. "They thought I had powder and needles. They took away my pocketbook, and I grabbed it right back," she said.

Almost everybody in the Scarsdale area of Arlington Heights knows about 86-year-old Mrs. Dittrich.

She is to gardening what Grandma Moses was to painting. All alone, Mrs. Dittrich grows and sells tomatoes, beans, carrots, currants, gooseberries, parsnips, pickles, kohlrabi and more — but especially raspberries — to all who call at her half-acre plot.

MRS. DITTRICH'S berry patch is a sweet adventure in four different types of June and everbearing raspberries. "Raspberries build blood," she said, "and they're good for my diabetes."

Theresa Dittrich — (she likes to be called Tea (t-i-a)) — has lived in Arlington Heights 50 years. She and her husband, John, a packer for Ekco Products who died in 1967, lived on Central Road when they first came to this country. They lost everything in the Depression, but soon recovered and bought their Rockwell Street acreage.

"I stayed up nights canning pickles for sale to help make money," Mrs. Dittrich said proudly.

No spot in the Dittrich plot is left unplanted. Mrs. Dittrich gardens Chinese-style. If she gets a little die-out on the raspberries, she interplants with potatoes. The carrots weren't doing so well, so she planted lettuce among them.

"I SAVE THREE ROWS of potatoes for myself," she said. The Austrians love their potatoes. "A little salt, a few caraway seeds — that's good," she smiled.

Customers marvel that this tiny, wispy of a woman can maintain such an extensive garden by hand at her age.

"If I didn't have my crops to keep me busy, I'd go crazy," she said.

It's hard for Mrs. Dittrich to get around — she gave up driving years ago.

So she relies on good neighbors who take her to church, give her insulin, and while she's gone will be watching out for "bad boys" who come and vandalize her salable crops.

Like many older persons, Theresa Dittrich doesn't want to be a burden. She gets around if she can, walking the mile or so to downtown Arlington Heights, and tending her garden which produces, among the leafy foliage, a bountiful crop of dignity and self-sufficiency.

THE HARD-WORKING HANDS of the raspberry lady are always poised in a gesture of sharing. If you happen to stop by her house, she'll probably offer you some juicy "samplers."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We recently had new linoleum installed and immediately there appeared what seem to be permanent scuffs or scratches. We tried steel wool but with no luck. Is there anything we can do?—E. Lagunas.

Once these scratches appear, there isn't much you can do. Of course, it depends on the color of the covering — whether the scratches will be prominent. If you had some kind of dressing or wax which is recommended for your kind of floor, it would help prevent this kind of damage. You can still put some on, if you haven't as yet. This will cover up some of the damage and help prevent more.

When I got back a dress from the cleaners which had a curled collar cut on a bias, they had a curved piece of cardboard with adhesive on one side holding the collar in place. I peeled it off and put it under the collar, completely invisible, so the collar is in place while the dress is being worn — and also packed in a suitcase, it will hold its shape.

Dear Dorothy: I have access to many small wood samples which are used for plaques. I am enclosing one so you will know exactly what I have in mind. Do you know how to remove the sticker without harming the wood?—Sister Rosalie Thomann.

Dampened a washcloth with plain water, laid it on the sticker. The paper was soon soft enough to pull off and the sticky residue was wiped off with lighter fluid. None of this disturbed the finish in any way.

Dear Dorothy: Have never found anything to equal cutting a pizza pie than large scissors? — Florence G.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to share my way of overcoming the faded line in a let-down hem. I take a tuck, using the old hemline as the guide, and sew just above the line. The depth of the tuck will depend upon the amount of material in the hem and the style of the garment. This is invaluable for little girls' clothing. It also keeps the fabric from tearing due to weakness from wear.—E.M. Woodrey.

Dear Dorothy: We solved our "skunk under the house" problem by spraying perfume under the house. I guess they can't stand any smell but their own. Hope it works for others, too.—Mrs. M. Gussow.
